

TOWANDA IS DELIGHTED

Towanda Daily Review's Account of the Purchase of One of Our Industries.

Towanda has secured a new industry which will give employment to between 70 and 80 people at good wages.

A deal was consummated recently whereby a number of Towanda capitalists take over the plant and good will of the Wayne Cut Glass Company, incorporated, an establishment which has been doing business at Honesdale for the past seven years.

J. S. Brown, president of the company, accompanied by Fred F. Lee, superintendent of the plant, arrived in Towanda on the Black Diamond Wednesday evening, and half an hour later Mr. Brown and the Towanda capitalists had come to terms, papers were executed and Mr. Lee given instructions to get ready for business in the new location.

The Tracy shoe factory building which was recently vacated by the Seneca Silk company, which is now located in its magnificent new home on Plank Road street, has been leased for a term of years with an option to buy. Mr. Lee will commence work to-day and prepare the building for the installation of the machinery which will be moved from Honesdale at once. It is expected to have the plant in operation within 30 days.

The Wayne Cut Glass company is composed of responsible and experienced glass men. The officers are: J. S. Brown, president; Hon. John Kubbach, vice president; John Weaver, Sr., treasurer; J. A. Kimble, Jr., manager; John H. Weaver, Jr., is office manager, Ambrose Keleher is foreman of the roughing department, and Fred F. Lee is the superintendent. These gentlemen all live in Honesdale at present, but under the agreement entered into with the Towanda capitalists they will come to the county seat of Bradford and give their best efforts toward making the plant as big a success here as it has been in Honesdale. There will be no change in the board of officers of the management for the time being, although it is expected that the Towanda capitalists who have invested their money in the enterprise will in time, when they become more familiar with the business, be known in the directorate and active management.

To Hon. George W. Kipp belongs the lion's share of the credit for bringing this splendid industry to Towanda. Mr. Kipp lived in Wayne county for a number of years, was a county commissioner, and knew nearly every man in the county.

One of his intimate friends was a German, John Kubbach, a former member of the state legislature. This same Mr. Kubbach took an active interest in the politics of this congressional district and a few years ago was the Democratic candidate for Congress, being defeated by Hon. M. E. Lilley of Towanda. The friendship of Mr. Kipp and Mr. Kubbach never grew cold, and some weeks ago while Mr. Kipp was in Honesdale, Mr. Kubbach made some remark about getting out of the glass business. As they talked, Mr. Kipp became enthusiastic over the glass industry and informed Mr. Kubbach that if the Wayne Cut Glass company wanted to dispose of their plant and transfer their business and good will, he thought he could interest enough people in Towanda to make a deal.

Mr. Kipp returned to Towanda, took the matter up with U. M. Fell, M. M. Spalding, and other members of the Business Men's Association, and an offer was made to the Honesdale parties. They took it under consideration, the officers of the company came to Towanda and talked the matter over, in fact they were here three or four times and finally reached a verbal agreement, which is now in writing, and the deal closed.

The full terms of the agreement cannot be made public, but it has been given out that the amount of money involved in the transaction is very large. Owing to the fact that the Towanda parties have no knowledge of the glass business, it is in the agreement that the officers of the Wayne Cut Glass company, their superintendent, foremen, and managers shall give their attention to the business for a certain length of time and thus make it a proposition for the Towanda capitalists. In keeping with this agreement, Superintendent Lee will commence work to-day, and other experienced men in the glass business will join hands with the Towanda capitalists and endeavor to make the plant one of the largest cutting establishments in Pennsylvania.

The Wayne Cut Glass company has an established business, and a very large trade, with many orders on the books. All is taken over in the deal just closed and about the only thing left of the old business is the name of the company.

The company owns a fine large building at Honesdale, which is fully equipped with glass cutting and finishing machinery. All this machinery will be moved to Towanda at once, and the building offered for sale. The work of shipping the machinery from Honesdale to Towanda will be commenced at once.

The entire floor space of the large Tracy building will be used, and then it is not expected to have room enough.

Last year the Wayne Cut Glass Company paid out in wages alone in Honesdale the tidy sum of $27,000. It is expected to increase this in Towanda by a third at least, the first year. From 70 to 80 people will be employed at wages that range as high as $22 per week. It is expected to give employment to a number of young men who desire to learn the trade of glass cutting, and for this good wages will be paid. When they become skilled they make excellent wages.

Cut glass will be sold to townspeople at this factory at wholesale prices. This is customary in towns where cut glass factories are in operation. Souvenirs are manufactured and it is hoped to get the factory running in town to turn out a line of goods for Towanda's old home days.

The securing of this industry is one of the best things that could be done for Towanda at this time. It is an industry of large proportions, and as it carries a big payroll, it means a great deal to the county seat. Within six weeks after the plant starts operations it will be one of the town's biggest and best industries, giving employment at excellent wages to a large number of people.

In time the promoters of the new enterprise expect to erect a big factory building and double the capacity of the plant. They will either do this or buy the Tracy building and erect an addition on the vacant lot north of the building.

ALASKA'S WONDERFUL RICHES.

The world knows a good deal more about Alaska than it did ten years ago, but has much yet to learn. It is singular that the knowledge of Alaska's great resources has probably been spread on a larger scale within the last twelve months than in all the years that have elapsed since the purchase; and that this knowledge has been promoted by persons whose first-hand information in the premises is slight. This enlightenment has been diffused through the medium of sensational newspapers and magazines—some of it highly inaccurate and mischievous; it has been spread by the apostles of conservation, big and little; but the world heretofore has been so little informed as to primary conditions in this territory, and publicly is so welcome, that we cannot fail to give the muckraker his due. Earnest and sincere advocates of rational conservation, being engaged in a great work for the future of the race, will receive support in Alaska as elsewhere.

Alaska is a big territory whose very bigness is only vaguely appreciated by persons at a distance, whose wealth of resources is just beginning to be recognized and whose climatic conditions have been misjudged and usually slandered. Alaska is as large as England, Scotland and Wales, France, Germany, and Italy combined. It has almost as wide a diversity of climate as is found among these countries, although the extremes of climate are not the same. After its acquisition by the United States in 1867, and until 1884, it had no civil government, but was under the control of the military authorities. A civil judicial system was provided in the latter year, a governor and other civil officers being appointed. It was not until the late nineties that the value of the mineral resources was widely recognized although the possibility of an enormous fishery industry had been appreciated for some years and the fisheries had undergone a considerable development. As late as 1905 the complaint that capital had failed to recognize the mineral and other great resources of the territory, outside of the fisheries, was heard everywhere in Alaska. Even now there is an eager desire, almost universal, that capitalists enter the Alaska field; and not much honest fear that capital will "gobble up the country" and oppose the poor prospector and miner. The same opinion is that capital can be properly controlled in Alaska, and there can be no doubt in any honest mind that capital is indispensable in a country as vast and isolated and rugged as this.—Technical World.

EARLY TRAINING OF SINGERS.

Many of the "Golden Throats" Were Perfected by Nature.

As some of us know, Adeline Patti sang as a child. Her voice required little or no training. Its beauty and placement were God-given. All Patti's wise guardians did was to protect her against exposure of all kinds. Patti made her operatic debut at an age when it would be a crime to begin the vocal training of the average girl.

Nellie Melba is another whose golden throat was perfected by nature. When Melba left her Australian home for Paris, where she acquired some "trills," her voice was perfect, so no one, unless it be the unknown teacher in far-away Melbourne can honestly claim any credit for Melba's "vocal method."

Mme. Tetrazzini, who came rather late into her own was always a natural singer. It is reported that she studied tone production but five months. But Tetrazzini lived in the home of her sister Mme. Campanini, who is a singer, and hearing this sister practice for years supplied the clever listener with ideas which enabled her to curtail her own studies by several years.

Trolley Lines in America.

There are 1,280 street and interurban railway companies in America with a total of 85,000 miles of single track and 75,000 passenger cars. The total number of passengers carried annually is 10,000,000,000, and the gross annual income is $400,000,000.

ABSURD COSTUMES.

Outcome of a Curious Wager Made in England in 1806.

A wager was made in 1806 in the castle yard, York, England, between Thomas Hodgson and Samuel Whitehead as to which should succeed in assuming the most singular character. Umpires were selected whose duty it was to decide upon the comparative absurdity of the costumes in which the two men were to appear. On the appointed day Hodgson came before the umpires decorated with banknotes of various values, his coat and vest being entirely covered with them. Besides these he had a row of five guinea pieces down his back, a netted purse of gold around his head and a placard on his back bearing the legend, "John Bull."

Whitehead came on "the scene dressed like a woman on one side, one half of his face painted and a silk stocking and slipper on one foot and leg. The other half of his face was blackened so as to resemble a negro. On the corresponding side of his body he wore a gaudy long tailed linen coat, his leg on that side being incased in half a pair of leather breeches and a boot with a spur. He wore a wig of sky blue braided down his back and tied with yellow, red and orange colored ribbons.

One would naturally fancy that he presented the most singular and ludicrous appearance, but the umpires must have thought differently, as they awarded the stakes, some £20, to Hodgson.—London Tatler.

Flea Terrible for Size.

The weight in pounds of a gnat is .0000004. Its wing area in square feet is .0003, which gives the monster .0204 pounds to the square foot. The scientist who has enlightened the waiting world with this interesting fact does not state the creature's "pounds per horse power." Next time you get one in the eye you may figure it for yourself, says the Los Angeles Herald. It would be interesting to have scientific data as to the mosquito's suction pump; and we think it is generally known that by far the most powerful and terrible of all the wild beasts of the field, in proportion to its size, is the salubrious flea.

The Natural Bridge.

The average height of the cliffs about the Natural Bridge is about 250 feet; the height of the bridge about 220. The span of the arch is 93 feet; its average width 80 feet, and its thickness in the center 55 feet. The bridge does not cross the chasm precisely at right angles, but in an oblique direction, like what engineers used to call a "skew" bridge. The top of the bridge is covered by a clay soil to the depth of several feet, which nourishes a considerable growth of trees and bushes. These, with masses of rock, serve to form the natural parapets along the sides, which quite screen the view of the chasm below.

Died By Order.

After the battle of Gettysburg, a soldier supposed to have been killed was entered on the books of his company "Died on the 24th June, 1863." A few days afterward it turned out that he was still alive, and the honest sergeant made the following entry: "Died by mistake."

At length there came a letter from the ministry of war announcing the death of the man at the hospital, where our sergeant recorded the fact as follows: "Redied by order of the ministry."
