

CENT A WORD COLUMN

DESIRABLE PROPERTY FOR SALE—Residence of the late H. C. Hale, located at the corner of Church and Eleventh streets; 75 feet on Church street and 120 feet on Eleventh street, together with house and barn. For information concerning above property, address W. H. Stone, Court street, Honesdale, Pa. 43m2

STOVE WOOD—Will deliver in Honesdale hard wood, split, at $2 per cord; $1.75 per cord if not cut. George Erk, Seelyville. Bell phone, 4216.

BIDS for bridge construction will be received by the County Commissioners at their office until 10 a. m., June 8, 1910, for the building of the following concrete bridges: 42 feet span over Hollister creek, Damascus; 32 feet span over Paupack creek, near Hollisterville; 10 feet arch at White Mills. Plans and specifications are on exhibition at the Commissioners' office. 4113

FOR SALE—Honesdale National Bank stock, 23 shares, or any part thereof, at $165 per share. Warren P. Schenck, Honesdale, Pa.

WANTED—House or apartments for small family. V. Citizen office, 21

WANTED—A man to work on farm. Apply to L. G. Hoff, Cherry Ridge, R. F. D. No. 2. 2510d.

FOR SALE—House containing ten rooms and bath, 300 Fourteenth street, Honesdale. Dwelling in excellent condition. All modern improvements. FRANK STEINMAN 1f

TWELVE muslin trespass notices for $1.00; six for seventy-five cents. Name of owner, township and law regarding trespassing printed thereon. CITIZEN office.

FOR SALE—A walnut upholstered, parlor set of furniture consisting of sofa and two large chairs. Inquire Citizen Office. 1f

ALL KINDS of legal blanks, notes, leases, deeds, warrants, bonds, summonses, constable bonds, etc. Citizen office.

LOCAL MENTION.

—It is twenty-one years ago last Saturday evening when the Irving Cliff hotel was burned.

—Middletown, N. Y., will have a new federal building for the post office; also a handsome city hall is to be erected.

—The Methodist Ladies' Aid Society will hold their annual strawberry supper in the church parlors on Thursday evening, June 2nd. Price of supper, 35 cents.

—G. William Sell left on Friday for Lock Haven to confer with the business men of that city regarding the proposition made to Krantz, Smith & Co. to remove their plant to that place.

—The Democrats in this senatorial district have a hot fight on to decide the fate of Harvey Huffman and Roger Burnett, both of Stroudsburg, and candidates for the nomination for Senator of this district.

—The Barnum & Bailey circus is getting a lot of free advertising by the burning of the old dilapidated tent, under which they gave their show. The next reader will tell how 17,000 women working in relays had the new tent ready for the next performance.

—It is rumored around Democratic State Headquarters that a strong effort will be made to have a local option plank placed in their platform, while another rumor which starts from Republican sources, is that the Republicans will recommend that the question of local option be submitted to the public directly.

—Miss Gertrude Erk entertained a number of young people at her home on Main street Friday evening. Games were indulged in and refreshments served. The following were present: Laura Cortright, Edna Hawker, Ethel Hawker, Carrie Cody, Miss Erk, Henry Duke, Howard Erk, William Macey and Henry Quinlan.

—The Erie railroad has advanced its commutation rates for all points within forty miles of New York City. The increase ranges from 25 cents to $4.00 a month. There is also an increase in the fifty-trip family tickets. The reasons the railroad officials give for increasing fares are that wages have been increased, and ties, rails, and equipment prices have doubled since the old schedule was issued.

—On Friday morning of last week, one of the most exciting runaways seen on Main street in some time, occurred. A horse and buggy belonging to William Flives was tied to a post at Schoell's tonorial parlors, with Anna May, the little daughter of Mr. Flives, in the seat alone. As the Auto Transportation Company's bus passed, the horse took fright, and started down Main street at a mad pace. When it reached the Union depot, it turned from the street, crossed the platform, and dashed around the depot, coming out at the upper entrance, and striking a tree, throwing the girl to the ground, and severely cutting her about the head and face. She was taken to her brother's house, Paul Flives, where it was found that no bones were broken. The horse escaped uninjured, but the wagon was badly wrecked.

—Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Target, a son.

—A party of our young people left on Saturday for Winona Lake where they expect to pass a few days.

—Rev. A. L. Whittaker will hold service in the Waymart Presbyterian church on Sunday, June 5th, at 3 o'clock.

—Dreher township, according to the census, can boast of having 3 1/2 teams of mules, 1 Jackass and three pair of twins.

—Benjamin Gardner, who is now located in Factoryville, was in town to attend memorial services with Capt. Ham Post of which he is Adjutant.

—Let us dispense with the dangerous Fourth of July celebrations; we can injure and kill enough people now with automobiles, and keep our reputation intact.

—Grace Episcopal church, Sunday, June 5th: Communion service and sermon at 10:30 a. m.; Sunday school and Bible classes at 12 M.; evening prayer and sermon at 7:30 p. m.

—William D. Lewis, Esq., of Lansford, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Senator in this district. Having no opposition is the reason we do not hear more about him.

—The High Point Inn, near Port Jervis, which is a conspicuous landmark to Honesdale people while enroute to New York on the Erie Railroad, has been sold to some wealthy New Jersey gentleman for a park.

—The address of Charles P. Searle, Esq., delivered at the up-town bridge on Memorial Day, was enjoyed by those present, as his clear, resonant tone of voice made it possible for all to hear very distinctly.

—The Standard Oil Company, that much berated corporation, has 70,000 employees, and voluntarily the company is to increase their wages, adding thereby between six and ten million dollars to their pay roll. This corporation never had a strike.

—Glenn Curtiss won the $10,000 prize offered by the New York World for the first heavier-than-air machine that would make the trip between Albany and New York, a distance of 137 miles. Curtiss covered 150 miles. His time was 2 hours and 32 minutes. Average speed, 54.96 per hour.

—Ex-Sheriff Murphy, Victor A. Decker, Esq., Dr. L. F. Cook and Rheinhard Warg, all of Hawley, while automobiling in Sheriff Murphy's car, met with a serious accident on Memorial Day. They were in the vicinity of Harpersville, Susquehanna county, and while speeding along at an ordinary rate, ran on to a muddy piece of road, when the machine skidded, went over a steep embankment, and turned turtle, throwing all the occupants out, except Mr. Murphy, who was pinned under the machine. After he was taken out from his perilous position, it was found that he had two or more ribs broken and his collar bone dislocated. The other occupants were bruised considerably, but no bones were broken. The party managed to get to Scranton where temporary relief was obtained from their sufferings, and on Tuesday morning they reached Erie and Wyoming train.

—The Memorial services at the Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday evening were attended by a congregation that filled every seat. The Revs. Dr. Swift, A. L. Whittaker, George Wendell and Oliver were on the platform and assisted the Rev. William Hillier. The choir, reinforced by a large chorus, were also assisted by an orchestra consisting of brass and string instruments, and rendered a musical program which was greatly enjoyed. The members of Capt. Ham Post, G. A. R., and Company E, 13th Regiment, who were accompanied by the Maple City Fife and Drum Corps, filled the front seats. The church was handsomely decorated with the Stars and Stripes. After prayer by Dr. Swift, responsive reading, led by Rev. Wendell, and scripture reading by Rev. Whittaker, the Rev. William Hillier made one of the most forcible and fearless addresses upon appropriate topics that any Honesdale audience has ever had the pleasure to listen to, ending with an appeal to the gray-headed veterans and the soldier boys to accept Christ as their Commander-in-Chief.

—On Monday, Darwin Penwarden, wife and two children, in company with Dr. Ed. Burns and wife of Honesdale, while making a trip to Cadosia Lake, in Sullivan county, met with a serious accident. While going along at a moderate rate of speed, the machine skidded and went over an embankment, throwing all the occupants out and seriously injuring Mrs. Ed. Burns. William F. Reifer, who was close by in his automobile, hastened to the help of the party, and after extricating them from the perilous position in which they had been thrown, it was found that while all the occupants had been badly shaken up and slightly injured, Mrs. Burns was the only one who needed immediate attention. Mr. and Mrs. Burns were placed in the Reifer automobile and taken at once to a point where transportation could be had to enable Mrs. Burns to be conveyed to the Burns Hospital at Scranton. Mr. Reifer returned and conveyed Mrs. Penwarden and children to their home, leaving Mr. Penwarden to look after the wrecked automobile, which he managed to repair and get to his garage on Tuesday.

—An immense crowd attended the opening at Lake Lodore on Monday. Honesdale furnished its quota of pleasure seekers, and it took a train of ten coaches to bring them home on the last trip. The Roller Coaster, Chutes and new Merry-Go-Round were greatly in evidence all day.

PERSONAL MENTION

John Fisher is visiting at his home in Winterdale.

Miss Margaret Coggins is visiting Carbondale friends.

Mrs. Albert Kimble visited friends in Hawley last week.

Daniel Faatz spent Monday with friends in Mt. Pleasant.

Charles Griffin of Schenectady, is visiting his mother here.

Miss Angie Hughes of Hawley, was in town on Saturday.

John Tully of Poyntelle called at this office on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Charles Burger, of White Mills, spent Saturday in town.

Harry Parisi and sister Mame are visiting relatives in New York.

Miss Sadie Harrison is spending a few days at her home in Hawley.

Fred Butler, of Erie, Pa., is spending his vacation at his home here.

W. W. Starbuck, of New York, is visiting friends in the Maple City.

Miss Jennie Gray, of Scranton, visited friends in town on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Tracey Sweet of Scranton, were in town on Saturday.

Henry Tingley, the insurance man, spent Monday in the city of Scranton.

Michael Murrin, of Wilkes-Barre, called on relatives here on Memorial Day.

Miss Christina Thomas is spending a few days with friends in Winterdale.

Miss Mamie Charles, of Scranton, is visiting her cousin, Miss Bertha Flora.

Dan White of New York, is spending a few days with Honesdale relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knapp, of Jersey City, are visiting relatives in town.

M. J. Kelly was in town spending Sunday and Memorial Day at his home.

Charles Hergett, of Bowling Green, Ohio, is spending several days in town.

Miss Millie Weaver left Sunday for an extended visit with friends in California.

Miss Daisy Alberty of Carbondale, spent Sunday with her parents on High street.

Mrs. Mary Petershine, of Grand Rapids, Michigan, is visiting Honesdale relatives.

John Kimble of Towanda, spent Sunday and Monday with his parents on Court street.

Misses Hattie Quinlan and Mary Buckley have returned from a visit with Carbondale friends.

Daniel Coleman and Edmund Finerty spent Sunday and Decoration Day at their homes here.

Miss Jennie McLaughlin, of Carbondale, visited at her home on River street over Sunday.

Walter Campbell, of Scranton, spent Sunday at the home of his parents in East Honesdale.

Albert Steinman, of Deposit, was in town Sunday and Monday and was visiting his many friends.

Mr. William Heydt, wife and daughter of Montclair, N. J., are the guests of Judge Searle and wife.

Frank Steinman was in town and spent Sunday and Memorial Day with his daughter, Mrs. Lester Knapp.

Miss Mary Kelsh returned to her duties in New York City, after spending a month's vacation at her home here.

Hon. E. B. Hardenbergh and daughter, Miss C. Louise, will pass the coming two weeks at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thompson are passing a few days with their son, A. P. Thompson and family at Andover, Mass.

Fred Hamilton, wife and son passed last Sunday and Monday with Honesdale relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. B. Holmes.

Emil Gass left Sunday for Brooklyn, N. Y., to take a position at his trade of glass cutting in the Campbell & Herfeldt shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Evans and daughter Edith, and the former's sister, Miss Blanche Evans, are visiting relatives in Wilkes-Barre.

T. A. Lightizer has returned from an extended trip through the southern part of the State. He will now be at his place of business for a time.

Miss Emma Sandercock, of Deposit, was a visitor in town Sunday and Monday. She was a caller at the homes of many of her friends and relatives.

Chris Demer and John Irving of Binghamton, arrived on Friday, and were the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Demer, until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schilling spent a few days with relatives in Scranton.

Mr. Bruce Kirkham, of Scranton, spent Saturday with friends in this place.

Misses Julia Weidner and Hilda-gard Wasman recently visited friends in Scranton.

Miss Lizzie Case of Welcome Lake, is visiting at the home of George Marsh and family.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monaghan of Scranton are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bracey on Erie street.

Wesley Gardner, President of the Finch Manufacturing Co., spent a few days in town last week, remaining over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Stratton, of Dalton, Pa., spent Saturday and Sunday in town as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dusenberre of West street.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Key and daughter, Bessie Lillian, of Wilkes-Barre, are visiting Mrs. Key's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Hawken, on North Main street.

ANOTHER VETERAN GONE.

Hon. James Sexton, Who Has Been Stopping at Hotel Wayne, Died on Memorial Day.

The Hon. James Sexton, who has been stopping at Hotel Wayne during the last six weeks, left for his home at North Wales, Montgomery county, this state, on Friday evening, purposing to spend Memorial Day with his family, and taking part with his comrades in the Memorial services. Word was received here on Tuesday that he had died very suddenly on Monday afternoon. Mr. Sexton was in the employ of the State Highway Department, and was the inspector for the state road which is now being built in Dyberry township. He represented Montgomery county in the Legislature for two terms; was a Civil war veteran, and was a genial, courteous gentleman, loved and respected by all who knew him. He was a member of the Methodist church at his home and a steady attendant at the Honesdale Methodist church while stopping at the Wayne.

A dispatch from North Wales, Pa., has this to say:

Jason Sexton, a leading agriculturist, who represented Montgomery county in the state house of representatives from 1897 to 1900, dropped dead while he was delivering a Memorial day address before a large assemblage of Grand Army Veterans and citizens in the school house here.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

Mr. Sexton, who served throughout the Civil war under McClellan and Sheridan, did not march with the Grand Army Post to the cemetery as in previous years, but accompanied it in a carriage to the cemetery. He was in the midst of an eloquent address when he stopped abruptly and fell backward on the platform. Death was instantaneous.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS.

Teachers' examinations for provisional certificates will be held as follows: At Pleasant mount, June 7; Waymart, June 13; Winwood, June 22; Honesdale, June 28; Damascus, July 2; Newfoundland, July 7; Arlet, July 8.

The examinations begin promptly at 8 a. m. and 1 p. m. No certificate will be granted to any one under 17 years of age. Applicants are expected to supply themselves with pen, ink and foolscap or legal cap paper. The subjects are English Grammar, Geography, U. S. History, Physiology and Hygiene, Civil Government, Algebra, Orthography, Penmanship, Written and Mental Arithmetic, Reading, and Theory of Teaching