THE KING OF THE LAWS OF NATURE.

International Bible Lesson for June 5, '10.—(Matt. 14:22-36).

The Sea of Galilee is better known than any other body of water on the face of the globe. It is insignificant in size as compared with the Great Lakes of America, but in its picturesque beauty surrounded by the hills of Galilee it has attracted the attention of all men. For on its shores were located the homes of the men who were the first preachers of the gospel, and on its peaceful or tempestuous surface were transacted some of the most thrilling events in the earthly life of Jesus Christ Himself.

We have already seen in this series of talks the deliverance from shipwreck wrought by the King of Nature on stormy Galilee; this lesson deals with another dramatic and spectacular occurrence on the same body of water. The disciples of Christ, crossing the sea alone one night were caught in a sudden tempest, peculiar to that body of water, when suddenly their Lord and Master appeared walking upon the waves as upon a crystal pavement. Startled at first and frightened, they were reassured by the familiar voice of their King. Torn by conflicting emotions Peter, the impulsive, eager to fly to the place of protection flung himself overboard and actually trod the waves, oblivious of them in his headlong rush to the side of his Lord. And it was only when he began to realize what he was doing that gravitation seized him and he began to sink. Rescued by the Great Deliverer in the nick of time they both entered the boat, the storm ceased as suddenly as it had arisen, and immediately they were at their destined haven.

An Advance Lesson.
Thus for the second time the disciples were given a lesson in the higher training. The first storm that they encountered was in the day time; this was by night. Then, He was present in the ship; if it came to the worst, they knew that they might rouse Him; while the mere fact of His presence must have given them a sense of comparative security. But they must learn to walk by faith and not by sight, and so this time He puts them forth alone, as the mother-bird thrusts her fledglings from the nest, that they may find their own wings and learn to use them. At the same time impressing this important lesson, that in all their coming storm of trial and temptation, His eye is upon them. He will not suffer to storm to overwhelm them; in the hour of their greatest need, when they have done all, He will come to their relief, walking upon the very waves of their distress; a very present help in time of trouble. Sorrow may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning.

Its Symbolical Meaning.
This is a symbolic incident. As that bark upon the stormy sea, such is oftentimes the church, tossed to and fro upon the waves of the world. It has often seemed as though its Lord had forgotten it, so little is the way it makes, so baffled is it and tormented by opposing winds and waves.

Higher Law in Force.
There is only one explanation of this occurrence. Jesus Christ has all power over nature. He could transfigure and transform without carrying anything through its natural processes. Without soil or seed, or air or grape fruit He produced wine. He took the five loaves and multiplied the bread by a short cut of development into a bountiful meal for the multitude. What we call the "laws of nature" are merely expressions of the modes of the workings of Jesus, but He began to make the worlds before there were any laws of nature. He made nature. He is over nature. He is supernatural. He can do all possible things.

We are coming to understand, what Christ knew perfectly well, that a miracle, so-called, is not the suspension, nor the violation of law, but the incoming of a higher law, as of a spiritual law in the midst of natural law. This law is recognized in the unquestionable fact that the body is lighter when awake than sleeping, every one who has carried a child can attest that. Hence we speak of live weight and dead weight. The same body but different weight. What is this but the expression of that higher law, and who knows but that it was intended to have that predominance in all mankind and would have been his heritage had it not been for the fall which threw him out of gear. Christ's will was in absolute harmony with the will of God, hence he was in possession of that higher law and could appeal to it when necessary. So that here we have an instance of the predominance of man's will, and a prophetic anticipation of the day when it shall be recovered by all men. The human consciousness, as an inner center, works as an opposing force to the attraction of the earth and the centrifugal force of gravity. And in Christ that inner force was powerful enough to enable him at will to walk the water as a solid pavement. Peter, for a few moments exercised that power, when unconscious of his surroundings, he boldly set out on the waves of Galilee to go to the side of his Master. It was only when he began to realize what he was doing that he lost his grip on the spiritual realm and fell back into the natural, and at once began to sink.

AFTER WESTON'S LAURELS.

aged John Ennis Off For Walk Across the Continent.

Once more a pedestrian of threescore years and ten has come forward to show the world that age is no handicap in a little matter of footing it across the continent, and if he can help it Edward Payson Weston isn't going to remain the peerless pedestrian prince much longer. John Ennis is his name and Stamford, Conn., his home. After a dip in the Atlantic at Coney Island recently he walked to the city hall in New York, where he was started by Mayor Gaynor on a journey afoot across the continent. His goal is San Francisco, and he purposes to end his walk with a swim in the Pacific.

The record of Mr. Ennis would indicate that he is just the man to duplicate Weston's recent astonishing feat. In 1898 he defeated Dan O'Leary and Weston when he walked 100 miles in 22 hours 10 minutes, and he has performed other feats that show him to be a man of remarkable strength. Mr. Ennis has saved thirteen lives by his expert swimming and in 1908 received a bronze medal from the United States volunteer life saving corps.

Buffalo Bill's Great Hand.

The announcement that William F. Cody, known the world over as "Buffalo Bill," is to retire has recalled the interesting career of this picturesque character of the plains. Since 1872 he has been before the public as a showman and organized his Wild West performance in 1883, which has been given all over the universe. In London on one occasion, the late King Edward, then Prince of Wales, rode in the famous Deadwood coach after a performance.

Accompanying him were four kings who happened to be in England at the time, and when the ride was over the prince said to Cody: "Colonel, did you ever hold four kings like that before?" "Yes, your royal highness," replied Cody, "I have held four kings more than once, but I never held four kings and a royal joker before."

BROOKLYN'S PRETENDER.

John Guelph Begins Fight For Crown Worn by King George.

While Britain's new king and his family are holding exclusively first place in the limelight abroad just now, a Brooklyn man promises to be almost as much in the public eye over there in the near future. His name is John G. E. W. Guelph, or "Prince John," as he insists on being called, and he claims to be the eldest son of the late King Edward and heir to the British throne.

Although now occupying a modest apartment at 106 Montague street,

JOHN G. E. W. GUELPH.

Brooklyn, "Prince John" and his family formerly lived in one of New York's most expensive hotels. Having no profession or business, there has been much mystery as to where the money to pay for this luxury came from, but he has given the impression that it was sent over from England.

Nevada, "the land of the sweet state of liberty. Of these I sing! State where our fathers flee, State that lets mothers free—Marriage, because of thee, Hath lost its sting.

Gone, but Not Forgotten.

The portly old gentleman had just finished a sumptuous feast. Lighting a huge Havana, he arose to go. "Haven't you forgotten something?" began the waiter in an insinuating manner. "Why, so I have!" was the reply. "I declare my memory becomes more treacherous every day!" Lifting the ash tray, he pocketed the dollar bill lying beneath it and calmly strode out past the crestfallen knight of the tray.—Judge's Library.

The Funeral Trust.

(An alleged "funeral trust" is the latest sensation in Cincinnati.—News.) Oh, this is a merry footstool Where we linger day by day! And the things that daily happen Make us want to always stay. How we love the trusts and mergers Raising oil and bread and beef! How we love the ones who promise They will soon bring us relief!

We had hoped some time to shuffle Off this choking mortal coil And be freed from slow starvation And be freed from daily toil. But the undertaker's merger Knocks our fondest hopes sky high. For we'll find when comes the challenge It will cost too much to die. —Boston Herald.

By the Card.

"Will Brother Jones kindly lead?" was asked by the pastor at the beginning of the prayer service. Waking with a start at the mention of his name, the deacon almost broke up the service by replying: "I led last time. It's your turn. What's trumps?" —Philadelphia Record.

Love me, but wisely. Tears and sighs I loathe and fear to see A tortured brow and jealous eyes Bent angrily on me.

How's Your Liver?

The natural laxative and antiseptic of the bowels is the bile, which is secreted by the liver. The bile is nature's lubricant. When your liver is torpid it produces less bile, and of course the bowels become clogged with poisonous matter which finds its way into the blood, producing biliousness and constipation and indigestion.

Smith's Pineapple and Butternut Pills are by far the best remedy to empty the bowels and relieve congested conditions. They act as a true tonic to the liver, preventing as well as curing constipation. One or two of these pills taken every night mildly stimulates the liver and corrects biliousness without the driving purgative effects of harsh drugs. Their gentle laxative action especially commends them to ladies who must after eating and are subject to periodical headaches. To secure a healthy secretion of bile, thus establishing perfect bowel regularity, these little pills possess merits peculiarly their own, not found in other remedies. Physicians use and recommend. They form no habit. You should always keep them on hand. These little Vegetable Pills will ward off many ills.

To Cure Constipation Billiousness and Sick Headache in a Night, use
