REMEDY FOR BED BUGS.

To an inquirer who writes the department of health asking how to rid his house of bed bugs Prof. Surface, economic zoologist, to whom this letter was referred, outlined the following procedure in his reply: "I received your letter addressed to the state health department and forwarded to me for reply. I beg to say that the various means of getting rid of bed bugs which you have tried, are among those which are considered least efficient by those who have had real practical experi-ence. These means are all right for destroying germs, but when it comes to crawling bugs, they are not so satisfactory. There are two methods of destroying bed bugs.

One is to apply thoroughly alcoholic solution of bichloride of mercury or, in other words, corrosive sublimate. This is not only ex-tremely poisonous, but fatal to pests. It kills them whenever it touches them. It can be put into an oil can and injected into the cracks and crevices, if immediately the after using it the can is emptied and washed well, rinsed with water, and then oiled or filed with oil to prevent further action of the corrosive material. You can, of course, not keep it in a metal oil can for a very long time, because it will readily corrode the metal and cat its way through. It can be kept in a bottle, and when you wish to use it transfer it to a spring bottom oil can, and inject it where you wish. You need not be afraid to use this material freely, even though it is rank poison when taken internally. The other means, which is certain to get rid of bed bugs, is to fumi-gate thoroughly with hydrocyanic acid gas. This deadly gas is made by dropping potassium cyanide or fits resulting from improved meth-ods in use in the model orchards conducted under the co-operation of room, and leaving it instantly, so department of agriculture. He Was Too Enqueinstic.

Hank Doobs was a tod as an "honest" horse trader. He would not lie about a horse. He would merely sur press the truth. Incidentally he always beat the customer who dealt with him. The way he could slar over the de fects and buzz about the virtues of an animal amounted to genius.

Once Hank was trying to sell neighbor a horse that had an eye which was nearly sightless, neighbor knew Hank would not lie outright to him, so he questioned the horse trader as to the various points of the brute.

"How about his eyesight? Can be see out of both eyes?"

"Sure," said Hank. "He's got goo eyes." Here he leaned forward, his eves fairly scintillating with suppressed honesty. "One eye is partien larly good!" Hank's enthusiasm for the truth had carried him too far. The deal was off

Hair Monstrosities.

French theater managers in the eighteenth century had worse evils than pleture hats to contend against. Marie Antoinette, who was short, even necording to French standards, set the fashion of high colffures and ultrafashionable women prided themselves on measuring four feet from their chins to the tops of their heads. These structures took about six hours to erect, the hairdresser mounting a ladder in the process. Some colffures were almost as broad as they were long, with wings sticking out about eight inches on each side of the head. For the "frigate" colffure the hair was rippled in a huge pile to represent the waves of an angry sea and surmounted by a fully rigged ship. As a consequence of these monstrosities.

She took the reluctant American straight back to Tennyson's house and. without knocking or ringing, went into the room where he sat with his wife. "Alfred," said she as the two looked up, startled, "these strangers came from a far country to see the lion of Freshwater, and behold-a bear!" Tennyson burst out laughing and be

The Real Need

In negro households, expectally in communities where accross form a large portion of the population. If frequently happens that the woman is the head of the family, being not only the breadwinner, but also the discipilnarian, and in that expactly on oceasions she regards her putative ford and master as subject to her will. Flexibility of English. English is not only, as Richard Jeffories assorted, the most expressive and flexible of tongues, but also, in Swinburne's opinion, the most musicai. He proclaimed the Bnes-

For clearness of diction it is unrivaled. and, thanks to its abundance of yowels (close on one for every consonant) It flowes rhythmically from the tongue. Against Westley's dictum, that French is to German as a bagpipe to an organ, may be cited a saving of another famous divine, Dr. Dollinger, "L'Allemand n'est pas une langue, mais ceux qui parlent ce jargon se comprennent entre eaux" (German is not a langon understand one another) .- London

Mammoth Cave.

The scheme now on foot to have the government take over the Mammoth cave property and make of it a govcrument reservation is one that will be of interest to every one who has seen the cave or known of its wonders. It is now practically just as it was when it was discovered, 100 years ago. With a comparatively small expenditure it could easily be made one of the beauty spots of the country, vying with Yellowstone and other nat-
