STERLING.

M. A. Gilpin recently purchased a four-horse power gasoline engine with which he is well pleased. He can thresh, cut wood and fill silos for his neighbors and do almost everything at home except milk the cows and start the kitchen fire in the morning for his wife. The family owned a dog that was highly prized and was almost as useful as any one of the family but by some means a wagon wheel was driven over him and in a short time the poor dog expired. Mark says he would rather have lost the best cow he has than that dog. Many dogs are about worthless but the man or boy who has ever owned a good dog knows how to appreciate them.

We are pleased to note that over 150 were able to pay their taxes and thus feel relieved financially as well as physically for another year.

H. A. Williams and E. M. Gilpin, accompanied by their lady friends, took in the Allentown fair.

Report says that the Madisonville Grange fair, now in full blast, is all O. K.

WHAT SECRETARY WILSON TOLD THE FARMERS.

For half a century we have had Republican policies. When the party came into power there were few railroads, few factories and little population in the west. The western country yielded grains and meats abundantly, but there were no markets beyond the requirements of new settlers. The people were intelligent and saw at once that home markets were needed. It cost too much to send crops to Europe. We wanted shops, forges, factories and we got them by encouraging them. A protective system was adopted that made a home market into which the outside world has wanted to enter ever since. The Republican policy then was to give Protection equal to the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad.

While we were building up our manufacturing system the public lands were being given to the people, which resulted in very cheap food for many years, not very profitable to the farmers. Building transportation lines to the Mississippi Valley and beyond, opening mines and increasing manufactures resulted in complete settlement of the lands in the humid regions of our country and has greatly increased population in all vocations until home demand for food products is so great that prices are higher than they have been. The farmers during all these years have sustained the protective system because it maintained a home market for their products. They paid more for their factory goods, but they were made at home and the maker bought farm crops. Now it is proposed to let farm products come in free or at lower rates. The farmers of the country had low prices for their crops, while free lands were to be had for taking up. The farmer endured high prices for factory goods while these industries were being developed and the West was being settled. It now costs him more than it did before. The land investment is greater and labor costs much more. It is now to be put in the same class as farmers in new adjacent countries and

BEHIND THE BARS

Directly past Constable Valley Smith of this village "like a streak of lightning," as Valley describes it. Valley shouted to Ed. Edwards, a former Monticello resident now living at Fallburgh, who lay some feet further on. Edwards would make a good football player. At least he made one tackle that brought him as much applause as though it had won an inter-collegiate game. He reached up from the ground as Wolf attempted to shoot past and quietly gathered the slick horse thief in his arms. Wolf was subdued without a struggle, and now the whole five men are safely lodged in jail.

On searching the men two electric torches were found in their possession, which under the circumstances are considered strong evidence in themselves.

The men were to have been brought up for hearing Monday afternoon, but owing to the District Attorney and other lawyers being busy at the September term of Supreme court, the hearing was set down for October 11th.

Under Sheriff Jesse Barlow has been in towns along the Hudson where the gang stopped on its way to New York, and it is believed they have confederates in New York and elsewhere who assist in disposing of the horses.

The Corwin Beach horse the thieves left near Ellenville and it has been returned to its owner. The horse which was taken from Flager & Morgenstern is believed was sold at an auction sale in Troy. There are other horses still to be accounted for.—Sullivan County Republican.

Go to the county fair Oct. 3, 4, 5 and 6.
