

ATTACK ON TENER WAS BOOMERANG

Reputable Editors Repudiate Journalistic Mendacity.

NOT A SINGLE DIRECT CHARGE

Candidate For Governor Helped Rather Than Injured by the Work of the Mud Slingers.

Reputable newspapers throughout Pennsylvania are resenting and condemning the disgraceful journalistic attacks that have been made on John K. Tener, the Republican nominee for governor.

Misrepresentations of a scandalous character have been made in the attempt to ruin the reputation of Mr. Tener, but investigations into the facts of the case have shown that Mr. Tener has acted in a thoroughly honorable and upright manner in every transaction that has been referred to and through which his political enemies have sought to place him in a false light before the people.

The efforts of a sensational newspaper to have it appear that Mr. Tener, through his connection with the Public Utilities Corporation, has placed himself in a position to forfeit the support of his fellow citizens as a candidate for governor, have failed signally.

Not a solitary fact has been submitted showing that Mr. Tener should be criticized for any act in relation to this company. While it is admitted that up to date the enterprise has not been profitable, reputable business men who are interested in the corporation are convinced that it will ultimately be successful.

Mr. Tener met the attack upon him with a prompt and sweeping disavowal of any wrongdoing.

"It is a palpable attempt to besmirch my character," said he, "and to question my integrity, without the slightest justification and without a scintilla of fact to base an intimation of wrongdoing upon my part."

"The article," he declared, "is an effort to promote the selfish and pecuniary interests of a mercenary and degenerate publication. There is absolutely nothing to conceal. I became connected with the company through W. L. Christman, a reputable attorney in Philadelphia. When I found I could not give the time to the company I severed my connection with it absolutely, never having accepted any of its stock. My relations with the company were entirely straightforward and honorable in every respect."

Mr. Christman, to whom Mr. Tener referred, is one of the leading members of the Philadelphia bar and a man of the highest reputation in the community. He is now president of the company, which was formed, among other things, to construct a railroad on the coast of Oregon to open up a big lumber field. Mr. Tener was voted $50,000 worth of stock, but declined to accept it. He was connected with the company for but two months, when he resigned.

Men of Affairs Interested.
A number of well known business men are on the board of directors of the company, including Simeon Merrill, president of the Yost Manufacturing company, of Meadville, Pa.; William B. Margerum, a merchant in the Reading Terminal market, Philadelphia; General Russell Thayer, who is also a director in the Philadelphia and Suburban Elevated Railroad company; Colonel William Bender Wilson, formerly of the Pennsylvania railroad, and for whom the Pennsylvania legislature voted a medal of honor for distinguished services during the Civil War; W. W. Pinkerton, of the Pinkerton Construction company; Frederick Schoff, a manufacturer, who has been prominent in many civic movements in Philadelphia, and Thomas Bromley, Jr., who is a member of the Committee of Seventy, and has been active in a number of reform movements in the Quaker City. General Thayer was among the first to declare that Mr. Tener's connection with the company was entirely honorable. He predicts the ultimate success of the enterprise.

Throughout the several publications care has been exercised to avoid directly charging Mr. Tener with any specific act of wrongdoing, but by insinuating and by linking him with promoters who were identified with the unsuccessful companies taken over by the Public Utilities Corporation, an effort is made to discredit Mr. Tener.

In commenting upon the attack on Mr. Tener the editor of the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, among other things, says: "Mr. Tener says his relations with the company were 'straightforward and honorable in every way.' As far as his friends are concerned his reputation of the slander was scarcely necessary; they know he is an honest man, and they do not question his integrity. But it is just as well that he should denounce the attempt to besmirch his character, as he has done for the information of the people of the state, before whom he is appearing as the Republican nominee for governor."

"As for this bit of sensationalism which has been introduced into the campaign, it is a disgrace to journalism. It is essentially a low-grade political trick, partly intended to attain the meanest of partisan ends and partly to achieve a feat of commercialism of the most despicable character."

Black Hand Methods.

In commenting upon the fact that the newspaper which printed the sensational story solicited orders for the sale of the paper two days in advance of its publication from politicians to have it distributed as a campaign document, the Gazette-Times says: "Instead of publishing its alleged revelations in the usual course of business as a purveyor of news and thus conveying to the public such information as it deemed proper without regard to politics, it served a sort of Black Hand blackmailers' notice upon Senator Penrose that unless he withdrew Mr. Tener within 48 hours it would publish certain exposures to prove the latter's unfitness for the governorship. Aside from the fact that Senator Penrose has neither the power nor the authority to withdraw Mr. Tener and that the miserable creatures making this threat knew Mr. Penrose would do nothing of the sort, the effect of this preliminary publication was to subject Mr. Tener to grave suspicions, without redress or the opportunity to defend himself for two whole days during a critical stage of the state canvass. Here was the real infamy of this wretched sensationalism, though the story as it finally appeared is hardly less shameful in construction."

"The whole affair, however, turns out to be a 'flash in the pan.' There is nothing to show either culpability or wrongdoing, unfitness or dishonesty on Mr. Tener's part."

Upon every hand citizens are denouncing the authors of the attack and the fact has been demonstrated that the unwarranted criticisms have helped rather than hurt Mr. Tener in his canvass for the governorship.

Bitterly resenting the work of the journalistic mud-slingers, Republicans everywhere are evincing a keen interest in the campaign and are determined to emphasize their contempt for the slanderers by rolling up a great vote for Mr. Tener and the full Republican ticket on election day.

From the methods now being resorted to by the Keystone Party managers almost anything may be anticipated in the way of despicable campaigning in the closing days of the canvass. The masked man with stiletto in hand and Mr. Tener has been picked as the victim. Every conceivable form of malice and venom will be employed in the desperate game to elect Berry governor.

These men recognize the strength of Mr. Tener with the people and they are driven to desperation and thugery in their mad attempts to stem the tide of popular sentiment that is sweeping Mr. Tener on to victory.

The Ameer Was Thorough.

There were some interesting episodes in the life of Sir Charles Euan-Smith. Once in the market place of an Afghan town he was fired at by a native. He lodged a complaint with the ameer, who appeared to take no notice of the incident, merely remarking, "That's all right." Sir Charles complained again and met with the same reply. He still thought that the ameer was treating a serious matter with less consideration than it deserved, but thought it advisable to say no more on the subject. About a week afterward he was invited by the ameer to ride with him. They rode for some distance outside the town, and they passed gibbet after gibbet. At length Sir Charles said, "Your highness has been busy of late." "Oh, no," replied the ameer; "they are your little lot." He had seized all the members of the would be assassin's family and hanged every one of them.

To Husband and Wife.

Preserve sacredly the privacies of your own house, your married state and your heart. Let no father or mother or sister or brother ever presume to come between you or share the joys or sorrows that belong to you two alone.

With mutual help build your quiet world, not allowing your dearest earthly friends to be the confidant of aught that concerns your domestic peace. Let moments of alienation, if they occur, be healed at once. Never, no, never, speak of it outside, but to each other confess, and all will come out right. Never let the morrow's sun still find you at variance. Renew and renew your vow. It will do you good, and thereby your minds will grow together contented in that love which is stronger than death, and you will be truly one.—National Magazine.

Two Dimensional Vision.

Most people do not know that they ought to be very thankful for having both eyes in one plane instead of having them one on each side of the head. If the latter obtained no one could tell that an object had more than two dimensions until experience and the sense of touch educated the brain to it. Any one can try it for himself. Shut one eye and look at different objects. They appear flat. With binocular vision two views of each object are obtained and neither is exactly like the other, so the idea of depth comes in.

The most easily shown example of the difference is as follows: Take a ring and hold it about two feet from the eye. With one eye closed it will take at least five trials to thrust a pencil through the ring, whereas with both eyes open it can be done on the first trial.

All animals with eyes on opposite sides of the head labor under this disadvantage, as do all insects. It is called two dimensional vision, as the idea of depth is not possible. All this is on account of the image thrown on the retina of the eye being in only two dimensions.—Philadelphia Press.

CHARLES D. NORTON.

President's Secretary Who Went to Chicago to Register.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Charles Dyer Norton, secretary to President Taft, arrived here and registered to demonstrate that he is still a Chicagoan.

The secretary put in a busy day, attending to affairs of personal business in his office in the Rookery building.

He emphasized the importance of the fact that the report of the tariff commission, organized at the instigation of the Chicago Association of Commerce, will be first made public at a banquet here on the night of Dec. 3.

$3,820,000 ROCKEFELLER GIFT.

Donor Aims to Widen Scope of Medical Research Institute.

New York, Oct. 18.—Better to encourage the purposes of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research and to maintain and develop its new hospital, which is free to all and is designed to observe and treat rare and selected diseases, John D. Rockefeller has made an additional gift of $3,820,000 in securities to the endowment of the institute.

This makes the total income bearing endowment of the institute $6,420,000 and the total amount of Mr. Rockefeller's gifts to the institution, including lands and buildings and earlier gifts for medical research, $8,240,000.

The hospital, which will receive its first patients on Thursday, in conjunction with the laboratory will utilize every agency of modern science in the study and treatment of selected diseases, in the expectation that such work will cure and point the way to discoveries that will be of universal benefit.

TEACHER BREAKS NECK.

Killed by Fall Downstairs With Lamp In Hand.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 18.—Miss Margaret Davis, a teacher in St. Peter's parochial school, York and Van Vorst streets, Jersey City, failed to report for duty in her classroom, and the Rev. Father Bernard Kenny went to her home to inquire about her. Failing to find her in the priest feared that something had happened and made a search of the house.

He found Miss Davis dead with a broken neck at the bottom of the cellar stairs. A lamp was clutched in her right hand. The police believe that Miss Davis accidentally tripped on the stairs.

MORMONS INVADE JERSEY.

Colony in Newark Said to Be Sending Out Missionaries.

Orange, N. J., Oct. 18.—Christian ministers of Orange are agitated over the report that Mormon missionaries are at work in this city. The authority for the report is the Rev. John O. Sparrow, pastor of the First Methodist church, who says that he heard the missionaries talking in a house where he visited.

He asserts that there is a colony of Mormons in Newark and that they are sending out missionaries.

MEAN BURGLARS, THESE!

Keal Family Watchdog After Getting $95.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Burglars visited the home of Bernard Levinson and, after stealing $95 from Mr. Levinson's trousers, took away the family watchdog.

Mr. Levinson is a merchant. He and his wife and his brother and his wife, were the occupants of the house. The burglars visited the rooms in which the brothers were sleeping, ransacked the dresser and got away, the dog failing to arouse the family.

Woodcarvers of Burma.

The woodcarvers of Burma are the most skilled in the world. They select and cut the best logs along the Irrawaddy river in the dry season, and these are thrown into the shrunken stream. There they lie until the freshets of the rainy season lift them and bear them down to the populous cities below.

Then huge elephants are employed to drag the heavy logs from the stream and take them to the saw-mills. They are then worked up into timbers suitable for the woodcarvers. The carvers use the figure of Buddha or some other emblem concerning the Buddhist worship in the greater part. The details are worked out in a careful way.

Sterns of boats are carved in an elaborate manner, and some of them would be worth a fortune in this country. The prow of the boat is usually ornamented with a figurehead of very elaborate carving. The art of woodcarving is handed down in the families in Burma, the children being taught by their fathers. — Wichita Eagle.

Trial of a Dead Man.

Mr. Christopher Hare's book on "Charles de Bourbon, High Constable of France," mentions the strange trial which succeeded the close of that turbulent career. He had died in conquering Rome, which his leaderless soldiers straightway sacked. For this crime it was necessary to find a scapegoat, so "on July 26, 1527, in the presence of King Francis I., on his seat of justice, assisted by the peers of France and the assembled chambers, Jean de Surie, first usher of the court, called Charles de Bourbon three times—at the bar of the parliament, at the marble table and at the marble steps—and then reported that the said de Bourbon had not appeared. The sentence was drawn up, then solemnly read out: 'The comestable de France, dead, was condemned, his goods returned to the crown, and the door of his palace by the Louvre was painted yellow.'

A Realistic Picture.

A still life by Jan van Huysen in the museum at The Hague was injured, but it is believed that the perpetrator was neither vandal nor thief. The picture represents a basket of fruit on which a number of insects have gathered. On a pale yellow apple, which is the centerpiece in the cluster of fruit, is a large fly, painted so true to nature, so say the officials of the gallery, that the canvas was injured by some one who endeavored to "shoot" it and brought his cane or hand too close to the canvas. "A tribute to the painter's genius," says the letter recording the fact, "for which the work had to suffer."

The Wherefore.

"Why are you so sore on your congressman?"

"When we called on him in Washington last session he made a speech to us instead of taking us out to lunch."—Kansas City Journal.

High Praise.

Frost—Are the descriptions of scenery in Bestseller's novel good? Snow—Great! The best I ever skipped.—Harper's Bazar.

Force of Association.

"How frigid that girl's manner is!"

"No wonder. She is the daughter of a millionaire ice-man." — Baltimore American.

To ease another's heartache is to forget one's own.—Abraham Lincoln.
