Regret over the defeat of C. C. Pratt is heard on all sides as his character as a man and his record as Congressman were above reproach. His defeat was due to the endorsement of Kipp by the managers of the Keystone movement. Many Republicans in their eagerness to vote for Mr. Berry for Governor, forgot to place their mark opposite the name of C. C. Pratt, who was defeated by about 600 votes.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES RESUMED.

Religious services were resumed in many of the churches, throughout the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, last Sunday. Pulpits which had, for the time being, relegated the glorious gospel of salvation to the background, again returned to the Word of God for their texts and laid aside for the nonce the yellow journals whence they drew their pre-election themes, and from whose pages they got their sermons, material and inspiration. Church-goers can again occupy their pews with the assurance that they will hear the old-fashioned gospel preached.

"When the Devil was sick, the devil a monk would be, when the devil was well, the devil a monk was he," runs an old proverb. We would like to know if these men, who induced the clergy to convert their pulpits into political rostrums, will be as faithful attendants upon divine services when sensational topics will not be the rule,—when the annual subscription lists are passed around, when pews are offered for sale,—when special offerings are to be received—as they were when self interest prompted them to frequent the house of God. Let us wait and see!

FAITH THAT SAVES.

I believe in my job.—Rev. Charles Stelzle. The kind of faith that Dr. Stelzle expresses here is, in a very practical sense, saving faith, according to the Harrisburg Patriot. It saves men and women from failure and insures success. The man who does not believe in his job will not be faithful to it nor loyal to his master, whether the job be to win souls or to mend shoes; whether the master of the job be a man or his Maker.

The man who does not believe in his job is an unprofitable servant, whether he is working for himself or another. He does his work so indifferently that he is sure to lose his job. If working for another he is the first to go when any one has to go. If in business for himself, he is among the first to be overwhelmed when hard times come.

If he believes in his job and does it so well that he shows he is capable of holding a better one, he is sure to get it. There is always a job for efficient and willing hands. This is not a matter of luck, of influence, or favoritism. It is business; it is inevitable. There are practically no exceptions. If the man who believes in his job and is faithful and efficient in it, has an employer who is too blind to see his worth, or too mean and selfish to acknowledge it, some other employer will recognize it and his turn will come.

In exalted station or menial position, it is the same. The lady who does not believe in her job, who does not use her opportunities to noble ends; who is frittering away her life in social frivolities, is not really any happier than the unfaithful servant of whom she complains and who does not believe in her job either. When mistress and maid both believe in their jobs they stay together for years, perhaps for a lifetime, mutually helpful, each honoring the other.

A sure recipe for happiness is: Believe in your job, do your level best in it, so as to be ready for the better one when it comes.

—In a hurry—use the Bell.

BISHOP PADDOCK'S REMARKABLE CAREER.

Advanced From Sheer Merit And Not From Favoritism—Will Be at Grace Church Next Tuesday.

The Right Reverend Robert Lewis Paddock, D. D., who is to be one of the speakers at the meeting of the Archdiocese of Scranton, in Grace church, Honesdale, next Tuesday, comes of a race of Bishops, but was himself appointed Bishop of Eastern Oregon not because his father had been Bishop in the then territory of Washington, or because his uncle had been the predecessor of the great Phillips Brooks as Bishop of Massachusetts, but because as soon as he began his work in the ministry, he showed qualities of most remarkable energy and originality. His very first work indicated the estimate in which he was held by his fellow-students, for they chose him to be the national field-secretary of the Church Students' Missionary Society of America, a position which involved visiting the principal colleges and universities in the country and addressing the students. But it was when in charge of a church in the lower East Side in New York city that he startled the country by a single-handed defiance of the police department because of their heartless countenance of the shameful traffic in human beings which was going on within the limits of his parish. Powerful helpers soon came to his aid, notably Bishop Potter, and the result was a political overturn in New York city.

But the most remarkable achievement of the young clergyman was in taking what seemed a hopelessly run-down and down town parish, the Church of the Holy Apostles, the corner of Ninth Avenue and 28th street, New York, and the electrifying into it new life. From the sleepy shipping place of a mere handful, it became the center of a most varied and beneficial institutional and social activity. Clubs of all sorts, homes for working girls, classes for self-improvement, civic organizations for the training of men into better citizenship were started and vigorously maintained and increased by this tireless and most resourceful and consecrated leader. And the old church filled up with worshippers. A large staff of men and women were added to help. A real influence for good was exerted in a quarter of the city which was most difficult to work in. From this career of noteworthy usefulness it was not strange that such a man should have been chosen by the House of Bishops to undertake the most difficult work in sight, that of organizing and building up the new missionary jurisdiction of Eastern Oregon.

NECROLOGY.

Business was at a standstill in Dickson City while the entire population of the place paid homage to the memory of Albert Henne, who died suddenly while hunting near Preston Park last week. Services were held in St. Thomas' church at 9:30 o'clock, Rev. Father Geraghty celebrating a solemn high mass of requiem. Rev. Father Smolter and Rev. Father Cox were deacon and sub-deacon, respectively. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in the borough and the floral offerings were many and beautiful. They comprised casket bouquets from the E. Robinson and Stegmaier breweries; cross and anchor, Mrs. O'Leary and Mrs. Melody; casket bouquet, Charles Cummings; casket bouquet, pupils of the Dickson City High school; bouquet, teachers of the Dickson City High school; bouquet, Elmer Slocum. The pall-bearers were: Peter Munley, James Okey, Frank Weiland, John Murphy, John Betzel and Walter Scott. The flower-bearers were: Joseph Frayne, Robert Harr, Chas. Cummings, Frederick Breen, Frank O'Connor and Clair McPherson.

Aaron Powell, aged sixty-six years, and a former resident of Honesdale, died in Jersey City Sunday.

Ray B. Deming, aged 19 years, youngest son of T. D. Deming, of Olyphant avenue, died Saturday, October 22. He was born in Mt. Pleasant township, Wayne county, August 16, 1891. His parents resided in Mt. Pleasant until April 1, 1909, when they moved to Scranton. Ray B. Deming secured employment with the Lackawanna Railroad company as a clerk in the freight department and was on the way to more responsible positions in the service of that corporation when death cut his activities short. He was a young man of strong character, uncompromising in the right. Wherever he was known he was respected. He is survived by his parents and one brother, Edwin A. Deming, of Scranton. The funeral services were conducted at the residence by Rev. Charles M. Olmstead, D. D., pastor of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church. The body was taken to Pleasant Mount for burial near the spot where the young man was born. Six members of the Sunday school class which he attended, acted as pall-bearers.

Mrs. Lizzie P. Starnes (nee Scudder) died Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Rockwell, 315 Fifteenth street. She had been visiting at the Rockwell home since last June, her residence being Elwarda, Chicago, Ill. She was 73 years and ten months of age. She was born in Pottsville, N. Y. The immediate cause of her death was angina pectoris. A sister, Mrs. Charles H. Rockwell, Honesdale, a son, Vance Starnes, Bethany, and a daughter, Mrs. Haley, Elwarda, Chicago, Ill., survive to mourn her departure. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Rockwell home, Rev. W. H. Swift, D. D., officiating. Sincere sympathy is felt for the family in their hour of sore trial.

Moonbeam! Moonbeam!

For three hours Wednesday night the moon was eclipsed. For an hour, beginning at 6:55 o'clock, the moon was completely hidden by the earth's shadow.

The office of the dead was said at 10 o'clock and at 10:30 Mass was sung.

Father Peter Christ, of South Side, Scranton, said the mass, and Monsignor T. F. Coffey, Carbondale, spoke a few eulogistic words.

The deacon of the mass was Father William Brehle, Pittston; sub-deacon, Father Charles Von Welden, Luzerne borough; master of ceremonies, Father Lewis Schmitt, Nippanose Valley; Rev. Charles Goebel will sing the Libera. The benedictus was sung by all the priests.

Thanksgiving Put Into Practice.

"Home is the natural objective point for everyone at the Thanksgiving season," says Margaret E. Sangster in Woman's Home Companion for November. "This is why the stranger far from kinsfolk and familiar friends is especially lonely amid general merry making. Widen the circle so that it may include at your dinner table your boy's chum who can not cross the continent to be with his own people on the happy day. Let your daughter invite from college two or three of her girl friends to share Thanksgiving with her.

"Not long ago a man told me that when first he left home to become a clerk in a department store in Philadelphia nothing has touched him as the thoughtful kindness of his employer's wife, who never forgot to invite him to her home on holidays, assuring him that he was as welcome at her Thanksgiving dinner as if he had been a boy of her own.

"There are ways of widening the circle without necessarily going into the highways and by-ways and bringing in the halt and the blind. If there is among your friends a washerwoman who works hard to feed and clothe her children, a seamstress whose earnings barely cover her needs, if there are orphan children in whom you take an interest, see to it that you share Thanksgiving with them in an unobtrusive way of sending good cheer. I say, intentionally, among your friends. It is a barren life where sympathy is confined to a single set of people and unless we have friends among all classes and conditions we are to be pitied for our narrowness."

THE DOCTOR'S QUESTION.

Much Sickness Due to Bowel Disorders

A doctor's first question when consulted by a patient is, "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that 98 per cent of illness is attended with inactive bowels and torpid liver, and that this condition must be removed gently and thoroughly before health can be restored.

Regular Orderlies are a positive, pleasant and safe remedy for constipation and bowel disorders in general. We are so certain of their great curative value that we promise to return the purchaser's money in every case when they fail to produce entire satisfaction.

Regular Orderlies are eaten like candy, they act quietly, and have a soothing, strengthening, healing influence on the entire intestinal tract. They do not purge, gripe, cause nausea, flatulence, excessive looseness, diarrhoea or other annoying effect. They are especially good for children, weak persons or old folks. Two sizes, 25c. and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store.
