Nuggets of News from Alert Citizen Correspondents.

STEENE.

Special to The CITIZEN.
Procrastination is the Thief of Time.
 Steene, Pa., Nov. 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Wood returned to their home last week, after spending ten days with friends at Plymouth and Wilkes-Barre. Mr. and Mrs. Wood say their visit was more on business than visiting, and say they have found their ideal in an auto. Mr. Wood will build a garage large enough to hold at least three machines: his own, Mr. Denny's, Swingle's and Hogenkamp's.
 Messrs. Millard and Milton Hogenkamp are spending this week with their brother, John, at Wilkes-Barre.

Some of our farmers wouldn't be satisfied if they had six months of nice fall weather in which to get ready for the winter. The writer, in conversation with a farmer near Waymart, Saturday, said that he hoped for a couple of weeks of nice weather yet, as most of his potatoes were in the ground yet, and most of his apples still cling to the trees. About ten minutes later he met another farmer that owns a nice little bay horse, and while the weather is nice and the sun shining all day, that horse can be seen standing in his stall well blanketed, but as sure as there comes a blustery windy day, like last Saturday, that farmer will worry because his work is behind, and the harness goes on the horse hitched to the heavy wagon, then starts out on a tour of inspection, which will end up in calling his neighbor out in the storm to help him rather his wagon-box full of wood that may be scattered by the roadside. Ask J. Smith for the truthfulness of these words.
 Merchant Dimond has given up the egg business and gone into the sweetmeat and candy business.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

SOUTH CLINTON.

Special to The CITIZEN.
Death Mrs. Jolly Birthday Party.
 South Clinton, Pa., Nov. 17.—A very sad affair occurred at the home of William Carpenter on Saturday evening. A jolly company of young people had gathered in honor of their daughter, Florence's, fifteenth birthday. Mr. Rounds, of Waymart, was visiting the grandfather, Mr. Curtis, and from all appearances Mr. Rounds seemed to be in the best of spirits. He took part in some of the games with the young people. He left the room to clear his throat and was taken with a violent coughing spell. He became unconscious and in a few minutes was dead. Dr. Noble was summoned, but life was extinct. He was over 80 years of age and a well respected citizen of Waymart. The party was brought to a sad ending. All returned to their homes never to forget the sad evening.
 The choir will meet on Saturday evening to prepare special music for Sunday morning when the pastor will preach a special Thanksgiving sermon.

USWICK & LAKEVILLE.

BEACH LAKE.

Special to The CITIZEN.
 Beach Lake, Pa., Nov. 17.—Some of our farmers have been caught napping. Consequently, while they expected yet to have good weather, some of them have their corn in the field, rye unsown, potatoes in the ground, and some apples yet ungathered. Still there is yet a ray of hope for some of the work being done, for we have not yet had our Indian Summer, which never fails coming this month. So we are expecting after the Teachers' Institute, which convenes this week, we will have some good weather.
 Misses Mable and Bessie Decker are spending a few days with their parents.
 Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dexter, of Honesdale, took dinner at the home of Amasa Keeves, Friday last. They took their daughter, Miss Mable, home with them, so she can have a visit with her parents previous to the institute.
 Mrs. June Warfield, of Equinunk, is making her nephews, Fred and Deibert McIntire, of this place, and Leslie McIntire, of White Mills, a visit.
 Olf Treverton, of Carbondale, made his parents a flying visit last week. His mother, Mrs. Wm. Treverton, is in poor health.
 Shephard Garrett is under the doctor's care and is considered critically ill.
 We are sorry Mrs. E. T. Wheeler's visit should be marred by poor health. We learn she is homesick. We all think there is no place like home and especially in case of sickness.
 Mrs. J. P. Budd is again on the gain after one of her bad asthmatic spells.
 J. Owen Oliver is the new mail carrier. We wish him good luck in his undertaking.

MINE HOST A. C. HENNE DEAD.

Prominent Dickson City Hotelman Succumbs to Heart Failure on Hunting Trip.
 Aubert C. Henne, the well known hotelman of Dickson City, dropped dead while hunting near Preston Park, in this county, Friday.
 He, together with Constable James Oakley, also of Dickson, had been there since Wednesday morning hunting rabbits. They were boarding at the home of Charles Hempstead and started out Friday for rabbits. Henne had not been very successful in the first two days' hunting and sent out some boys to beat the bush for rabbits.
 All of a sudden a rabbit shot out into the clearing where Henne stood and when it got about thirty feet from him he let fly a charge of shot. The rabbit leaped high in the air, landed on the snow ten feet away and lay still.
 Henne rushed over to pick it up. Just as he reached out his hand to grab it, the rabbit gave a leap. As it did, Henne fell over on the little animal. He gave two or three gasps and was dead.
 Whether the exertion in rushing to the spot or the surprise at seeing the apparently dead rabbit leap was responsible for the sudden attack of heart failure will never be known.
 The body was removed to the Hempstead home and there examined by Dr. P. L. Merriman, of Lake Como, four miles away, who pronounced death due to heart disease.
 Henne was only forty-two years old and apparently in the best of health, having enjoyed the days in the woods with his friend Oakley.
 Formerly Mr. Henne ran a hotel on South Main street, West Scranton, and was popular and enjoyed a wide acquaintance in this part of the state. He leaves a widow and two daughters and a son, Johanna, Geraldine and Albert.

 Floyd Bruce and Wm. Lake made a business trip to Hancock on Monday.
 Rev. Mr. Cody, Bethany, will preach at the M. E. church at this place on Sunday, November 20.

THE PRESS AGENT.
 Jack Reynolds dropped in for a visit. Jack Reynolds is leading a show. His grammar is something exquisite; Remarkable, too, is its flow. His manner, I swear, is the blandest. That ever I've yet seen unfurled, As he said: "We've the biggest and grandest And shapeliest show in the world." Oh, what do you think of the tariff, And what are your views on T. R.? And think you the people would care if Joe Cannon continued as czar? He sat like an image of marble While at him these queries I hurried. Then said—his reply I don't garble—"It's the biggest, best show in the world."
 Then he rose to his feet, hand extended, And said: "I must hurry from thee. The Shuberts on me have depended For years for their publicity. We've one hundred girls in the chorus— It's splendidly, buxomly gifted. Their voices are rich and sonorous. It's the biggest, best show in the world."

The Secret.
 The secret of winter eggs lies not in newfangled recipe or nostrum, but in trap nests or swinging roosts, but to two very practical considerations—making the hens scratch for what they get and in feeding them such rations as will most readily supply the ingredients contained in the eggs which they are expected to lay—namely, bran, oats, a little oilmeal, tankage, clover and alfalfa, with grit for grinding, lime for eggshells and enough corn to provide the yolks. For the service which she is expected to perform the hen needs a balanced ration, as does the dairy cow, and neither should be expected to do much on a ration fit for the steer in the feeding lot.

"Back to the Land."
 In the enthusiasm of the very wholesome and commendable "back to the land" movement which is just now receiving a good deal of attention it may be in point to suggest that a large measure of success will hardly be achieved in a tillage of the soil or in horticultural lines by those who through lack of brains, initiative or energy have made a dismal failure of every other business enterprise in which they have embarked. The returns from agricultural and allied pursuits are generous, but only in proportion to intelligent, persistent and well directed effort. The realm of agriculture is no place for weaklings or incompetents.
