

STILL WANT LEWIS

Left His Fiancee on Eve of Wedding.

HE DISAPPEARED IN 1905.

Miss Ellen Enright, a Trained Nurse, Is Not Sure That Owner of Trunk Is the Man She Was to Marry Five Years Ago.

New York, Nov. 22.—The search for William Lewis, the man who is wanted by the police for an explanation as to how a body came to be sealed up in his trunk and left for eight years in the basement of a tenement, has led to Ridgefield, Conn. Miss Enright, a trained nurse, is living there with her sister. She was engaged to marry a William Lewis who disappeared Jan. 10, 1905, the day before they were to have been married.

Miss Enright said the William Lewis she knew was a salesman for a cut glass house. She did not know him as early as 1902, when the murder of the man in the trunk is supposed to have been committed.

"He never told me that he had been a waiter," she said, "and I don't believe he ever was one. And as for any evidence of any irregularity in his conduct, I had no reason for believing that there had been any."

Miss Enright said Lewis had not given her any intimation that he was not going to be on hand for the wedding. At that time Miss Enright lived in Brooklyn, and for two weeks she and her family looked for him to reappear. When he did not they searched for him, but they heard nothing of him.

A picture of the William Lewis who is supposed to have owned the trunk in which the body was found was shown to Miss Enright. She said that it did not look like the William Lewis she had known.

"There is a slight resemblance about the mouth," she said, "but that is the only likeness I can see."

"The only thing in which the two men were alike," she said, "is that they both vanished."

HIS TROUBLES IN A BUNCH.

At Mother's Grave Hears of Death of Two Other Persons.

Middletown, N. Y., Nov. 22.—While Lewis A. Newton, a former alderman of this city, was attending the funeral of his mother, Mrs. A. C. Burtis, at West Town he received word of the death of his father-in-law, Adam Brandt, who dropped dead at Unionville.

A few moments later, before Alderman Newton had left the cemetery, he received a message announcing that William Jaegers, a seventeen-year-old boy who boarded with his father-in-law at Unionville, had been accidentally shot and killed by a companion while hunting.

On returning from the funeral Mr. Newton learned that his stepfather, A. C. Burtis, was dangerously ill at the hospital in this city.

BIG CHURCH BURNED.

Brooklyn Edifice and One Home Destroyed by Flames.

New York, Nov. 22.—Twenty minutes' delay in sounding an alarm gave a fire in the chapel of the Thoop Avenue Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, such headway that the chapel, the church and a two story house at No. 302 Thoop avenue were destroyed and 500 tenants in nearby apartments were driven into the street.

The Thoop Avenue church, at Thoop and Willoughby avenues, was one of the most ornamental in Brooklyn. Recently the congregation of the Tiphereth Israel offered $100,000 for the church property, but the trustees held out for $150,000.

KAISER AGAINST ALCOHOL.

Warns Naval Cadets, Saying a Fighter Needs Strong Nerves.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—The kaiser in opening the new naval academy at Flensburg, Prussia, delivered another of those moral speeches which are characteristic of him at times.

He warned the naval cadets against the use of alcohol and remarked that "a fighter needs strong nerves" and that "the nation which consumes the least alcohol will be found in the forefront when it comes to the business of war."

Cholera Epidemic Exaggerated.

Rome, Nov. 22.—In a speech opening the session of the municipal council Mayor Nathan complained that interested hotel keepers abroad, especially in America and Switzerland, had given currency to exaggerated reports of the cholera epidemic in Italy, thus serving to detract from the success of the festivities in 1911 in celebration of the proclamation of Rome as the capital of United Italy.

Taft Is Due Today.

Washington, Nov. 22.—President Taft, who is on board the armored cruiser Tennessee, will land in this country today from his trip to Panama. A wireless dispatch was received at the navy department saying that the Tennessee, accompanied by her convoy, the Montana, would pass into Hampton Roads this morning.

PREMIER BRIAND.

French Leader Who Suffers From Attack of Royalist.

Paris, Nov. 22.—Premier Briand shows the marks made in the attack upon him during the national ceremonies in connection with the dedication of a statue to the memory of Jules Ferry. The premier was walking with President Fallieres when he was struck twice in the face by a royalist. The premier was not seriously hurt.

The vast crowd which had gathered in the garden set upon the premier's assailant, and only prompt intervention by the guards saved him from being beaten to death.

The man was taken before a magistrate and gave the name of La Cour. He said he was a member of the executive committee of the Camelots du Roi, an organization of young royalists, and that he wished to strike at the republic in the person of Briand.

The Camelots du Roi met and unanimously elected La Cour vice president of the association in token of their sympathy and admiration for his act.

MRS. SCHENCK IS SMILING.

Appears in Court Well Dressed and Wearing Jewels.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Laura Schenck, wife of the millionaire pork packer John O. Schenck, whom she is accused of attempting to poison, was taken into court to plead to the indictment found against her Friday.

Attired in the latest style and bedecked with jewelry, she appeared unconcerned and nodded and smiled to friends.

She was not, however, asked to plead, her attorneys saying they would file five special pleas Wednesday.

Prosecuting Attorney Handlan gave notice that if the indictment is sustained he will ask that the trial be fixed for Dec. 19.

FREE TURKEYS FOR POLICE.

Anonymous Contributor Will Pay Nearly $8,000 For Them.

New York, Nov. 22.—Everybody connected with the police department in the borough of Manhattan received one turkey free today. The person giving the 5,300 turkeys told Commissioner Crosey that he must remain anonymous.

If the turkeys average ten pounds apiece at 15 cents a pound it is estimated that they will cost $7,950.50. They were taken in vans to headquarters and to the station houses.

The fowls were large, and an endeavor was made to have them reasonably uniform in weight. An inspector did not receive a larger one than a plain patrolman except by happy chance.

IN THE REALM OF FASHION

Smart Costume For Young Girl.

A girlish suit for everyday wear is shown in this little sketch. Checked worsted in blue and white was used for the making, trimmed with plain blue to match. The coat is particularly well shaped, the back being very attractive with its broad box plait and crushed belt extending on each side from the underarm seams to the box plait. The skirt is seven gore, plaited. A girl of twelve years will require:

5 yards material 44 inches, 75 cents...	$3.75
1 yard blue material 44 inches, 75 cents...	75
4 yards silk for lining, 15 cents.....	2.20
Canvas.....	40
Findings.....	30
Total.....	$7.40

Belted Coats.

Belted coats are extremely popular. A charming afternoon street costume developed in red brown broadcloth exploited this suggestion. The skirt fitted snugly about the hips, the upper part of it being cut with a deep point in front, while the lower part was gored and joined beneath a stitched band. This band in turn had a stitched strap of self material. The back was laid in a double inverted plait. The blouse portion had the scant fullness below the bust incorporated in several small plaits that were pushed toward the front, and it was joined to a peplum about nine inches long by a rather wide machine stitched belt.

The opening in front was diagonal, in line with the right rever, and the fastening was made with velvet covered buttons that were mound shaped. The revers were cut separate from the collar and square. Between them and the collar was a pointed section of velvet, the revers having previously been gathered to suit its measurements. The sleeves fitted into the armcye without any fullness and were finished at the wrists with deep gauntlet cuffs, from which fell a frill of soft mull.

LIKE DINNER JACKETS ARE THE NEW COATS

Waistcoats of Fur Are Fashionable and Very Smart.

As regards tailor mades, despite the predicted fancy for rattines we shall see these mostly of serge, bure and at times of cloth. The general style of the jacket may best be compared to a man's dinner jacket, but it may button either perpendicularly down the front, down one side or diagonally across the front. Those which button from the collar right down to the foot of the basque appear the most comfortable and the most suited to the winter season, but with an open fronted jacket the fashion will be to wear a waistcoat, the smartest being those in some short haired fur or in deer-skin. This, of course, can be replaced with something lighter when the spring season comes around.

The repetition of the same arrangements of panels, tuckings and trimmings on jacket as on skirt, which is a notable detail in the present fashionable tailor mades, is a matter which calls for considerable skill in the adjustment. For instance, many skirts are made with a species of false hem on the side, producing the effect of revers. A similar revers is repeated on the basque of the jacket, but it must be carefully proportioned, that on the jacket being smaller in every way than that on the skirt. This sort of thing is comparatively easy for the experienced tailor who studies out his model in cotton material to get all such nice points right, but it wants some thought on the part of the less experienced. Smaller difficulty will be found in repeating panels of embroidery or of plaits on skirt and jacket.

There Was No Applause.

Just before the operation began the operating surgeon said to the students, "Now, gentlemen, no applause, if you please."

When he was conveying the patient declared that that warning remained his most vivid impression of the struggle.

"I wondered then how any human being could have the heart to applaud an act that had brought another face to face with death, but later I understood. On account of heart trouble they did not dare administer an anesthetic, so I was conscious of everything, and in spite of the pain I realized that the surgeon was doing a mighty skillful piece of work. No wonder the students wanted to applaud. They were justified in it.

"Some years ago they would have clapped the house down after an exhibition of that kind," an old hospital attendant told me, "but nowadays doctors discourage any such demonstration."—New York Sun.

Forgery in Excelsis.

The most remarkable literary forgery on record was perpetrated in 1870 on Michael Charles, a French scientist of European reputation. Charles, who was in his dotage, put inside within a few years from one Vrain-Lucas no fewer than 27,000 autographs. A. M. Brody tells the story in his "Chute on Alibi." The beginning with a supposed correspondence between the scientist and Pascal Vrain-Lucas, who had fabricated letters of Jules Verne, Montaigne and La Bruyere. Before he had finished M. Charles became the possessor of letters in French and written on paper made in France, of Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Mary Magdalene and even of Lazarus after his resurrection." Vrain-Lucas was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and among other forged manuscripts from his pen there were produced in court letters from Alexander the Great, Herod, Pompey, Judas Iscariot, Sappho, Pontius Pilate and Joan of Arc!

Her Diplomacy.

"You could make my future brighter," he said, looking at her longingly. "I could say the same," she replied, looking down. "How?" he asked eagerly. "Well, an engagement ring with a diamond in it would help some," she admitted.—Boston Herald.

Turn About.

In a certain southern city the colored servants, as a rule, go to their own homes at night. The cook in the family of a clergyman not only does this, but of late has arrived at the rectory too late to cook breakfast. Hence her mistress lately told her that for each breakfast missed there would be a reduction in her weekly wages. Dinah passively assented to this, but next day the mistress heard the maid next door say to her:

"I gets to work when I gets ready."

"How does you manage about de breakfast?"

"Oh, I pays de missus to cook de breakfast."—Housekeeper.

Not at All Necessary.

"What was the cause of the quarrel with your husband?" "I want you to understand, Judge, that when we want to fight we don't have to have a cause."—New York Press.

A sip is the most that mortals are permitted from any goblet of delight.—Alcott.
