

THE WEEK IN WAYNE

WHAT THE FOLKS IN THE SHIRE ARE DOING.

BEACH LAKE.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

Beach Lake, Pa., Dec. 27.—Xmas times, but still some of our neighbors are not having a very happy time. There is so much sickness that it casts a gloom over the place.

The cantata at the M. E. church passed off very pleasantly. Mrs. Seymour, our pastor's wife, spent a good deal of time and energy preparing for it.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Dacker spent Sunday at the former's parents.

R. Van Gorder, Throop, is spending a week with his grandparents.

Lizzie Davey is spending some time with her parents at this place.

Luther Woodley and wife are spending their Xmas with their daughter in Binghamton.

Charlie Weber and bride are expected back from New York in the near future. They will take up their abode with the bride's parents for the present.

The school children are looking forward to a big rest this week during their teacher's absence.

Miss Ira Mitchell will visit her Scranton relatives this week.

Mrs. Emma Wazard is in very poor health and the doctor recommends an operation.

Maud Spry is seriously sick with pneumonia.

The doctor has been telegraphed for again this morning for Delbert McIntire.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler's little son has given his parents a great shock on account of poor health.

STERLING.

Democratic Winter Weather—Enjoyable Xmas Cantata—College Students Home For Holidays. Special to THE CITIZEN.

Sterling, Dec. 26.—The January thaw has not yet struck us and we are all enjoying good, old-fashioned Democratic winter weather.

The Sterling M. E. Sunday school gave a cantata on the evening of the 24th that was very much enjoyed by all. The house was crowded, and it always is on such occasions, and a number were present from a distance. Much credit is due the ones who so thoroughly trained the children, a fact that is usually overlooked.

The superintendent, George Gilpin, received a fine toilet set and Rev. W. E. Webster received a beautiful plush robe, the compliments of the I. O. O. F. Lodge. Just 200 packages of candies were distributed so that would show the size of the school, at least during the holidays. Appropriate exercises were also held at Jericho and Maple Grove.

The following teachers were with us Sunday: Susan Cross, of Moscow; Margaret Howe, of Hollisterville, and Grace Gillner, of La Anna.

Royal and David Cross are home from Cornell University, Earl Cross from University of Pennsylvania; Floyd Cross from Wyoming Seminary; and George Robacker from State College. Ethel Simons and Flossie Bortree are also up from the State Normal School at East Stroudsburg.

J. V. Crevelling, Red Bank, N. J., is a guest at P. W. Gallner's and N. J. Franz at J. E. Cross.

A Farmers' Institute will be held at the Odd Fellows' Hall on Jan. 2 and 3.

LAKEVILLE.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

Lakeville, Pa., Dec. 27.—A big dance here, conducted by A. Goble, on New Year's eve, Saturday, December 31, 1910. It's public. All come.

Hollway Stephens, Scranton, visited his parents, J. W. Stephens and wife last week. He returned Tuesday accompanied by his brother, Lincoln, where he will spend the holiday season.

Ralph Spencer, cigar agent for A. J. Paetzold, Binghamton, N. Y., was the welcome guest of A. Goble, Tuesday night.

M. Welsh, stone mason, Scranton, passed Xmas with his family here.

At Pomona Grange, Butler, Pa., about 1700 delegates from Pennsylvania were present. Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks represented Lakeville Grange. Had a very enjoyable time and returned on Saturday last.

Miss Helen Kelliam left Wednesday for Wilkes-Barre where she has employment.

The oyster supper held at the P. O. S. of A. hall here on Xmas was a grand success both socially and financially. Net proceeds $21.

Mrs. Sophia Nelson, Long Pond, left on Monday last for Brooklyn to visit during the festive season.

Miss Mildred Herwig has recovered from her recent illness. She is able to drive some now.

Ralph Reineke, Jermy, Pa., is visiting friends in this vicinity.

Chester A. James, Long Pond, is spending the holiday season at his home in Brooklyn, N. Y.

News was received on Saturday by Charles A. Daniels that his wife who is at the State hospital, had taken pleurisy and lay in a most critical condition. He left for that place on the earliest train and found her slightly improved. We sincerely hope she may soon recover so as to be able to be brought to her home here.

Mary and Sammie Miller, of Hawley, came home on Monday last to spend the week's vacation.

Commissioner Madden, Newfoundland, was in this place recently on official business.

Mr. C. Schwarting is employed at Rocky Glen, near Scranton, for the winter.

Katherine Daniels, of Stroudsburg, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Daniels.

Arthur Ammerman, Maple Lake, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Daniels.

Frank Sheeley, Hawley, is spending his holiday vacation at his home place, Lakeville.

Mrs. George Hazelton, Arlington, visited her people here over Christmas.

USWICK & LAKEVILLE.

M. E. Xmas Tree Well Attended—Absentees Remembered—Oyster Supper Nets $20.00—Breezy Personal Gossip. Special to THE CITIZEN.

Uswick, Pa., December 27.—The Christmas tree and entertainment at the M. E. church was well attended and the children recited very nicely considering the short time they had to prepare their recitations. The minister received a purse containing $5.75 and each one of the Sunday school received a nice box of Bonbons; even those who remained at home each received their Christmas box, and we wish to say "Thank you," to those who were so mindful of us in our absence. The oyster supper was well attended considering the inclement weather. The proceeds were about $20.

Mrs. John Reer, Arlington, is critically sick with heart trouble. We sincerely hope that she will soon recover.

Mr. John Dopp has been carrying the mail the past week while Mr. Reer was caring for his wife.

The Uswick and Bone Ridge schools are having a week holiday vacation.

Miss Violet Crane, who has been spending Xmas at her home here, returns to Scranton today.

Miss Evelyn Pennell returned from her visit at Ariel on Thursday.

Conrad Reineke, Ralph Reineke and Anthony Kostige, Hawley, are spending their holiday vacation at their homes at Uswick.

Max Baesler, New York, is the guest of his uncle, Eugene Stroh for the holidays.

SOUTH CLINTON.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

South Clinton, Pa., December 28. The Christmas exercises held in the South Clinton Baptist church were a grand success. Every seat in the house was taken. Those who took part deserve great credit.

The funeral services of Mrs. Carrie Burdick, wife of William Burdick, was held in the Clinton Central Baptist church. Rev. H. J. Baker conducted the services. She was a member of the South Clinton Baptist church, and has lived in Clinton township all her life, excepting the last two years, when she resided in Carbondale, where she died. She was sick only a few hours, death resulting from apoplexy. Interment was made in the Clinton cemetery.

Ora Lee and Floyd Carpenter, Carbondale, spent Christmas with their parents at this place.

The entertainment given by the school was a very enjoyable event. All present pronounced it very good.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Swingle spent Saturday at Ariel.

Pastor Baker will preach a New Year's sermon next Sunday. Subject, "The Duty of Making Good Resolutions." Everybody is welcome. Bible school at 10 a. m.; preaching services at 11 a. m.; C. E. meeting Sunday evening at 7:30, topic, "Untrodden Ways." Sherman Smith, the president, will have charge.

Owing to the Christmas program which was rendered on Sunday evening, Pastor Baker preached a Christmas sermon Wednesday evening instead of conducting the regular prayer meeting.

Amos Geer and family spent Christmas with his parents at Waymart.

CENTERVILLE.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

Centerville, Pa., December 29.—Robert Marshall and daughter Susie, spent Friday and Saturday in Scranton.

Mary M. Lane, Greeley, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lane.

Margaret Marshall, who spent the past four weeks in Scranton, returned to her home on Saturday, December 24, to spend Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Uri Everetts, Scranton, visited the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Becker, Christmas Day.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor, Dunmore, spent Christmas at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Denver.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Scally on Christmas Day, a young daughter.

We are sorry to hear of the illness of Mrs. R. Marshall, of this place, and all hope for her speedy recovery.

Walter Van Lewen and Mark Swingle, Ariel, were callers on Centerville friends last Sunday.

ARIEL.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

Ariel, Pa., December 29.—Christmas passed very pleasantly at this place. Mrs. James Swingle, of Lakeview Farm, had a family gathering Christmas Day, her children, all but one, being present.

George Bennett, Wilkes-Barre,

spent Christmas with his niece, Mrs. Brunson.

Messrs. Brunson and Swingle are harvesting ice.

The L. A. S. people held their cottage prayer meeting at Mrs. James Swingle's Wednesday and at Mrs. Friend Osgood's next Wednesday night. All are invited to attend.

DAMASCUS HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The High school will open again on Tuesday morning, January 3, instead of Monday, as previously announced.

Twenty-six visitors were present on Patron's Day at the High school on Friday afternoon, Dec. 23. The teachers appreciate the interest that was shown. An exhibition of different kinds of work done by the students consisting of maps, drawings, note books, geometrical figures and apparatus was open all of the afternoon.

The program began at two o'clock and was made up of the following numbers:

1. Song by the school.
2. Recitation, Miss Miriam Minch.
3. Some Historic Xmas Days in America, Miss Faye Abraham.
4. Recitation, Walter Rubins.
5. Xmas in Other Lands, Miss Myrtle Reynolds.
6. Recitation, Miss Alma Caulfield.
7. Recitation, Vernon Tegeler.
8. Two Xmas Symbols, Miss Helene Yerkes.
9. Christmas Drill, "Stocking Brigade," Ten First Grade Pupils.
10. An Original Xmas Story, Miss Grace Reilly.
11. A Letter From Santa Claus, Irene Mosher.
12. Freshman—Sophomore debate.

Numbers three, five, eight and ten were original essays handed in by the pupils in the English department. Miss Reilly handed in the best essay in the freshman class, Miss Yerkes in the Sophomore class, Miss Reynolds in the Junior class and Miss Abraham in the fourth year English class.

The question for the inter-class debate was, Resolved that Marathon was a greater battle than Salamis. The freshmen were represented by Eva Skilhorn, Ezra Maudsley and Mary Abraham. The Sophomore team included Helene Yerkes, Mary Loy and Arthur Brigham. Each class looked forward to the result with intense interest and supported its team loyally. The speakers were allowed five minutes for the first speech and one member of each team was allowed unlimited time for rebuttal.

Eva Skilhorn opened the debate for the affirmative by stating the question and supporting her side with several clearly proved points. Her remarks were interesting, well-chosen and the delivery was excellent. Helene Yerkes then spoke for the negative. Her points were well handled and she showed a broad knowledge of the subject. Ezra Maudsley continued the debate for the affirmative and added further proof to convince the people that his side was in the right. Ordinarily debaters do not make each point stand out clean cut enough before the audience and the judges. These amateurs succeeded in doing that although they had never debated before in public. After Mary Loy had spoken well for the negative, Mary Abraham spoke last for the freshmen. Her speech was marked by clearness, accuracy and the convincing way in which it was delivered.

Arthur Brigham kept up with the pace that those before him had set and finished strong for his side.

The rebuttal offered some amusement for the listeners. Miss Skilhorn was quick-witted, earnest and insistent. Miss Yerkes chose another method and her remarks were characterized by good-natured sarcasm and irony, they counted much for her side when it came time to make the decision. The judges were Rev. R. D. Minch, Dr. B. L. Tyler and Mr. Winfield Fromer. It took some time for them to reach a decision; meanwhile the school sang a song. The sides were so evenly matched that no one could make a decision off-hand. Mr. Minch complimented the young speakers on their broad knowledge of history and on the ability they showed in handling the subject. The affirmative side was awarded the debate by a unanimous vote of the judges.

A book has been offered as a prize by the principal to the student who writes the best school song, sets it to some familiar tune and hands it in before January 21.

Professor Chambers gave a miscellaneous program of readings in the Methodist church on Thursday evening, Dec. 22. Anyone that missed the second number of the lecture course would have good reason for regret.

GROUND MICE IN ORCHARDS.

From a prominent fruit grower in Franklin county comes the request for information of the best method of getting rid of mice in the orchard. These mice are very destructive to young trees in some sections of the State, and Prof. H. A. Surface, of the Division of Zoology, prescribed the following treatment:

"Replying to your letter of the 3rd, asking for a remedy to get rid of the ground mice in your orchard, I had to say that the best thing possible is to put the orchard into clean cultivation, and get rid of the grass. At this time of year if the ground is not frozen, it would be a good plan to work around the trees with a hoe and iron rake, raking the grass away from them for a distance of a few feet. If you do not wish to go to this trouble, one easy means of protecting them is to put a piece of wire around something like a broom handle, so that it will make a tube, and can be slipped around the trees, standing at its base like a collar. This will give protection from mice and rabbits.

Also, you can safely paint your apple, pear and quince with pure white lead and raw linseed oil. This will give protection from mice, rabbits and borers. The peach trees can be painted or sprayed at the base with a strong lime-sulphur solution, either home-brewed or commercial, prepared as for San Jose scale. If it has some sediment or free sulphur added, it will be improved for this purpose.

You can kill the mice by strychnine poisoning. I would suggest that you write to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for their recent Bulletin on the "Methods of Getting Rid of Rats and Mice." It is also desirable for you to have one or two terriers or beagles trained to hunt mice. The only objection to this in the orchard is the danger of injury to the roots of trees by them in digging after mice that may have burrowed under the trees. This must be watched.

If you have deep snow, it is advisable to tramp the snow around the trees, as this prevents the mice from feeding on the trunks. They do not come above the snow to feed. Of course, if the wire collars are placed around the trees, the stamping is not necessary. Rubbish, straw, grass or anything of the kind near the trees, attracts them and furnishes protection. This is the chief reason why such material should not be close to the trunks of the trees during winter."

The following letter to a practicing physician in a neighboring county, who is also a fruit grower, was written by Prof. H. A. Surface, state Zoologist of the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, Pa., upon the request for information as to whether a much advertised and exploited nostrum put into the trunk of the tree in a gimlet hole would rid the tree of scale. The following letter is instructive because it describes the manner in which the scale injures the tree, and explains the theory that this pest can be controlled by the above method:

I am interested in your letter of the 2nd, and can assure you that the San Jose scale injury to a tree by exactly the same process as a mosquito injures us; it injects a poisonous saliva into a tree and sucks out the modified sap. Both processes are injurious, but the injection of the poison is the worse of the two evils. The tree will not take into its sap any material injected into the trunk through a hole. The sulphur treatment consists of putting sulphur into an augur hole in the tree, and has no effect whatever upon the tree. I have tried it, and have seen the sulphur remain entirely unmodified for as long as two years or more.

Some orchards may escape the ravages of the San Jose scale for sometime, but they are practically sure to be destroyed by this pest later if nothing be done to save them. At the present time the universal recommendation of all growers and entomologists is, to spray annually, and nearly all will agree, that the best material is the boiled lime-sulphur wash.

I would urgently recommend that you try the sulphur treatment in some infested trees, and assure yourself of its efficacy or otherwise, before you make a published statement concerning it. I find it very important to be careful what is put before the public, for the reason that so many persons will accept it as established, and may depend upon it, and in so doing will defer the use of remedies which we know will bring reliable and desired results.

By delaying a year or two to learn whether the new remedy will prove satisfactory, they are liable to lose their trees. It is possible that the San Jose scale has not been introduced to the orchard which you mention. The proper treatment will consist of placing sulphur in a hole in a tree which we know or more, I have done this with unsatisfactory results."

The Kind of Sulphur Needed For Making Spray Solution.

At this time of year many inquiries are made of State Zoologist H. A. Surface, concerning the kind of material that should be used to make the lime-sulphur solution, which the progressive fruit growers of Pennsylvania have found to be the most efficient and satisfactory material in destroying the San Jose scale, which was once so injurious to their orchards. An inquiry was also made concerning potash fertilizers. Doctor Surface gives the following reply:

"The Flowers of sulfur are the most finely divided precipitate, and this form sells at the highest price. The Flour of sulphur is finely ground sulphur, also chemically pure, but not quite so high in price as the precipitated 'Flowers.' The commercial sulphur flour is finely ground brimstone, just as it is quarried from the craters or volcanoes where sulphur occurs. It contains some ash and impurity, but it is cheapest, and, therefore, is the most desirable form of sulphur for making the lime-sulphur wash, as it serves the purpose just as well as the most expensive forms.

"Muriate of potash and sulphate of potash are the two more expensive forms of potash fertilizer. The least expensive form being kainit, which is a very low grade of potash. The sulphate sells at a few dollars more per ton than the muriate, and it also contains a little more potash, and some persons think that it is more available for plants. It is generally agreed that the muriate when used for potatoes makes them tough, while the sulphate makes them tender or mealy. They are chemically different materials, each of which contains potash to form one of the essential fertilizing elements of plants, and both are valuable as fertilizers. The difference is not in purity, but in chemical composition."

No Poisonous Cabbage Snake.

State Zoologist Surface shows loss from belief in poisonous reptile.

A cabbage grower in Eastern Pennsylvania sent to State Zoologist

H. A. Surface, of Harrisburg, a fine white thread worm, which had been found in a cabbage bed, and which he had been told was deadly poison. He desired accurate information concerning this and the Professor replied as follows:

"I found the package to contain a specimen of small Thread Worm, which is commonly known as the Cabbage hair worm, and incorrectly called 'The Cabbage Snake.' The scientific name of this little hair worm is Mermis albicans. It is not larger than a fine thread of corn silk, and is even more delicate. 'I hasten to say that reports as to its poisonous nature are entirely untrue and unfounded. In fact, they have caused a great deal of needless fear, and even direct loss. This loss has come from the hesitation and refusal of persons to use cabbage for food after they have been informed that it is liable to be infested with a deadly, poisonous pest. 'The United States Department of Agriculture has published an interesting Bulletin as their Circular No. 62 on this subject, in which they state that Doctor Lewis LeRoy, of Nashville, Tennessee, purposely ate one of these little worms with the cabbage in which it had occurred, and, of course, suffered no ill effects, and at the same time demonstrated that it was in no manner poisonous. They also fed the worms and cabbage in various stages of development, to different animals, and never at any time found any effects of poison. They also made extracts from the hair worms, and injected them into animals, and were not able to poison them by this method. As a result the correct conclusion was reached 'that the cabbage snake is entirely harmless, and the public rumors and superstitions are fallacies without semblance of foundation.'"

"The only truth in the entire theory of the poisonous properties of this little Thread worm is in the fact that there is such a creature in existence. I would not hesitate to eat one to demonstrate its harmless qualities, although one does not naturally crave nor relish such diet, yet it is not more objectionable than any other article of food, like the contents of green peas, raw oysters, etc."

"The belief that there is a poisonous cabbage head snake that lives in cabbage, has, unfortunately, become so wide spread that it has seriously affected the sale of cabbage by reducing the demand for it for human consumption. Since there is no foundation for this belief, it is to be regretted that it has had such result. I trust that you will do what is possible to induce the newspapers to correct the mistake they have made by publishing statements concerning its supposedly poisonous nature. These statements have made interesting reading, although entirely without truth. It will now be likewise interesting for intelligent editors to help develop our agricultural possibilities, by stating that there is no danger whatever of any kind of poisoning or disease coming from eating cabbage whether raw, cooked, made into kraut, or otherwise."

Adam and Eve.

"I hope this expulsion of ours is not going to injure our social position," said Eve ruefully.

"I guess not," replied Adam. "They can't stop us from being one of the very first families, whatever they do."

"I don't find our names here in the 'Social Register,'" said Eve, looking the volume over.

"Look under 'Dilatory Domestics,' my love," said Adam as he went out and named the Jackass after himself.—Harper's Weekly.

A Pithy Sermon.

Here is the pithiest sermon ever preached: "Our ingress into life is naked and bare, our progress through life is trouble and care, our egress out of it we know not where; but, doing well here, we shall do well there. I could not tell more by preaching a year."

Wanted It Well Hidden.

Little Bobby was too polite to say he wanted a big piece of the turkey, but he said he would like a piece of the chest, where the wishbone was, only he didn't want to find the wishbone too quick.—Browning's Magazine.

It Was This Way.

"I suppose the father gave the bride away."

"Not exactly. He gave a million away and threw her in."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mistaken Modesty.

The lesson and significance of an experience incorporated by Mr. Maurice Baring in his book, "Krusian Essays and Stories," are undoubtedly the mistake of underrating one's wares. One is likely to be taken at one's word. Once when Mr. Baring was competing in a civil service examination and appeared as a candidate in the German viva voce the German examiner asked him if he could speak German.

"Yes, a little," he answered modestly.

"Oh," said the examiner, "I will then wish you good lucking. I will no doubt have the pleasure of seeing you again the next time there is an examination."

The next time there was an examination Mr. Baring presented himself again. The German examiner, who happened to be a different man, asked Mr. Baring if he could speak German. He replied:

"Yes, I speak it as well as I should," spoke it and my writing, as he combines the solidity of Lessing's, the limpidity of Goethe's and the lightning of touch of Heine's, as you have no doubt observed from my written papers."

"Then I need not trouble you any further," said the examiner.

"That time Mr. Baring got full marks."
