DREHER.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

Dreher, Pa., January 17.—An unusual number of children and adults are afflicted with the grip and in many cases a physician is called on for relief.

For several days we have had a January thaw and the weather has not been pleasant, even for those enjoying good health.

Dr. A. J. Simons is a very busy physician, looking after the welfare of the afflicted ones.

Frank Simons fractured one of his shoulder blades a few days ago, while helping haul ice. He was on a load of ice and in moving a large piece his feet slipped, throwing him to the ground, alighting on his shoulder, with the above result.

T. C. Madden is among the sufferers with grip and quite indisposed.

Hugh Fitz, Sterling, was recently taken to a Scranton hospital for treatment of kidney trouble.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart, Angels, Pa., on January 15, a daughter.

J. Albert Jones, vice-president of the Gulf and Ship Island Railroad, died at Gulfport, Mississippi, on December 25, of typhoid fever, aged about 30 years. He is survived by a young wife, residing at Gulfport. Interment was made in Forest Lawn cemetery, Buffalo, N. Y. The deceased was an only son of J. T. Jones, a resident of Wayne county in the early sixties and who is President of the above mentioned railroad.

Jacob Waltz has moved his saw mill to a lumber tract located along the Old North and South turnpike near the southern line of Dreher township and where he will saw lumber for H. R. Megargel.

The ice harvest at Gouldsboro is attracting men from all sections of the county, who are willing to exchange their time for either paper or silver money.

Our genial mail carrier, Fred Seig, has a brand new span of grey horses on his Greentown and Gouldsboro stage route.

Miss Minnie Touser, Belleville, N. J., is the guest of Miss Alice Cross of Dreher.

Quarterly meeting will be held at East Sterling on January 21 and 22, in charge of Rev. Long. He will have services at the Union church on Sunday evening, January 22.

Stalder attended the public installation of officers of Chaplain T. D. Swartz Post, 218, G. A. R., at Moscow. Comrade Callender of Griffin Post, Scranton, acted as installation officers. The following officers were installed: H. G. Stalder, commander; Fred Wombaker, S. V. Commander; M. W. Hurler, J. V. Commander; Moses Davis, quarter master; J. C. Depew, officer of the guard; J. E. Sayer, surgeon; Geo. S. Bryan, adjutant. After the installation a very pleasant social hour was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Smith entertained at dinner the first of the week in honor of Mrs. J. M. Smeltzer. Mrs. Smeltzer and son, Luther, went to Honesdale on Tuesday.

John Courtney spent Saturday in Moscow.

Kathryn, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hoffman, Scranton, who recently moved from Gouldsboro, is dangerously sick with brain fever.

Mrs. Byron Phillips and daughter, Helena, have returned from New York, where they spent several weeks with relatives.

Miss Groce Dowling spent Sunday with friends in Scranton.

WAYNE S. S. WORKERS' COLUMN (Mrs. G. C. Abrahams, Editor)

Correspondence for this column, from all the Sunday School workers in the county, is earnestly requested. Let us make it a veritable Round Table, everyone being free to ask or answer any questions relating to Sunday School work.

The Junior Department.

The Junior Department in the Sunday Schools fills a long felt need. Until it was started pupils were left in the Primary department until they were eleven and twelve years of age and because they had outgrown many of its methods and did not feel known as belonging to the school, many of them were large dwindled down to three or four scholars.

In late years teachers have seen that if we are to make the Sunday school what it should be we must in some way keep these children. To help in this the Junior department has been formed. The children who belong to this department are those who have come from the Primary. They are nine, ten, and eleven years of age and have characteristics which make this an important stage of development. Habits are being formed which are to be fully established in later life, therefore this is the time to help the child to form habits of reverent attention, daily Bible reading and study, prompt obedience, and punctuality. The reasoning powers are beginning to develop and the memory is stronger than at any other period of life. They should be able to read fairly well in the Bible so the study is very different from that of the Primary department. The pupils who have reached the required age but are backward in reading should be placed in a separate class.

Since this is so important a period the choosing of a skilled teacher is very important. She should be a person of consecration and training as this is the period in which many scholars will accept Christ and choose Him as King and friend if given the opportunity to do so. The teachers' training class will do much for any teacher. Visiting a primary class and observing methods of work, etc., will help a teacher who is about to take a class. Teachers should never leave the department when a class is promoted. By staying in one class they will master its difficulties. It is far better to have teachers trained to teach a special grade. This can never be accomplished if there is continual moving about.

It is very desirable that this department have a separate room for the reason that it needs concert exercises, recitations and Bible study, conducted in such a way that they would disturb the rest of the school.

There should be only six or seven scholars in a class in order that they may come into closer touch with the teacher. They should be of about the same age and ability in public school work. When a new scholar comes to the department he should be placed where he is best fitted by age and requirements. He should never be allowed to join a class for the simple reason that his friend is in that class.

The program is one of the most important phases of Junior work. It should be carefully prepared by the Superintendent or teacher for each week. It is better to have one hymn suited to the central thought for the quarter. This should be sung from memory and by the end of the quarter will have become a permanent possession. The offering, scripture exercise, and drill on the supplemental work or map drawing should have a place in the program.

The lesson should be the last thing on the program except for the closing prayer or song. After this should come the notices and distribution of books.

The songs used in this department should be very different from those of the Primary. Juniors are fond of martial music and hymns expressing God's care and love such as "Stand Up, Stand Up for Jesus," "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "The Lord is My Shepherd."

The lesson help for Juniors should be selected with greatest care and should be thoroughly adapted to the requirements of the scholars. The daily readings should be simple and short enough to be interesting to them.

The Graded Lessons are best for Juniors. Where for any reason these cannot be introduced the supplemental lessons should be taught. These give information about the Bible as a book and are necessary to an intelligent use of God's word. These lessons for the Junior period, give the divisions of the Bible, the names of the books in each, the main events in the Old and New Testament and the chief characters. They call for the memorization of passages of Scripture and some of the great church hymns and gives special teaching on temperance, missions and what the Bible says about sin and salvation. Outlines of these lessons may be secured by writing the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association. If you are using uniform lessons be sure to get them.

A blackboard, maps, hymn books, pads and pencils are needed. There should also be a temperance pledge on the wall.

The teacher should pay special attention to encouraging the pupils in the habit of systematic giving. Upon these little ones will one day rest the responsibility of carrying forward the benevolent work of the church. The teacher should explain the spirit of true giving. The children should be encouraged to earn or to save from their weekly allowances whatever they give to God.

Such books as "The Unfolding Life," "A Manual of Missionary Methods," "The Moral Problem of Children" and "Making Men and Women" are helpful to the Junior workers. These books as well as many given in the list for Primary teachers in last week's paper, can be secured from the State Circulating Library. Any Sunday school worker may read them by paying postage both ways. Write to the State office in regard to this.

Fleas On Carpets.

A resident of Shippensburg writes to Prof. H. A. Surface, economic zoologist, of the State Department of Agriculture, for information on how to rid a house of fleas. The following is the reply to his letter:

"Replying to your letter concerning fleas on the carpets, I beg to say that one of the best means of getting rid of these pests is to treat the carpets well with fresh insect powder, such as Pyrethrum or Hellebore. Let the room remain closed one-half hour, then sweep thoroughly, and burn the sweepings. While the powder will not kill the pests it will render them torpid, so that they can be swept up and burned, or, if you wish to be doubly sure to remove all of them, take the carpets out and beat them after sweeping, and as a final touch for insuring the destruction of the eggs and larvae of the flea, wash the floors with dilute solution of Creolin, which need not be stronger than five per cent., or one-fourth pint in five pints of water. This will kill the larvae in the cracks of the floors, where they may be feeding upon such dusty particles as are liable to congregate there, in spite of the efforts of the most careful housewives.

"I do not think that fumigation is necessary for fleas, and should it be undertaken I can not tell you from personal experiences what are the effects of the gas upon photographic plates and chemicals. I should hesitate to let these be exposed to strong fumigating gases or fumes. If the methods above outlined do not give satisfaction, please inform me, and I shall be able to give other suggestions, such as have been satisfactory and effective."

THE LORD MURDER CASE

Tuesday Afternoon.

The court room was crowded with spectators when the time for the afternoon session, 2 o'clock arrived. A large proportion of the curiosity seekers were women.

It took until 3:07 to get the three remaining jurors James Pope, a former clergyman, Mt. Pleasant, was one of the final ones chosen. When asked what his profession was he answered, "Poultry-raising."

"I resigned the ministry nine years ago," he also said in response to a question as to his profession.

Another member of the jury was John C. Frey, Newfoundland, an undertaker.

According to occupations the jurors are classified as follows: Farmers, six; Merchants, two; Teamster, one; barber, one; undertaker, one; poultry-raiser, one.

On motion of C. A. McCarty, Esq., Judge A. T. Searle ruled that Samuel Reed might be in the court during the trial if he desired.

After the jury had been sworn, and the jury had looked on the defendant and the defendant on the jury, the case was opened by District Attorney M. E. Simons, who delivered a strong charge to the jury.

The District Attorney's Charge.

"Gentlemen of the Jury: Silas E. Lord and this defendant, Leona Lord, were the owners of adjoining houses in the village of Equinunk, and sometime prior to the twelfth day of July, 1910 they became involved in a controversy over a ditch or drain which was between the two houses. That on July twelfth in the morning Millard Lord, a son of this defendant, and Sam Reed began digging a ditch or drain alongside of the house of the defendant and sometime later the same morning Silas Lord and Will Lord, his son, appeared upon the scene; that Leona Lord was also there, i. e., she was in and about her house; that she engaged in a wordy altercation with Will Lord and to a certain extent with Silas Lord; that she in a tantalizing way tried to provoke a fight; that she urged her son to lick Will Lord; that she urged Sammy to take sides; that she told him she would stand by him; that she had money; that she tried to urge Silas Lord to come on and fight, saying we're ready for you now; that Silas Lord told him he was not there to fight but if they got over on his land he would put them to law or words to that effect. 'I'd stop them by law; that during this time that Sam Reed forced one of the parties to uncover a marker, that Silas Lord found fault, that Sam Reed covered it up again; that Sam Reed left his pick down near the wall. He went back to the north corner of the house; that Leona Lord came down and picked up the pick, etc., and laid them by the post on a porch; that she went back up stairs and remained there for some time; that after urging her son to fight Will Lord herself called Will Lord opprobrious names; that Will Lord then called Will Lord names, and that he said to Millard in presence of all the others, 'I'll have to take that from you because you are a woman but not from any man. About that time he and Millard became involved in a fight; Leona Lord seeing the fight came out on her porch which is a second story porch, the lower or basement occupied as a butcher's house. There is a porch above it; that she came out on this upper porch, ran across the porch, down the steps, down around in front of the steps and picked up a pick and goes over to where these two young men are in a fight; that Silas Lord comes down toward his own house and attempts to keep her back saying, 'Let the boys fight this out; that by pushing and pulling he kept her back some.

"At about the same time or within a short time Sam Reed came down with a hoe in his hand; around Silas Lord and struck him on the head; that Silas Lord fell on his hands and knees in front of Mrs. Lord; that at this particular moment Mrs. Lord raised her pick, and drew it down swinging it into the head of Silas Lord; that at about the same time Sam had been hitting him with the hoe; that from the effects of this blow from the pick rolled over into corner of lower porch, and turning over again, Sam Reed continuing to rain blows on his head; that Silas Lord in his effort to get up, managed to get to his feet; that when he got on to his feet, he had a stone in his hand, and staggered out into the road like a drunken man, when he got to the middle of the road he turned to where the young men were struggling; that Sam Reed came up again and struck another blow over his head, and stumbled down in the road and lay there for some time. Finally he succeeded in getting to his feet, reeling and staggering; went to his own home. A physician was called for who treated his wounds, and the doctors attended him constantly for a period of twelve days, and then on July 24, 1910, he died.

"We propose to show to you that death was the result of the wound in the head with a pick; that she had the pick in her hand all the time until it was finally taken away from her.

"We will also show to you that Mrs. Lord had trouble over this ditch; that she made threats against these parties, showing malice on her part, and determination to be revenged on them and on Silas Lord."

The district attorney's arraignment was listened to with breathless interest and you could almost have heard a pin drop in the crowded court room.

William Lord, the first witness for the prosecution, was called and cross-examined and court adjourned at 4:30 p. m.

BIG TIME AT DAMASCUS.

Local Institute On Saturday—Seniors Serve Luncheon—Lecture At Night.

None of the Damascus teachers will miss the local institute at the High school because they know what a gala day they will have. The Seniors serve luncheon at 12 in the M. E. church basement and dinner at 5 o'clock. No one will want to miss the dinner, especially as oyster stew is on the bill of fare and the price is only 35 cents. Luncheon 25 cents. And they are all going to go to Prof. Green's lecture in the evening at the M. E. church. Everyone may come and enjoy the day.
