WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1911.

The People's Daily Advocate made its first modest bow to the public a little over a week ago. Its debut gives ample promise that the people of Towanda and vicinity will not want for a clean, newsy daily to chronicle the events in Bradford county.

IT IS TO LAUGH!

The amusing efforts of our contemporaries to "play up" the accounts of the trial of Leona Lord for the alleged killing of her brother-in-law, Silas E. Lord at Equinunk, July 12, 1910, would be amusing if they were not so painful. Even our esteemed across-the-avenue contemporary ventured on a "head" across the entire front page. "Imitation," dear brother Editors, as we used to write in our copy-books at school "is sincerest flattery." THE CITIZEN, by the way, has the reputation of taking the lead, and we are always glad to see others follow.

By the bye did you notice how THE CITIZEN "scooped" the WAYNE COUNTY HERALD and THE WAYNE INDEPENDENT in last Friday's issue?

THE CITIZEN paper contained a full report of the afternoon session, including the testimony of the defendant, Leona Lord, and our esteemed contemporaries hadn't a line even on the afternoon's proceedings.

HARRISBURG LETTER.

Special to THE CITIZEN.

January 21, 1911.—The inauguration of Governor Tener passed off without a hitch or anything to mar the enjoyment of the occasion. Coming in mid-January, summer or even spring weather could not be expected, but the day was a fine one nevertheless, though a bit cool for standing on the street to watch a parade. As inaugural parades go this one was a great success. The National Guard maintained its reputation as the best body of citizen soldiers in the country, the Carlisle Indians, with their splendid band, the local and visiting firemen, the Soldiers' Orphans from Scotland, with various large Republican clubs from Philadelphia, headed by Senator McNichol and Mayor Reyburn, all contributed to the beauty and interest of the ceremonies. Special mention should be made of the State Police, with their shaggy ponies and business-like demeanor. These formed a guard for the Governor and patrolled the Capitol in the evening, while the reception was on. It was the general impression that in this body of Constabulary, as they are usually styled, Pennsylvania has one of the most effective and useful methods of protection that can be secured. Its only fault seems to be that there are so few of them. It is quite probable that an attempt will be made at this session to increase the force, though such a move is certain to meet with great opposition from organized labor.

The new Governor took the oath of office at 12 noon on Tuesday, and within an hour his predecessor was on the train, headed for Philadelphia, where he immediately resumed the work he had laid down four years ago, at the command of his fellow-citizens. Ex-Governor Stuart is the owner of Leary's Old Book store and his activities will now flow in that direction. After a faithful service of four years he is glad to go back to private life, pleased that his course as the Chief Executive has been satisfactory to so large a proportion of the people. Political life holds no further charms for him.

Many people were disappointed at their failure to greet the new Governor at the reception to the public on Tuesday evening. The people who planned this might easily have worked out a better scheme, for less than half of the thousands who struggled for admission into the Capitol had the pleasure of shaking hands with the Governor and party. Had the entire arrangement been left with the State Police, it would have been much more satisfactory.

Not a little comment has been made of the failure, on the part of the Republican members in caucus, to fix a day for adjournment, as is usually done. By some this is interpreted to mean that the organization leaders expect the session to last longer than usual, and it would be unwise at this time to commit the party to any date. It may be that some of the measures which they wish to enact into laws will require time, though the minority is not unusually strong, and any date fixed might cause embarrassment. The general opinion is that we shall see their session in May, if not in June.

Some measures to be considered by this Legislature are sure to provoke antagonism, and a hard fight will be made on both sides. The proposition to tax capital engaged in manufacturing is scheduled to start a fight, even though the tax be a light one, for it will be regarded as the entering wedge. Corporations engaged in the publication of newspapers, and this is classed as manufacturing, are certain to object to the tax, for only a few of them make returns in the shape of dividends to their shareholders. Another measure sure to meet opposition is a proposed tonnage tax on anthracite coal. It will not appeal to either the producer or the consumer. So also the bill to increase the State Police force. There may be rocks ahead for the bill putting a heavier tax on autos, even though the funds secured from it are appropriated for good roads. Another bill will be urged to purchase land for an extension to Capitol Park. There is a suggestion to amend the Constitution so that the state may be bonded to raise a fund for road-building purposes. So that there is a possibility of a long session.

In his inaugural address Governor Tener indicates a probable reorganization of three departments, i. e., Insurance, Highways and Mines. He suggests a Department for the erection of State structures such as hospitals, asylums, prisons, etc., with the approval of the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings. He discusses the needs of the State and of the people in a way that indicates familiarity and study of the subject and advocates legislation looking toward the betterment of the average man. He begins his administration under favorable conditions, with every prospect of keeping the interest of the people in his mind. To judge him in advance were unfair. Those who know him best believe he will make a good Governor. N. E. HAUSE.

TENER'S AIM TO SERVE PEOPLE.

Governor Pleases Thousands of Friends With Inaugural Address at Harrisburg—Legislation Is Recommended.

Harrisburg, Pa.—John K. Tener, Charleroi, was formerly inducted into the office of Governor of Pennsylvania at noon last Tuesday.

It was a cold and clear day. At 11 o'clock the parade began to form and in a half hour thereafter started, with the military division first in line.

GOVERNOR JOHN K. TENER.

Governor-elect Tener and Governor Edwin S. Stuart were in the first carriage. The Governor's troop, a Harrisburg military organization, ranged in front, behind of and beside the carriage as an escort.

After the trip from the executive mansion to the capitol was finished, the inaugural ceremonies began.

First was an invocation by Episcopal Bishop Darlington.

Chief Clerk H. M. Kephart of the senate then read the certificate of election.

Chief Justice D. Newlin Fell of the state supreme court administered the oath of office to the incoming governor.

LIEUT. GOV. J. M. REYNOLDS.

Retiring Lieutenant Governor Murphy proclaimed the entrance of the new governor, who then proceeded with his inaugural address.

The ceremony closed with the benediction by Rev. Ritchie Smith, Harrisburg, and a salute of twenty guns at the state arsenal.

The governor and party then joined the inaugural parade, passing over the principal streets. Governor Tener reviewed the parade from a stand erected in front of the executive mansion.

The inauguration was witnessed by probably 10,000 people from all sections of the state.

Pennsylvania Politics From The Washington View-Point—Governor J. K. Tener A Popular Congressman.

Washington, D. C.—The cordial expressions of regard for John K. Tener from his colleagues on both sides of the House upon his retirement from membership in that body must have been extremely gratifying to the new governor. Mr. Tener's resignation went into effect on Monday. On the day of his inauguration many of his friends in the House wired him congratulatory messages in which they predicted that his administration would be such as to receive the commendation of the people. Some of his associates also sent floral pieces to the executive mansion. Mr. Tener's record in Congress has been that of an able, painstaking and public spirited official, who has rendered exceptional service for the constituency which sent him to Washington.

Members of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress have referred to the fact that in the gratification of the Republicans of Pennsylvania over Mr. Tener's inauguration the campaign of slander last fall was forgotten. The echoes of the abuse and misrepresentation of the discredited political coalition which directed the disgraceful campaign died away with the announcement of another Republican victory in the Keystone state. Since then the methods employed to defeat the Republican candidate have been recalled at intervals only by the confessions of some of his enemies that they had lied about him. Pennsylvania politicians in Washington state that thousands of honest Republicans who were misled by misrepresentation and voted against the Republican ticket in November now are willing to withhold judgment in Governor Tener's case and give him an opportunity to fulfill the pledges he made the people last fall. It is highly probable that many of these Republicans have reflected upon what would have been the consequences if the campaign of slander had been successful. If so they realize that at Harrisburg on Tuesday that shouting would have come from the exultant hosts of the Democracy. Governor Stuart would have retired for a Democrat, eager to exert the power of his administration for the advancement of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania and the nation. And a Democratic legislature would have displaced Senator George T. Oliver with a Democrat, who would have joined other Democrats in the United States Senate in the enactment of destructive tariff legislation. Considering the Democratic landslide in November and the menace of Democratic tariff revision in the next Congress the inauguration of Governor Tener is peculiarly fortunate from the viewpoint of Pennsylvania.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The Honesdale High school, with the Seventh and Eighth Grades, was entertained on Friday evening, January 20, with a party given by the "Class of 1914."

The Eighth Grade visited the High school on Friday afternoon to listen to the Senior program.

A Senior program will be held in the High school auditorium on Friday evening, February 3, celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Horace Greeley, the noted editor of the New York Tribune. The program will be accompanied with an interesting talk given by Hon. William H. Dummick.

The program of examinations for the Honesdale High school is as follows:

Monday, January 30, 1911, 9 a. m., Algebra, A. B. C.; 1:30 p. m., Physical Geography and Physiology.

Tuesday, January 31, 9 a. m., Roman and Grecian History. A local institute for Dyberry, Bethany, Cherry Ridge, Texas, Seelyville and Honesdale will be held in the High school February 4 at 10 o'clock a. m.

The fourth preliminary contest was held in the High school on Wednesday afternoon, January 18, and Charles Markle and John Sutton were selected from four boys to continue in the declamation.

Pearl Bennett and Margaret Charlesworth were selected from four girls to continue in the recitation.

It is expected that the final preliminary contest will be held Friday, February 10.

The school month ended January 16.

On Friday afternoon the Senior class gave the following well-rendered program which is the second Senior program of the season:

Song, "In Dear Old Wayne," by the school; essay, "Peculiarities of Great Men," Florence Kreiter; essay, "History of Honesdale," Agnes Carr; song, "Far Beneath Historic Irving," by the school; oration, "The Aeroplane in Warfare," Roy Leinbach; essay, "The Life of Count Tolstoi," Margaret Rickard; essay, "The Rosary," Marion Charlesworth; song, "Forsaken," by the H. H. S. boy's quartet, composed of Ray Dibble, Vincent Carroll, Leon Hagaman, and Joseph Jacob; declamation, "The Prisoner's Plea," Joseph Jacob; essay, "The Life of a Bud," Anna Doherty; recitation, "The Diary of a Mouse," Dorothy Dein.

The next program to be given by the Seniors will be a Horace Greeley program and will no doubt take place in the evening.

The Freshmen entertained the High school and friends at a dance in the gymnasium on Friday evening.

MRS. JOHN K. TENER.

Glad To Take Up Her Residence in Harrisburg And Looks Forward To Pleasant Stay; Social Life At The Mansion Will Be Revived, She Tells Telegraph Reporter.

The following article, headed with a picture of Mrs. John K. Tener, appeared in a recent issue of the Harrisburg Telegraph. It is of especial interest because written by a former Honesdale woman. For particulars see People's Forum. The story is as follows:

"To make my part of the administration the very best I can and to uphold my husband in his part of it is the only ambition I have as wife of the Governor of Pennsylvania," says Mrs. John Kinley Tener, the new mistress of the Executive Mansion.

It is eight years since the people of Pennsylvania have welcomed the wife of a governor, for Governor Stuart was unmarried, and everyone is anxious to know just what Mrs. Tener is like and what she is going to do in a social way during her four years' reign. Tall, well built of dignified bearing, large brown eyes, brown hair and a most captivating manner Mrs. Tener is the very embodiment of "The joy of living," and will surely win the hearts of the people by her sunny disposition and infinite tact.

As a young girl Mrs. Tener was Miss Harriet Day, of Haverhill, Mass., marrying Mr. Tener in October, 1889, and residing for a year and a half afterward in Pittsburg. Later they went to Charleroi where Mr. Tener opened the First National Bank. A woman of varied interests she has been active in church and charity work and the chairman of the Juvenile Court Committee in Charleroi for some time. As the "great lady" of the town Mrs. Tener was at the head of all social affairs and arranged dances for the younger set, in which she delighted to participate. Both the Governor and Mrs. Tener are members of the Episcopal Church and will attend St. Stephens' during their residence here. While Mrs. Tener was in Harrisburg only once before, she is delighted with what little she has seen of the place and has heard much of the hearty welcome to be given her by Harrisburg people with whom she will be so closely connected.

A residence in Washington during her husband's term as Congressman has especially fitted her for the position to which she has been called, and the social life at the Mansion will receive an impetus which it has not had since the Hastings and Stone administrations. Mrs. Tener has made no special plans for a social campaign but says the regulation official receptions will be given and later many small ones arranged. She will have the same "at home" days as Miss Stuart, the first and last Wednesday of each month, and will make the affairs real social instead of the formal ones so often encountered in official circles.

Mrs. Tener loves to entertain and delights not in crowds but in the little parties and dinners where one can become more intimately acquainted with each other and while the Governor and Mrs. Tener have no children there are many nieces and nephews who will make frequent visits here and dances and various events will be given during their stay.

Mrs. Tener is an excellent housekeeper and much interested in that part of her domain, and has brought with her from Charleroi many of her household treasures, which will give a touch of hominess to the living rooms of the mansion. She is a well dressed woman, her costumes being a part of her and always in excellent taste.

In the inaugural exercises this morning she wore a brown velvet dress with touches of Persian on the corsage, a seal skin coat and white to match. This evening she will wear a handsome creation of a white cashmere de sole over silk, en Princess with gold trimmings.

Mrs. Tener arrived in the city yesterday at noon going at once to the Executive Mansion where, after luncheon she assumed possession and has as her house guests: Mr. and Mrs. George E. Tener; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones, Miss Roberta Jones; Mrs. James Smith, Pittsburg. Her brother, A. W. Day and Mrs. Day, of Charleroi; her sister, Mrs. C. E. Miller and Mr. Miller, Columbus, O.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Walton and their daughter, Mrs. Hill, Philadelphia.

as one of the family. She was no more expected to wait for a second table than the guests themselves. I was so much interested in the custom that I spoke to the lady of the house in regard to it, and she said: "Oh, we could get no one to help in this community if we should attempt to follow any other custom."

I think that that is generally true in the country, especially in the middle and western States. I think we are wholly right in saying that the life of the farm is simpler, truer to the unspoiled instincts of human nature than the life in town. There is not so great a difference between employer and employee as there is in the city, and for this the country is to be commended."

PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Editor THE CITIZEN: Honesdale people will be interested to know that the first Harrisburg woman to greet Mrs. John Kinley Tener as the wife of Pennsylvania's new Governor, was Miss Cora Lee Snyder, society editor of "The Telegraph," the big Republican daily of the capitol city. Miss Snyder was granted an interview immediately after the Teners took possession of the executive mansion, Miss Snyder, who is well known in newspaperdom was born in Honesdale—daughter of the late Judge Isaiah Snyder, and grand-daughter of the late Dr. Adonijah Strong, well-known men of Honesdale.

Are You Deaf?

Catarrh is Probably the Cause—Get Rid of the Cause.

If you have catarrh and have constant ringing noises in your ears look into the matter at once.

It's a pretty sure sign that catarrh is spreading and is making its way through the Eustachian tubes that lead from the nose to the ears.

When catarrh gets to the ears partial deafness follows. If you have ringing noises in your ears go to G. W. Pell to-day and get a HYOMEI outfit and drive out catarrh.

To cure catarrh HYOMEI should be breathed through a pocket inhaler for a few minutes, four or five times a day. Just pour a few drops into the hard rubber inhaler and breathe it.

It kills the germs; soothes the irritation; heals the inflammation; stops hawking, spitting and sniffling.

HYOMEI keeps the throat free from mucus and prevents crusts in nose. The complete HYOMEI outfit which includes the little indestructible hard rubber inhaler, a bottle of HYOMEI and simple instructions for use, costs $1.00. Separate bottles of HYOMEI costs 50 cents at drug-gists everywhere, or at G. W. Pell's drug store on money back plan.
