ARIEL.

Good Advice For Getting Rid Of Sheep-Killing Dogs.
Special to THE CITIZEN.

Ariel, Pa., February 2.—Farmers, look out for stray dogs that are running about the country at night seeking whom and what they may devour. Thursday morning, January 26, when Frank Maston, brother-in-law of Mr. Bronson, a tenant of Conrad Swingle, went to the barn to feed Mr. Swingle's sheep, he found he had no sheep to feed. The whole flock, eight in number, having been torn to pieces by dogs. Homer Jones and Elias Keyes of Ariel were called to appraise the damage. It is hard to estimate in dollars and cents the damage of such dogs. About the best medicine for such dogs is a dose of cold lead, backed up by a good charge of powder.

ORIGINALITY IN BEDROOM.

Suggestions For Bright Rooms and Those Without Sunlight.

Every woman should have a pretty bedroom and should see that it is not the duplicate of many others, but has some touch of originality about its color schemes and decorations that set it apart as individual to herself.

For a room which receives all the sunshine never choose a shiny paper, but a dull finished one. A gray bed room may sound colorless at first hearing, but one of the prettiest rooms was carried out in this neutral shade.

First of all, the walls were fitted a delicate pale gray with a warm tinge to it, and the ceiling, which was brought down to the picture molding on the wall by means of spiral lines in soft shades of blue and green with soft lines, thus taking away any suggestion of monotony.

Gray enameled furniture further carried out the scheme, and the cushions, bedspread, curtains and table covers were all of gray blue shaded in the same tones as the walls, while the rug that covered the stained gray floor was gray green in color. The influence of that hung on the wall furnished a note of contrast in its framework of dull gold, and the pictures on the walls completed the harmony in their soft tints of gray stained wood and white enamel.

Another excellent scheme for a girl's bedroom may be carried out in the following way:
Walls of soft cream color with a stencil design in soft pinky mauve shades.
Hangings of ashes of roses, lines and furniture of wickerwork stained a soft brownish purple.

Bands of cream colored linen with the stenciled designs may be applied on to all the hangings of the room, such as the curtains and cushion covers, and the rug on the floor may be of soft oriental colors.

GERM ERADICATING BRUSHES.

The manufacturers, realizing that the housewife of today is always on the alert for new designs in household brushes, have evolved the new shapes seen in the cut. The dust brush on the left is an improvement over the old thick many bristled affair with which we are all familiar, because it cleans the corners thoroughly and is sure death to germs.

The other brush may be successfully used to rub down walls covered with burlap or fabric stuffs, or when of finer bristles it proves an excellent window brush.

NOT MUCH TO HIM.
