

APOLOGY FOR SON

Griscom's Mother Says He Talks Too Much.

WHITMAN NOT IN THE CASE.

Arnolds Are Assured That Man Said to Be Daughter's Suitor Will Be Restrained in the Future—As Prisoner in His Hotel.

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 15.—George R. Griscom, Jr., is still locked up in his room in the Hotel Chalfonte. Roger O'Mara, the Pittsburg detective, who has taken charge of the Griscom interests here, made several trips from his rooms at Young's hotel to the Chalfonte. After one of the later trips he talked with the besieging newspaper men.

There was no word from either Griscom or O'Mara to give out the fact that considerable mail and a number of telegrams have been sent out from the Griscom apartments and have been received by the Griscoms in the past two days has caused much speculation, particularly in view of the advertisement in a New York newspaper signed "Junior," naming Tuesday as the day on which the one for whose eyes the personal was intended might expect to hear from the same "Junior." There was no attempt on the part of any of the Griscoms to leave the Chalfonte.

Writing at the request of her husband, Mrs. George S. Griscom, Sr., sent a letter to Francis R. Arnold, Dorothy's father, apologizing for the loquacity of her son and promising to restrain him in the future. The older Griscom assured the Arnolds, however, that his son had not said many of the things attributed to him. District Attorney Charles S. Whitman was exercised when he read that he had admitted going to Philadelphia as a phase of the investigation and that he had said the Arnolds had appealed to him to drop any official search.

"Please say for me," said Mr. Whitman, "that I went to Philadelphia several days ago on quite another matter and that because I happened to discuss the Arnold case with somebody it was assumed I was over there to do some work on it. As to the other matter, here are the facts: About ten days ago I called up the Arnold house and talked to somebody I understood was Mr. Arnold. I said I had heard that the family weren't satisfied with the attitude of the police, and I inquired if there was anything my department could do. The answer was that the family had nothing to suggest, but that if anything turned up they would apply to me."

BETTER CHILDREN ITS AIM.

Senator Flint's Bill to Study Juvenile Conditions Passes Senate.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The senate has passed the bill creating a department to be known as the children's bureau under the department of commerce and labor. Senator Flint of California is the author of the measure.

The bureau is to be under the direction of a chief at a salary of $4,000 a year and is directed to "investigate and report on all matters pertaining to the welfare of child and child life, and shall especially investigate the question of infant mortality, the birth rate, physical degeneracy, orphanage, juvenile delinquency and juvenile courts, desertion, dangerous occupations and accidents and diseases of children, employment, legislation affecting children in the several states and territories, and such other facts as have a bearing upon the health, efficiency, character and training of children."

COMMANDER MARBLE DIES.

Teacher at Naval College in Newport Stricken With Apoplexy.

Newport, R. I., Feb. 15.—Commander Frank Marble, U. S. N., member of the teaching staff of the Naval War college here, is dead.

Commander Marble was stricken by apoplexy at his quarters and became unconscious. Though he was removed to the Naval hospital, he did not regain consciousness, and his death followed. He was a native of New York, appointed to the Naval academy from that state in 1884, and his term at the War college dated from Nov. 6, 1909.

WILLS BRAIN TO A COLLEGE.

Physicians Will Investigate Cause of Rosendale's Peculiar Immunity.

Philadelphia, Feb. 15.—Jules Rosendale of this city, a translator and father of Margaret Dale, the actress, is dead at the age of seventy-six years.

Mr. Rosendale in his will directed that his body be cremated and that his brain and stomach be given to the University of Pennsylvania to discover the reason for his immunity from the usual effects of intoxicating drink.

It is stated by physicians that Mr. Rosendale could consume almost unlimited quantities of alcoholic liquor without any effect whatever upon his brain or nervous system.

TWELVE DIE IN A COLLISION.

Two Trains on a French Railway Meet Near Courville.

Paris, Feb. 15.—The Western State railway, which already has gained an unenviable reputation for accidents in which eighty persons have been killed in six months, increased its record when a collision occurred at Courville. An express from Paris ran into a freight train. It is known that twelve persons were killed. The train caught fire after the accident.

A third train was stopped just as it reached the wreckage.

Too Precious.

"Makers of his majesty" and "imported" are words that carry much weight to many minds. It is strange what a glory a foreign label can cast upon a commonplace article. The fact of a commodity having crossed the water, however, is not taken quite so seriously today as it was some fifty or sixty years ago. M. C. D. Silsbee gives an instance in her "A Half Century in Salem."

Miss Ann M. Rust was one of the two milliners. She had a large collection of finery, shelves full of handsome ribbons and glass showcases of rich embroideries, besides the inevitable bonnets. Once she imported a quantity of exquisite French caps. The strings were somewhat crushed in the transit across the ocean. The caps were quickly disposed of. An aunt bought one, and Miss Rust innocently observed that a "warm iron would make the creases all right."

"What?" indignantly exclaimed the aunt. "Smooth a crease made in Paris? No, indeed; never!"

A Famous English Clock.

Wells cathedral contains one of the most interesting clocks in the whole world. It was constructed by Peter Lightfoot, a monk, in 1320 and embraces many devices which testify to the ancient horologist's ingenuity. Several celestial and terrestrial bodies are incorporated in the interesting movement and relationship. They indicate the hours of the day, the age of the moon and the position of the planets and the tides. When the clock strikes the hour two companies of horsemen fully armed dash out of gateways in opposite directions and charge vigorously. They strike with their lances as they pass as many times as correspond with the number of the hour. A little distance away, seated on a high perch, is a quaint figure, which kicks the quarters on two bells placed beneath his feet and strikes the hours on a bell. The dial of the clock is divided into twenty-four hours and shows the phases of the moon and a map of the universe.—Harper's.

Make Children Happy.

The first duty toward children is to make them happy. If you have not made them happy you have wronged them. No other good they may get can make up for that.—Charles Buxton.

His Reward.

Lawyer Brown—So I called the judge a liar. Lawyer Jones—And then what did you do? Lawyer Brown—Thirty days.—Toledo Blade.

JUAREZ IS CELEBRATING.

General Navarro's Arrival With 1,500 Men Assures Safety of Town.

El Paso, Tex., Feb. 15.—Juarez has been relieved. The insurgents, camping at Samalayuca, thirty miles south of Juarez, have disappeared. Three train loads of federal soldiers, commanded by General Navarro, are in the Juarez railroad yards. The troops consist of about 1,500 cavalrymen and infantrymen, and bring the total number in the Juarez garrison up to 2,000 men, amply able to protect the town from any revolutionary attack.

General Navarro was embraced by Colonel Lambourel and Colonel Rabago of the Juarez garrison when he stepped from the train. The officers were taken to the Juarez custom house where a reception was held and champagne served. Americans flocked to Juarez from El Paso and helped to celebrate. There is now a feeling of security, a feeling that the insurgents lost their "main chance" and that they are now to be considered merely as guerrillas and not as an army.

The whereabouts of Francisco I. Madero is still unknown. The United States officers in El Paso have not been able to serve their papers on either Madero or Gonzales, provisional governor of Chihuahua.

ARREST SIX AFTER EXPLOSION

Blame Zelaya Sympathizers For Trouble in Nicaraguan Palace.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Several Zelaya sympathizers have been arrested in Managua for suspected complicity in a mysterious explosion in the government arsenal, which adjoins the home of President Estrada. Thomas J. Moffatt, American consul at Managua, sent a report to the state department saying that six men have been arrested.

10,000 rounds of ammunition, 10,000 rifles and the building in which they were stored, the consul says, are a total loss. Martial law has been declared by President Estrada, who is making an investigation to determine the cause of the disaster.

AN EYE ON COPPER TRUST.

Senator Clapp Wants Investigation to See if Law is Obeyed.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senator Clapp of Minnesota introduced in the senate a resolution directing the attorney general to investigate the copper trust. It provides for an inquiry into the Amalgamated Copper company, the Anaconda Copper company and the United States Metal company, so ascertain if they are violating the Sherman law.

Truce in Delaware Deadlock.

Dover, Del., Feb. 15.—The now celebrated Churchman case, the contest before the senate for and against the confirmation of Phillip Quinley Churchman as a state judge for twelve years, is closed for several days with the ending of the senate's executive session. The vote of the seventeen senators is: Republicans, 8; Democrats, 8; Independent Republican, 1. No vote can be taken today as Senators Dutton (Dem.) and Marshall (Rep.) are paired.

Kaiser's Condition Not Known.

Berlin, Feb. 15.—No official statement in regard to the condition of the kaiser, who is suffering from a cold, has been issued. It is announced that his majesty will be unable to attend the meeting of the German agricultural council which had been fixed for today, and it has been postponed. The kaiserin is also suffering from a severe cold.

A Long Credit.

The motto of the highland host that battled for the Stuart cause, which bonny Prince Charlie headed, apparently was that heaven helps those who help themselves liberally. They levied toll on the heronst, stable and, according to the author of "The Land of Romance," even on the pockets of the Covenanters.

At Swarthholm a party of these marauders overhauled the house of a tailor, and when one of them was about to cut up a web of homespun that had taken his fancy the good wife earnestly remonstrated.

"A day'll come when ye'll ha' the pay for that," she solemnly assured him.

Scissors in hand, Donald paused. "An' when will she be ha'ing to do that?" he asked.

"At the last day," said she. "An' that will be a fery goot long credit," the robber coolly returned. "She was going to be only taking a coat, but now she will be taking a waistcoat as well."

A Mountain in the Sky.

Somewhere many miles away from this earth an enormous mountain twenty miles high is flying through space. The mountain is known astronomically as the planet Eros. The ordinary man has long taken it for granted that all the planets are more or less round in shape. The small planet Eros, however, is an exception to this rule. According to the latest astronomical information, it is a mere mountain in space, "without form and void," and as it turns upon its axis first one corner and then another is presented to view. These small worlds (few are over ten or twenty miles across) are not large enough to have sufficient gravity to draw their structure into symmetry and remain as when launched into space—mammoth meteorites. A tantalizing fact for astronomers is that Eros passed very close to us about Jan. 24, 1894—before the planet was recognized—and that quite so near an approach is not due again till 1975.

Lackawanna Hotel Burns.

"The Mine's Blown Up."

I was sitting on the edge of my bed, loosening the heel of one of my rubber boots with the toe of the other, when suddenly through the stillness of the sleeping town, from the power house half a mile away, came a low and rising note, the great siren whistle in the power house. Almost fascinated, I listened as the great note rose higher and more shrill and died away again. One blast meant a fire in the town, two blasts fire in the buildings at the mine and three blasts, the most terrible of all, a disaster or trouble in the mine. Once more, after an interminable pause, the sound came again and once more rose and died away. I did not move, but there was a sudden coldness that came over me as once more, for the third time, the deep note broke out on the quiet air. Almost instantaneously the loud jingle of my telephone brought me to my feet. I took down the receiver. "The mine's blown up," said a woman's voice.—Atlantic.

Saying No.

The author of "Fat McCarty," a book of verse with a setting of prose, shows how naturally some of the Irishmen of Antrim dilute the wine of narrative with the water of verbiage. In the excerpt below—"The Way We Tell a Story"—the diluent is used with a particularly free hand:

Says I to him, I says, says I, Says I to him, I says, The thing, says I, I says to him, Is just, says I, this way, I hev, says I, a gre't respect For you and for your breed, And anything I end, I says, I'd do, I wud indeed, I don't know any man, I says, I'd do it for, says I, As fast, I says, as for yourself, That's tellin' ye no lie, 'There's naught, says I, I wudn't do To please your father's son, But this, I says, ye see, says I, I says, it can't be done.

The Spectacled Bear.

The spectacled bear of Ecuador is so called because of a patch of white around each eye, which makes the animal look as though he was peering through a pair of great spectacles. In size and general color the spectacled bear looks not unlike the American black bear. But his hair is very shaggy. At each side of the head is a white bar, which gives the animal the appearance of wearing a halter. But the most distinctive feature is the white around the eyes.

Attachment.

The schoolteacher was trying to illustrate the difference between plants and animals. "Plants," she explained, "are not susceptible of attachment to man as animals are." "How about burs, teacher?" piped a small boy who had passed the summer in the country.—Chicago News.

STILL HAS MONEY TO GIVE.

Dr. D. K. Pearsons Determined to Donate Entire Fortune.

Dr. Daniel K. Pearsons, the nonagenarian philanthropist of Hinsdale, Ill., has discovered some property that has not been given away, so he is making plans to donate it quickly. He announces that he proposes "to get ahead of my friends, Rockefeller and Carnegie, and make provision for a complete cleanup before dying."

The philanthropist has given away $6,000,000 to forty-two colleges in twenty-four states. Now he has disposed of the residence near Chicago, where he and his wife lived for thirty years. Although the property, with its five acres of lawns and fruit trees, is worth more than $30,000. Dr. Pearsons decided that was a fair price and arranged that the sum should be donated to Chicago charities. Being without a home or family, Dr. Pearsons has spent the winter at a sanitarium.

He first became imbued with the idea of aiding struggling educational institutions in 1890, when Mary Lyon was scouring New England for funds with which to start Mount Holyoke College for Women. Dr. Pearsons was then working to obtain an education at Dartmouth, but he managed to help Miss Lyon a little and later built a dormitory for the college.

"Another thing I want distinctly understood by every one is that I am not benevolent," says he. "To call me benevolent is to make a great big mistake. I am not, positively, once for all. I haven't a spark of benevolence in my makeup. I am a hard hearted, tight fist ed curmudgeon without a trace of charity. I am giving my money away because I want to be my own executor. I want to know just where my money goes and what is done with it. I want to see it really doing some good."

The Offending Black Bottle.

A church member in a lonely district of Saskatchewan absented himself from services for some months. On being approached on the subject he said he was sorry, but it was impossible to attend any more. He was pressed to give reasons and at length said it was owing to the bad conduct of the superintending clergyman and catechist.

He and others had witnessed them drinking when driving round on their visits. They had passed a black bottle from hand to hand. It was impossible to attend the ministry of such men. Inquiries proved that the offending "bottle" was a pair of field-glasses with which the drivers surveyed the surrounding country and tried to locate the various churches, shacks and trails.—Sunday at Home.

The Cold Bath.

The daily cold bath is an ideal spring tonic as well as one of the most important of all measures for preventing disease. Many a weary seeker after health would do well to throw away drug tonics and try the cold bath, taking care, however, to secure a good reaction. The result in the way of renewed life and energy would be surprising.—Good Health.
