

WHEN SHERIDAN WENT TO TEXAS

Fifty Thousand American Troops Massed on Border.

PARALLEL TO PRESENT MOVE

Mere Show of Force Then Forced Retreat of Maximilian and Finally Forced His Downfall—Sheridan Hurried South Without Waiting For Grand Review—Grant's Significant Instructions.

The mobilization of thousands of United States troops in Texas is not a novelty in the history of the war department. While it is said that the troops are in Texas merely for maneuvers, such was not the case when General Phil Sheridan was sent into that state in 1866 with 50,000 veteran troops.

This move followed the occupation of Mexico by the French and the placing of Maximilian on the throne by Napoleon. When the American civil war was at its height the emperor of the French sent troops to Mexico to establish a throne there, believing the government of the United States too much occupied with war to attempt to enforce the Monroe doctrine. The occupation of Mexico by the French army was the most radical infraction of that doctrine ever attempted.

Not until after the battle of Gettysburg and the fall of Vicksburg did Secretary Seward deem it wise to notify the French that the proceedings in Mexico were distasteful to the United States government, and not until after the war did Mr. Seward find the time ripe to demand of Napoleon that the French armies be withdrawn from Mexico.

Even before the grand review in Washington, prior to the disbandment of the armies of the Union, in which he longed to march, General Sheridan was ordered to the Texas frontier to put down the rebellion in that quarter and also to enforce the demands of the United States government that Maximilian and his European allies evacuate Mexico.

Sheridan Sent to Texas.
The day after Sheridan arrived in Washington from Petersburg he received orders transferring him to a new command. The order directed him to restore Texas and that part of Louisiana held by the enemy to the Union. Sheridan promptly called on General Grant to learn if his orders were to be considered so pressing as to preclude his remaining in Washington until after the grand review. General Grant told him that it was absolutely necessary to go at once to force the surrender of the Confederates under Kirby Smith. At that interview General Grant also told Sheridan that there was an additional motive in sending him to the new command, a motive not explained in the written instructions.

Sheridan left Washington without participating in the grand review. When he arrived at his station he decided to cross the state with two columns of cavalry, sending one to San Antonio under Major General Wesley Merritt and the other to Houston under Major General George A. Custer.

In the latter part of June, 1865, General Sheridan went to Brownsville himself to impress the imperialists with the idea that the United States meant business. He also sent General Steele to make demonstrations all along the lower Rio Grande.

Maximilian Withdraws.
These demands, backed as they were by such a show of force—a force starting not only numerically, but because of its composition of veterans of one of the stubbornest wars in history—were the cause of demoralization among the imperial troops, and measures looking to the abandonment of northern Mexico were quickly adopted by those in authority.

In the latter part of September, 1865, Sheridan became impatient of the slow work at Washington and decided to make another hostile demonstration. This time he selected the upper Rio Grande for the scene of action.

Escorted by a cavalry regiment, Sheridan then went to Fort Duncan, on the Rio Grande, opposite Piedras Negras. He then deliberately opened communication with President Juarez. This gave rise to the belief that Sheridan was only awaiting the arrival of the United States troops, then under marching orders at San Antonio, to cross the Rio Grande and attack Maximilian's troops.

The imperialists were so much alarmed by these reports and the open military demonstrations that they withdrew the French and Austrian soldiers from Matamoros, abandoning the whole of Mexico as far down as Monterey.

Shortly afterward the French withdrew their troops from Mexico, and in 1867 Maximilian was captured and executed.

Society Women Wrestlers.
The latest recreative exercise among society women of the Bay State is wrestling. It is claimed that it promotes beauty of figure and good health. Many of the bondoors of the smart set are now the scenes of bouts, and the fad is expected to become widespread.

Hunting by Airship.
Big game hunting by airship is the very latest form of sport.

Private Herds Will Prevent the Buffalo From Becoming Extinct

FEARS that the American bison, popularly known as the buffalo, will become extinct seem to be unfounded, though the splendid animals will never again exist in herds of tens of thousands as they did forty or fifty years ago. The destruction of these herds, destruction wrought by men who killed by the thousands for the few dollars they got for the hides, is a shame to the government, a shame that would hardly be permitted in these days of conservation. Even the most elementary methods of game protection would have saved the buffalo, for they are hardy animals, able to protect themselves against most enemies and entirely able to withstand the most rigorous weather conditions. There is a large herd of bison in Yellowstone National park, protected by the government and existing under practically natural conditions. The New York zoological park has a herd of fifty or sixty splendid animals, and they are breeding satisfactorily in captivity. There are several small herds on western ranches, and efforts to cross them with cattle have been tolerably successful, the hybrid being called the "cattalo" and having characteristics of both its parents. These cattalo in turn breed so that animals of various mixtures are obtained. The pictures printed above were made at the ranch owned by Major Gordon W. Lillie, better known as "Pawnee Bill." His ranch, located near Pawnee, Okla., is the home of a considerable herd of buffalo, which have been domesticated and are treated the same as cattle. They retain their physical characteristics, as the photograph shows, but they are comparatively tame.

His Frankness Won.
The late Senator Dooliver said that in politics it paid to be frank and honest with the people.

"My predecessor in the senate," he said, "was John H. Gear. On one occasion the prohibition spirit was running high, and a public meeting was held, with a well known Quaker as chairman. Gear was invited to the meeting. He accepted the invitation. The old Quaker called him to the platform and said:

"We learn that thou dost not belong to any temperance society and also that thou dost drink liquor at thy discretion. Is this true?"

"Every word of it is true," replied Gear, "but did you ever hear of my doing anything dishonorable?"

"Nay, Mr. Gear," replied the old Quaker chairman—"nay, we have never heard anything else to thy discredit. Thy frankness is more to be commended than thy habits. But thou hast not lied to us, and we will support thee."

"And they did," said Senator Dooliver, "and elected him too."—Washington Star.

Her Bridge Prize.
A decided coldness between two women who had been friends for many years is the result of a mistake made by the maid of one of them who had had a four table bridge party one afternoon recently. In keeping with the custom, she had provided a prize for each table, to be brought to the card room just before tea was served and placed on the tables which bore the corresponding numbers. It was a "lovely party" in every respect, with never a hitch until the woman at No. 3 opened the parcel which was supposed to contain her trophy of victory over her three competitors, but which really contained a piece of perfumed soap. Unfortunately, the hostess was not in the group when the package was opened, and much had been said before she discovered that the wrong bundle had been brought downstairs.—New York Tribune.

The Louvre.
The Louvre dates away back to the reign of Dagobert in 628. In 1204 it was a prison and in 1364 was made into a library. The new building was begun by Francis I. in 1528 and enlarged and adorned by successive kings, principally by Louis XIV. But it was Napoleon I. who gave the Louvre its real glory. Turning it into a museum, Napoleon deposited in it the finest collection of paintings, statues and art treasures known in the world. The magnificent buildings of the new Louvre were begun by Napoleon I. and completed by Napoleon III. about 1857.

The Seal's Marvelous Instinct.
The instinct of the seal is marvelous. It will leave its young on the ice in the morning and, going down through a hole, remain away all day swimming in search of food. Returning in the evening, it will locate its offspring in the same "patch" among hundreds of thousands of other baby seals notwithstanding that the ice may have wheeled or drifted fifty or sixty miles during the day from wind and tide and notwithstanding that the patch may extend thirty or forty miles from one end to the other. Whether this instinct is of the class that enables the bird without any mark or chart in a forest with millions of trees alike to find its way back with ease and precision to its nest I do not know, but it is one of those wonders in nature before which human knowledge is brought to a full stop.—Sir Edward Morris in Wide World Magazine.

Easily Attained.
"I am determined to live in luxurious surroundings and eat and drink the best the land affords," said the frankly selfish man.

"That ought to be easily arranged," replied Miss Cayenne. "All you have to do is to get a situation as a butler."—Washington Star.

Wishing Them a Safe Voyage.
"Mabel and George, after much quarrelling over the arrangements for their honeymoon, have decided to take the trip in an airship."

"Well, I trust that when they get above the clouds they won't have a falling out!"—Widow.

HELPFUL HINTS ON HAIR HEALTH.

Scalp and Hair Troubles Generally Caused by Carelessness.

Dandruff is a contagious disease caused by a microbe which also produces baldness. Never use a comb or brush belonging to some one else. No matter how cleanly the owner may be, these articles may be infected with microbes, which will infect your scalp. It is far easier to catch hair microbes than it is to get rid of them, and a single stroke of an infected comb or brush may well lead to baldness. Never try on anybody else's hat. Many a hatband is a resting place for microbes. If you happen to be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair or baldness, we have a remedy which we believe will completely relieve these troubles. We are so sure of this that we offer it to you with the understanding that it will cost you nothing for the trial if it does not produce the results we claim. This remedy is called Rexall "33" Hair Tonic. We honestly believe it to be the most scientific remedy for scalp and hair troubles, and we know of nothing else that equals it for effectiveness, because of the results it has produced in thousands of cases.

Rexall "33" Hair Tonic is devised to banish dandruff, restore natural color when its loss has been brought about by disease, and make the hair naturally silky, soft and glossy. It does this because it stimulates the hair follicles, destroys the germ matter, and brings about a free, healthy circulation of blood, which nourishes the hair roots, causing them to tighten and grow new hair. We want everybody who has any trouble with hair or scalp to know that Rexall "33" Hair Tonic is the best hair tonic and restorative in existence, and no one should scoff at or doubt this statement until they have put our claims to a fair test, with the understanding that they pay us nothing for the remedy if it does not give full and complete satisfaction in every particular. Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.
