> The New York Press of Tuesday contains an interesting story about a former Honesdale minister who served years ago as pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church. The article is as follows: Dissensions among trustees and members of the Third German Reformed Church of Bayonne, which led to the removal of the pastor, the Rev. Herbert Coenen, resulted yesterday in the forma-tion of a rival congregation, the Church of Peace, with Coenen as pastor. The new congregation at once will start to raise funds for a church building. Twenty-five familles withdrew from the old congregation and joined the new, and the entire confirmation class which re-ceived instructions from Coenen followed suit and will be confirmed on Palm Sunday in the People's Baptist

The Pastor's Ald Society of the Presbyterian church usually gives a social after each "Martha," and last Friday was no exception to the rule. The women decided also to pay off the $400 of church indebtedness, and this will leave a balance of over $200, as the net profit from the Martha Washington dinner was $635.30.

"The Flower of the Ranch," which comes to the Lyric on Thursday, March 30, is another one of Joseph E. Howard's dozen or more musical successes and is one of the most unique things yet given to the public by this prolific music writer. "The Flower of the Ranch" is a musical melodrama, filled with a lot of rat-tling good musical numbers, and the thing good musical numbers, and the novelty of the piece lies in the fact that it is as closely worked out, in the minutest detail, as any of the highest class dramatic productions. There are nearly twenty of the catchiest musical numbers and a big chorus, both of which could be removed and then there would still be a corking good play of the Western a corking good play of the Western kind. During the action and development of the story, in which there are a lot of strenuous melodramatic situations, Mr. Howard has very clavery introduced some first the story of the strength of the story of the stor very cleverly introduced some of his best music, which makes it surpris-ingly pleasing and interesting. "The Pajamas and the Nighties," a pretty duet backed by a bevy of girls clad in shimmering nighties and pink pasufficiently clever and pleasing to benevolenc hold up any musical attraction, even per capita.
