LOOKOUT.

[Special to The Citizen.]

LOOKOUT, Pa., April 4.—The Dairyman's League is rapidly progressing in New York state as well as Pennsylvania. There are now leagues organized in five states where milk is shipped to New York City. The Dairyman's League has already 100,000 cows or more enrolled on the league book and it is expected that before the present year ends there will be not less than 200,000 cows recorded. It is conceded there is no other way for the dairyman to have a voice in naming a price on their dairy products than to organize. Not only are the farmers interested in this great movement but business men of all kinds express themselves as interested in the organization of the farmers. Every farmer and milk producer should join the Dairyman's League now and help push this great work along and bring it to a grand success. Organization is the farmer's only salvation. Anyone wishing to join the dairyman's league can get full information by writing or phoning Grant Homley, secretary, at Lookout.

Gertrude Smith, Hawley, passed a time recently with her mother here.

Mrs. A. Goble and daughter, Hazel, and Phil Sheeley passed Sunday last with friends at Ariel.

STEENE.

[Special to The Citizen.]

STEENE, Pa., April 4.—After several years experimenting on a way to save the wasted sap that runs to waste every season on account of rain storms filling the sap buckets, Farmer Denny has at last invented a spile that is all right in every respect. The spile has a little faucet that will close up all avenues for the sap to escape which holds the sap back in the tree until needed.

Mr. Denny taps about 125 trees and if the sap gets to running faster than he can handle it, he will visit each tree and close the faucet just so it will run to suit him, and again if he sees a storm brewing he will visit each tree, gather in the sap, shut the faucet and turn the bucket upside down until the storm has passed over.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaylon Perry, Carbondale, spent Saturday night and Sunday with friends at Steene.

Nathan Walker, Aldenville, is visiting friends at Steene.
