SAVE THE NEWSPAPERS

THE SALVATION ARMY CAN MAKE GOOD USE OF THEM.
If a hungry man could eat newspapers you would not burn them, throw them away, or give them to the junk man. You would save every one for the Salvation Army which feeds and finds work for those who are in need. Please remember this and save your old newspapers, magazines, books, rags and clothing for the Salvation Army Industrial Home, 437 Franklin Avenue, Scranton, Pa. Would you prefer to hear the music of the organ, or the wall of the hungry? Think! Remember every little bit helps! The wagon marked Salvation Army Industrial Home will be in Honesdale and Seelyville Monday, April 3, and all of the same week. Headquarters at Braman's Hivery.

WHEN THERE IS ILLNESS

in your family you of course call a reliable physician. Don't stop at that; have his prescriptions put up at a reliable pharmacy, even if it is a little farther from your home than some other store. You can find no more reliable store than ours. It would be impossible for more care to be taken in the selection of drugs, etc., or in the compounding. Prescriptions brought here, either night or day, will be promptly and accurately compounded by a competent registered pharmacist and the prices will be most reasonable.

State Model Orchard Meetings.

The third week of the State Model Orchard demonstration schedule covering the entire State, is now in progress. These meetings are held in the orchards of public institutions and private individuals for the purpose of teaching farmers and fruit growers the best methods of suppressing pests and growing perfect fruit with the least outlay of time and money, and are conducted by the Horticultural Inspectors in charge of Prof. Surface, Economic Zoologist, of the State Department of Agriculture.

Reports of the last two weeks from the neighborhoods in which demonstrations were given shown unprecedented interest and attendance. Exercises begin at one o'clock p. m., and two of the dates and places scheduled for next week are as follows:

Hun Brothers, Waymart, Wayne county, April 6.
Hon. Alonzo T. Searle, Siko, Lebanon township, April 7.

The Wayne Cut Glass Company, according to the Reporter-Journal, Towanda, is rapidly getting in shape to double their output and to run the factory full capacity. When the company moved to Towanda, although they had a full equipment of cutting machines, only a few were fitted up in running order, but the remainder are now being put in commission as rapidly as capable operators can be secured. Within the last ten days 20 skilled glass cutters have been employed, making the working force now about sixty-five, and additional workmen will be employed as soon as the machines are ready for them.

The company increased their capitalization a short time ago, as the business was growing to an extent that required a much larger output. The plant is running full time, they are behind in orders, with plenty of new business in sight. This condition speaks well for the management and the quality of the work done, as other cut glass factories throughout the country are reducing working forces in the face of slack business. The Wayne Cut Glass Company is an industry of which Towanda may well be proud and it has come to stay.

chose the clothes, and let some sweet girl pine out her life in maidenhood. They were wretched fellows who did not know in what true happiness consisted. Better the love of a sweet and pure wife than all the silk clothes and gaudy waist coats in the world.

"Come back," said Dr. Hemphill, "to the simple life. Learn that true love consists in woman's gentle love. This dreary bachelorhood is destroying yours by making you selfish and destroying hers by robbing her of the husband and children God intended for her."

He knew that things were dear, and that people expected more luxury than their parents had, but those expectations must be discouraged. "For God's sake," he concluded, "pitch away your tobacco, annual outing, your fine clothes, your club, and what else makes such an inroad upon your income that you cannot think of holy marriage. It is a glorious thing to be the father or mother of even the poorest family."

Two Million Irish-Born in the United States.

A press dispatch from Washington says:

Two million, in round numbers, is the approximate Irish-born population at present in the United States. While these are not the official figures of the thirteenth census, it is a close estimate based upon the 1900 census and the immigration and emigration of Irish-born immigrants during the ten years following.

There were exactly 1,619,449 Irish-born in the United States in 1900. New York had the most, there being 425,553 in the Empire State; Massachusetts came second, with 249,916; Pennsylvania third, with 205,909; Illinois fourth, with 114,565, and New Jersey fifth, with 94,844.

Immigration from Ireland for the past ten years has been uniformly steady, averaging about 37,000 yearly. From June 30, 1899, to January of this year 427,741 Irish immigrants entered the United States.

The population of Ireland (estimated) for 1909 was 4,374,158. Ireland's population has steadily decreased for the past sixty years.

PALM SUNDAY.

We are about to enter upon a week of solemn and awful memories. It is the week which our fathers called the "Great Week," because it was great in what it saw accomplished—our Saviour's deepest agony and mysterious death. In early days business was suspended, in order that all might give themselves to prayer, fasting and almsdeeds.

Looking back over nineteen centuries ago, we behold two memorable processions. But what a contrast—what a difference in scope and character. The one took place in the Imperial city of Rome, the other occurred in Jerusalem, the city of peace.

Cesar entered Rome in a golden chariot drawn by richly caparisoned horses. The buildings along the streets through which he passed were almost concealed by festoons of costly silks and banners. He was preceded by "Heralds"—surrounded by the flower of the Roman Army and followed by captive kings, princes and generals whom he had conquered on many a hard fought field of battle.

Less than a century later our Saviour entered Jerusalem. There was nothing formal and conventional about this procession—nothing spectacular and theatrical. Seated on a humble beast of burden—and that borrowed—He rode for the first time in His life. The outpouring of the people was spontaneous. They were powerfully drawn to Him. Instead of flags and banners, they carried Palm branches in their hands. Instead of costly silks, they cast their garments on the way. No Heralds went before to announce His approach—no guard of honor attended him—no captive kings and princes followed in His train. Those who followed Him were the men and women whom He had rescued from the bondage of sin. Among them were the hungry whom He had fed. The sick whom He had healed. The lepers whom He had cleansed, the dead whom He had raised to life and the little children whom He had blessed.

But this triumphal entry which we have just considered reminds us of another triumphal entry. In many churches throughout Christendom souls are waiting to make their public entry into the spiritual city

Rehbein Entertains.

Interesting and amusing and thoroughly informal the "Evening of Magic," given by A. J. Rehbein, the "Wizard of Wonderland," in Grace church last evening was heartily enjoyed by the big audience that filled the auditorium and laughed every minute or so while the performance lasted.

Mr. Rehbein's biggest "stunt" was the production of about fifty little paper flags from what seemed to be an innocent looking sheet of tissue paper. The flags were handed around to the audience and bore the inscription: "Grace M. E. Church, Rev. S. C. Hearn, pastor, Newburg, N. Y., March 24, 1911. Compliments of A. J. Rehbein, Wizard of Wonderland." Each person in the audience received one of the little flags as a souvenir.

Mr. Rehbein has appeared as an entertainer at other churches of which Mr. Hearn has been pastor, and although this was his first appearance here as a magician, he is well known in Newburg as a shoe salesman, and there were several down town business men at Grace church last night to witness his wonder and laughter-provoking exhibition. Mr. Rehbein did his "tricks" right down among the audience, and took a number of articles from the persons of John J. E. Harrison, George Northrup and other well-known West End residents, amidst the hearty laughter of their friends.

Mr. Rehbein's home is at Honesdale, and, as he says, he "sells shoes as a recreation and performs magic stunts for a living." Any announcement of Mr. Rehbein's return to Newburg will be received with delight not only by West Enders, but by everybody who saw or has heard of his performance last night. [Newburg News.]

UNFIT FOR PUBLICATION.

Remarks Made About 1911 Brand of March Weather Are Nasty.

Starting with the last week of October, 1910, the weatherman has been handing out a continuous vaudeville performance that instead of applause, begins to invite sulphurous adjectives and uncomplimentary comment, according to the Altoona Mirror. The average citizen had made such inroads upon his coal cellar before Christmas that he was fondly hoping for an early spring and had visions of greensward and daisies about the middle of March.

But he had not read the program right, as the concluding numbers of the show were of a different order, and what March had in store was on the next page. January and February were comparatively mild, but when old Mother Earth approached the vernal equinox the livelier the performance grew, and since the advent of gentle spring the vagaries of that unceremonious maiden have been something scandalous.

Her propensity to flirt with the grim old god who was supposed to go into retirement on the 21st have been constant and irritating to the citizen who likes to see things done decently and in order.

This was one of the meanest days of the season, a soft, clinging snow filling the atmosphere most of the time, with occasional fleeting rays of sunshine relieving the gloom. The pavements were mushy and the overhead conditions abominable, with the result that the populace was irritable and inclined to be profane. The only fellows who are getting any comfort out of the protracted act of the versatile dancer who now occupies the weather stage are the coal men, as all furnace fires must be kept going at about the usual heat in order to avoid doctor's bills, and at that there is much sneezing and sniffing.

But large hopes are based upon the possibilities in the advent of the Easter full moon, and perhaps we shall then jump into a warm spell that will set us all grumbling again.

The State Of Matrimony.

Some outspoken remarks concerning selfish bachelors were made by the Rev. Dr. Hemphill of Tipperary, at the conference of the Church of Ireland at Belfast the other day, says the London Daily Mail.

A woman of the farming class, he said, remarked to him the other day that the population was running very thin. He wondered what had come over the young men that they preferred patent leather boots and spats and a fortnight's "swelling" at the seaside, to the joys of family life.

Their wages would not allow both the fine clothes and a wife. They
