Father J. W. Balta officiating, with interment in the German Catholic cemetery. Miss Eichholzer's parents resided in Honesdale formerly, and she was a cousin of Mayor John Kuhbach.

It is hoped that the people of Honesdale will be very liberal in their support of the benefit performance, at the Lyric on next Monday evening, April 24, for the widows and orphans of the victims of the recent Pancoast Mine Disaster, Throop, Pa. No admission will be charged. Give whatever amount you can conveniently spare in order to help the poor suffering people of Throop. The performance will consist of five reels of new and interesting moving pictures. The management expects to have an especially fine program on this occasion, so do not forget the date, Monday, April 24. Be generous.

Great interest is being taken in the coming Base Ball Minstrels at the Lyric on Thursday evening, April 27. It promises to be one of the most pleasing local performances ever given here. The first part will be elaborately staged, both in scenic and electrical effects, and will be called "The Japanese Lawn Festival." Hundreds of fancy Jap lanterns will be used to dress the stage and in each one will be an electric light. One of the largest umbrellas ever made arrived on Wednesday and will be used to make up the scenic effects of part one. Some of the best local and professional talent will take part in the affair, both in the first and second parts. Wilson and Rich, a guaranteed team of comedians, direct from the Keith and Proctor circuit, will introduce their singing and dancing specialty, "Just Before the Wedding," a new original act by Dorin and Carroll, will surely make a great hit. Harry Madden, the man with a big voice, will assist in both parts of the performance. Seat sale starts at the box office on Tuesday, April 25.

They comprised a collection of distinguished looking kids, warm and sweaty, from the east side, gathered about the drinking fountain adjoining the resthouse at the entrance to Central Park in the shadow of the Plaza Hotel, and were falling over each other to get to the water first. Two of the most enterprising got hold of the tins and were in no hurry to let go. One of the kids sang out: "Aw, git a move on! What do youse take this for—the Plaza bar?"

AMUSEMENTS.

Return Engagement of "The Arrival of Kitty."

The attraction at the Lyric on Friday, May 5, will be that unequalled success, "The Arrival of Kitty," a comedy with music. Playgoers who love clean, wholesome amusement will extend a cordial welcome to the return of this delightful comedy. The situations are perplexing and the lines of the piece are clever and witty. The comedy is of a different sort, however, to the regular run of comedies as no slap-stick or rough house work is indulged in to create a laugh.

Taft's Son Water Carrier.

The family love of baseball has attacked Charlie Taft, youngest son of the President, and he has gone into the game in the role of water carrier. He is too slender to play on the team of the Taft school, where he is a student, but he has been told that the water carriers rise till they finally become managers of teams, and he has begun at the bottom.

In a late game between the Hartford High school and Tuft school teams he carried bucket after bucket of water across the diamond to slake the thirst of the athletes, and when the Hartford players learned that it was the President's son who was holding the pail for their benefit there were renewed calls for water.

Chinese Superstition.

The Chinese are offering stubborn resistance to the European doctors who are endeavoring to stamp out the plague. The authorities and the doctors, we learn from a French source, are at their wit's end, for the educated Celestials share with the common people a belief that the hygienic measures and clinical treatment advocated by European surgeons are designed to kill and not cure the people. One of the legends which has a powerful influence over the people is that the Europeans want the bodies, more especially the eyes, for the preparation of different medicines. More horrible stories still are circulated, and it is said the native press is much to blame for not endeavoring to educate the people up to an understanding of European medical and surgical treatment.—London Globe.

A Fairly Wet World.

The Pacific Ocean covers 68,000,000 miles, the Atlantic 30,000,000 and the Indian, Arctic and Antarctic 42,000,000. To stow away the contents of the Pacific it would be necessary to fill a tank one mile long, one mile wide and one mile deep every day for 440 years. Put in figures the Pacific holds in weight 948,000,000,000,000,000 tons. The Atlantic averages a depth of not quite three miles. Its water weighs 352,000,000,000,000,000 tons, and a tank to contain it would have each of its sides 430 miles long. The figures of the other oceans are in the same startling proportions. It would take all the sea water in the world, 2,000,000 years to flow over Niagara.—Far News.

A Mistaken Notion.

They comprised a collection of distinguished looking kids, warm and sweaty, from the east side, gathered about the drinking fountain adjoining the resthouse at the entrance to Central Park in the shadow of the Plaza Hotel, and were falling over each other to get to the water first. Two of the most enterprising got hold of the tins and were in no hurry to let go. One of the kids sang out: "Aw, git a move on! What do youse take this for—the Plaza bar?"

OBITUARY.

PELTON—In Hamlin, April 17, 1911, Mrs. Louise Pelton, aged fifty-four years.

Death of Andrew Krantz.

The many friends of Andrew Krantz will be pained to learn of his death at his home No. 115 South Church street, Carbondale, at 6:10 o'clock Wednesday morning, following an illness of but one week's duration. His death was caused by ulcers of the stomach and although partly expected, his demise came as a painful shock to the family who have the sincere sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Krantz was born in Honesdale February 21, 1855, and went to Carbondale about twenty years ago where he had resided almost continuously since. He was a member of one of Carbondale's most respected families which was for many years prominently identified with the business life of the community. He was a son of the late Peter Krantz, founder of the extensive brewery on South Church street, that city. Deceased was a man who possessed a quiet and unassuming nature and during his many years of residence in that city he became very well known and surrounded himself with a wide circle of friends who will receive the news of his death with keen regret. He was a man of sterling character and sturdy integrity, just in all ways and kindly and generous in spirit. He was greatly admired and warmly esteemed by all who knew him. In his death Carbondale sustains the loss of one of its estimable and admirable citizens.

Besides his wife he is survived by his daughter, Mary Gertrude; his mother, Mrs. Peter Krantz, and the following brothers: Joseph, Peter, John, Charles and Frank. The funeral was held Monday morning.

Mr. Krantz was a native of Honesdale and a son of the late Peter Krantz, proprietor for several years of the Irving Cliff brewery at this place.

Gambling in Wood.

"To most people my business would seem to be devoid of chances," said a dealer in fine woods, "yet as a matter of fact I know of nothing that is more of a gamble. On every log of wood we buy we take a chance that the inside is as good as the outside. At a recent auction of fine woods in London my partner and I paid $9,000 for a mahogany log that looked all right so far as we could tell. If the inside was sound we stood to make a good profit, but worm holes or rotten spots at the core would mean a heavy loss. Not until we got the log to this country and got it opened up could we be certain. As a matter of fact this particular log was perfect, and we cleaned up $3,000 on the deal. But it was gambling pure and simple."—New York Sun.

Losing Her Interest.

"Mrs. Billerock is getting old—I know it." "What now?" "She says that the stores don't have as good bargains now as formerly."—Buffalo Express.

The Matter's Comment.

"How gracefully young Skivett raises his hat!" "I wish he could raise the price of the hat half as gracefully."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Garrick and Kitty Clive.

Kitty Clive, the paramount soprano of Garrick's time, was celebrated for her temper and her spiteful tongue. She denied "little Davy" had skill in tragedy and mocked at him when he prepared to put on "Hamlet." During the performance she stood in the wings, intending to scoff, but she was carried away with enthusiasm in spite of herself and applauded vigorously. "Well, Kitty," asked Garrick as he came off the stage, "have I convinced you that I can act in tragedy?" "Kitty burst into tears of vexation, declaring, "Why, — you, Davy, you could act a gridiron!"

Fine Scheme.

Wife—Please match this piece of silk for me before you come home. Husband—At the counter where the sweet little blond works, the one with the soulful eyes and— Wife—No. You're too tired to shop for me when your day's work is done, dear. On second thought I won't bother you.—Detroit News.

Bait.

She—Why, Charlie, you seem to have become quite a man of fashion—such clothes, such jewelry! He—Yes; you see, my creditors are very anxious that I should get married.—Simplicissimus.

Their Use.

"Do you enjoy your meals, old man?" "Enjoy my meals?" snorted the indignant dyspeptic. "My meals are merely gudgeposts to take medicine before or after."—Washington Herald.

The Way of the World.

"Isn't it awful? According to the papers there just seems to be one revolution after another." "Yes. That's the way the world goes round."—Judge

Helping Dad.

Small Johnny—Papa, would you be glad if I saved a dollar for you? Papa—Certainly, my son. Small Johnny—Well, I saved it for you, all right. You said if I brought a first class report from my teacher this week you would give me a dollar, and I didn't bring it.—Chicago News.

What She Wanted.

Father (to his daughter)—I've brought you a sither for your birthday, my dear, and a book by which you can teach yourself to play on it in a month. Daughter—But it was the sither teacher I wanted most.—Pilegedde Blatter.

Les Lieutenants de la Louveterie.

Wolves have long been extinct in France, yet there are a hundred "lieutenants de la louveterie" whose nominal duty it is to keep these animals under. Among the holders of this office are aristocrats such as the Prince d'Arenberg and the Marquis de Clermont-Tonnerre, and millionaires like the Comte Grefulhe and M. Van Lebaudy. They draw no salary, but the State provides them with a heavy uniform, the buttons of which are adorned with wolves' heads. The distinction is keenly sought after, as the "lieutenants de la louveterie" have shooting rights in all the State domains and thus enjoy some of the best sport in France.—Westminster Gazette.

A Corner in Candles.

As an example of trusts and monopolies prevalent even in that early day it may be mentioned that in 1750 one Benjamin Crabb obtained the exclusive right to make sperm candles in Massachusetts for fourteen years. A year later, however, a factory was started in Providence, R. I., and within the decade there were eight factories in New England and one in Philadelphia. Their output greatly reduced the price of candles, which not long before sold for five shillings a pound. In those days $1.25 was worth fully three times as much as it is now.—Designer.

A Color Blind Giant.

Six feet five and one-half inches tall, weighing 225 pounds and 27 years of age, Ollie Throet of Nebraska, erstwhile cowpuncher and tired of shore life, desired to enter the navy. This man was pronounced by the examining surgeon as a perfect specimen of manhood, with the exception that he was quite color blind, and for that reason alone he had to be rejected.—Bluejacket.

Yield of One Pennsylvania Oak.

The largest oak tree in Huntington township, Adams county, was cut recently on the farm of John R. Sadler. The tree was five feet across the stump and took the men several hours to place it prostrate. Eleven hundred and three large wagon spokes were taken from the trunk and twelve cords of wood were cut from the top and branches.—Philadelphia Record.

Kentucky Farmer's Trolley Line.

Dock Fowler, a well known farmer who lives east of Madisonville, is promoting a railroad or trolley line from Madisonville to Ashbysburg in order to facilitate the delivery of coal, timber and produce. His plan is for the farmers along the line to grade their land, to put down the ties, organize a stock company and run a trolley system to Ashbysburg, a distance of thirteen miles.—Madisonville Hunter.
