

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Overall, One of Few Players to Really Quit Baseball.

Cases of ball players deliberately retiring while still with plenty of good playing left in them are few and far between. In fact, the number of ball tossers who quit the big leagues voluntarily can almost be counted on the fingers of one hand.

Germany Has Crack Sprinter. For the first time in the history of track and field sports Germany has produced a first class sprinter, and this man, who is little more than a beginner, is likely to prove a stumbling block to the visitors at the Swedish Olympic games next year.

Unique Baseball Team Formed. A remarkable baseball team is being organized by the students of the University of Pennsylvania. It is to be called the Cosmopolitans. The name is appropriate, as in the lineup are natives of China, Korea, Cuba, Porto Rico and, of course, the United States.

Japs to Be Here Soon. The Waseda university baseball team of Tokyo, Japan, which is coming to this country as the guests of the University of Chicago, is expected to arrive in San Francisco the latter part of April.

Try Baseball in England Again. Although baseball never yet has "caught on" in England, the National Baseball Association of London will make another big attempt this summer to popularize the American pastime in Great Britain.

There are no particularly good players in London, but an effort will be made to arrange a fixture between the Britishers and some "star" Americans. The Rhodes scholars at Oxford will also have teams.

COLLEGE ROWING PLANS FOR 1911

Pennsylvania Looms Up Strong For Poughkeepsie Race.

CORNELL STRIKES A SNAG.

Wholesale Defection Has Left Coach Courtney With Only Two Men of 1910 Boat—Columbia Has Lost Heavily, and So Have Badgers.

With a perceptible tightening of training the college oarsmen have moved into the second stage of their preparation. The more practicable work on the water has been put in motion at all of the big universities where rowing is a varsity sport.

Although gloomy enough in the depths of winter, the prospects for the annual regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., are better this year than usual, and without a doubt the crews will probably be more evenly matched than is usually the case.

Cornell lost not a single man by graduation, but a wholesale defection has left Courtney with only two men of the eight who rowed a year ago. The six men who have dropped out are all seniors and were members of the 1908 Cornell freshman crew which was transformed into the varsity eight of 1909.

The sudden loss of one crew does not seem to worry Courtney very much, however, and he has boated another eight, made up mostly of last year's freshman squad. Wisconsin lost half its crew by graduation, but the remaining four are still in college and will be a nucleus for the 1911 eight.

Pennsylvania and Syracuse have been the most fortunate so far as being able to hold on to their men is National League.

HOAGLAND, CAPTAIN OF PENNSYLVANIA CREW.

concerned. They have lost only one man apiece, and the Quakers in parcular are expecting great things of the crew that fought so splendid a race with Cornell last June. At Syracuse the situation has not been any too rosy, however, for a deficit in the athletic association of something more than $6,000 caused the suspension of the crew for several months, and although Coach Ten Eyck has received permission to go ahead the debt has not altogether been paid off.

There is good material at Princeton. The Tigers started outdoor work with fifty enthusiastic candidates. There are three varsity boats and a freshman's eight. The only regatta sanctioned by the faculty is the Yale-Cornell-Princeton race, to be held on Carnegie lake, May 19.

Harvard's outdoor work is very satisfactory. After several drills the men showed surprisingly clean blade work.

The Harvard varsity crew have at least one date for a race settled on their spring schedule, that with Cornell on May 27 on Lake Cayuga, at Ithaca. With the Cornell race at that time and the possibilities for the Yale race at about the same time in June, the Crimson oarsmen will be obliged to row a more crowded schedule than Wray would like to have, giving him only a month between the two important races to get the crew in shape for the event on the Thames.

At New Haven Yale is preparing very quietly. There are several of last year's crew left, and recent trials prove the Blue will be as strong as if not stronger than last season.

Was Good Once.

A certain well known composer now in the full vigor of his established reputation was at one time when he was comparatively unknown engaged in writing the music for a production favored by two managers who knew exactly what they wanted, in addition to knowing next to nothing of the musical classics. After having burned much midnight oil and worked himself into a state of semicollapse in a vain endeavor to produce a finale which would please them the composer tore up page after page of rejected manuscript and in despair took to the theater an entire section of "Faust" to which he had somehow managed to fit the words assigned to him. He played it over, and one of the managers said quite unfeelingly, "Well, Gus, the others were pretty bad, but this one is the rottenest of them all." "So?" remarked the weary musician dryly. "It was considered good when Gounod wrote it!"—Metropolitan Magazine.

One Story Eclipsed.

"Hot in Brazil?" said the young man who had just returned from a trip to South America. "Well, I should say so. Do you know, for days at a time we couldn't take our after dinner siesta on account of the peculiar noises."

"What noises?" asked the blond stenographer innocently.

"Why, the coffee popping on the trees. You see, the sun was so hot the grains just roasted before they were picked."

The old traveler yawned.

"Rather warm down there, huh," he rejoined laconically, "but when I was down there you couldn't sleep at night. Every once in a while there would sound the most extraordinary crackling noise that ever fell upon the human ear."

"What were the sounds, Mr. Bings?" And Mr. Bings yawned again and replied, "The rubber trees stretching themselves."—Chicago News.

Where One's Breath Falls as Snow. Verkholansk, a small village in the northeast of Siberia, is the coldest place in the world. It is a convict station. No precautions against escape are needed, for Verkholansk is guarded by the wind. Though the average temperature of the three worst winter months is 85 degrees of frost, intense cold like this is easy to bear in calm weather. But a strong breeze at that temperature or within 20 degrees of it will kill every living thing not under shelter. In the icy cold of Verkholansk an iron ax head dropped on the ground smashes like glass. A board of unseasoned wood, on the other hand, freezes as hard as steel. Frozen nicotine blocks the stem of tobacco pipes, while one's breath falls at one's feet in a fine white powder.
