Down in Scranton men are deserting their wives, says the Scranton Times. The aldermen are kept busy, one alderman having had from one to two cases every day for three weeks. Most of the cases of neglect and non-support come from drink, so the aldermen say. Some of these brutes will sell the provision that the wife has bought for her family for half price and spend the proceeds for drink. Most of the husbands who brought before the aldermen promise to do better and beg off. But many of them are hauled up again and again for the same thing.

The timely discovery of a wash-out, Sunday evening, along the Erie Railroad at Red Rock Cut, a mile and a half below town, by Dwight Decker, averted what might have been a severe accident. Mr. Decker promptly notified the agent at Honesdale, and a gang of men was sent down to repair the damage. The Erie train due in Honesdale at 6:56 p. m. as consequence, was considerably delayed, and it was after 8 o'clock when she finally steamed into the union station.

"The lone redeeming feature," according to the comment of the Washington, D. C., Evening Star, of Thursday, May 18, on the game between Washington and St. Louis, played at St. Louis the day previous, "of yesterday's game was the showing of young Sherry. The game was lost before he took the mound, the final score being 9 to 2. Still in the six rounds he worked he held the Browns to four hits and three runs. His own inexperience and an error helped the Browns to the runs evharged against the former Youngstown right-hander."

SKATING SISTERS

Hot Springs, Arkansas. We've been up to Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Halifax.

"We've never had any accidents nor any sickness since we are roller skating."

"We have never been insulted. We always have been treated with the utmost respect ever since we began to skate."

In comparing the two sisters, the mother said that Zoe is the more agile, and does her work quicker, while Claire, the younger, is more graceful. To her mind, however, they are pretty well balanced.

When the reporter wanted to know where they learned their stunts" Zoe said: "Most of our stunts are original. Of course we saw the fancy skaters skate. We do fancy dancing, and we never took any dancing lessons."

Prof. Wallace, she said, an old-time skater, a man about fifty years of age, who has written a book on skates, is perhaps the best skater in the country.

"We fall once in a while," laughingly admitted Zoe, "but not very often. It doesn't seem to tire us at all. It makes us eat and sleep well."

When asked what they considered their most difficult feat, Zoe said, "Whirling around on our toes, because it is hard to balance and it makes us dizzy."

In response to the question as to how old a child should be before being allowed to skate, Zoe said, "five years old as a rule."

"Our skates are made to order for us. They are always presented to us. I tried every kind there is. "People should never skate in pumps. The ankle should be braced by some kind of high shoe."

During their travels over the continent, the El Rey sisters have always been hospitably received everywhere they went. At St. Catharines, Canada, one of the King's regiments came to see them perform. They skated before the late Governor Johnson of Minnesota, whose wife took them out to lunch.

They jump back and forth considerably on their tours. When they left Honesdale earlier in the season they went to Marlinton, West Virginia, and thence on up through the western tier of counties in Pennsylvania. Towanda they considered one of the best roller skating towns in the State, and Williamsport is also a good skating town.

In summer their favorite pastime is horseback riding. The sisters have also given exhibitions on ice skates in Canada.

How To Roller-Skate. The reporter, who unfortunately hasn't as yet learned to roller-skate, was anxious to know how to learn. "The first thing," said Zoe, "a beginner should do, is to walk on the skates first."

When the suggestion was gently made that this might be easier said than done, Zoe laughingly remarked: "They can if they have the nerve. I always advise every person to go alone. The majority of people are timid."

"When they can once stand on their feet, they should learn to strike out, and when they strike out, they should bend their knees, and they should swing their body the way they strike."

To prove her contention that roller-skating was a healthful sport, Zoe showed the newspaperman a large scrapbook containing stories clipped from papers from all over the country, among which was a lengthy article taken from Health Culture magazine; advocating roller-skating as a healthful pastime.

The sisters have been repeatedly presented with medals, lockets and diamond rings. They receive the usual quota of letters from cranks, the latest being one from a man by the name of Davis of West Virginia, who wrote them that he is going to write a novel and the climax is to be the answer he will get to his letter. It is just barely possible that that particular prospective "best seller" may be minus a last chapter.

Zoe weighs 130 pounds and her sister Claire 123. They are perfect specimens of girlhood, with the glow of health and beauty written all over their agile persons. Withal they are bright and intelligent young people, beyond the average.

If all the sickly and weak children could be transformed into strong robust girls by learning to roller skate, it would be well for the public school authorities of Honesdale to continue to foster the growth of this healthful sport, as they have done for some time past.

And when little five-year-old Johnny can't eat oatmeal for breakfast, without having to tell his "Mommer" ten minutes afterwards, "Oh, I'm so sick," "I'm so sick," it's high time for "Popper" to go out and buy him a pair of roller skates, and turn little Johnny loose on the front porch. [N. B. They range in price from 25 cents to $6.]
