FRIDAY, JUNE 9, 1911.

Of course there are a few trial marriages, but nothing in proportion to the number of marriages that are trials.

An exchange says that "Mary Garden wore an air of indifference." Mary always did believe in quality not quantity.

-:0:-At that, there will probably be as much joy as gloom among those 1,500 Chicago couples whose marriages have been declared illegal. -:0:-

Dan O'Reilly, the New York lawyer, was pretty well known before as one of the lawyers who defended Harry Thaw, but he'll be better known now as having been sentenced to five months in the penitentiary for receiving stolen goods.

:0: Joseph C. Robin, who stole $27,000 from the Washington Savings Bank of New York, and who was convicted a month or two or three or four months ago, has had his sentence postponed until October. Probably considered that it would be inconvenient to stay in jail during the heated term. But suppose, for instance, he had stolen a ham. How long would it have taken for him to get eighteen years in the penitentiary?-Philadelphia Inquirer. About eighteen seconds, though of course it all would depend on whose ham it was.

THE MAN ON THE JOB.

The election of a President in 1912 thrills some eager bosoms. More than one head awaits submissively or invitingly the lightning. "Political control is to be "restored to the people" if they will only be good enough to vote for Blank, the only man who "trusts" the people; he naturally expects a similar credit from them. There are candidates sedentary and candidates itinerant. And there is a shrinking altruist in Fourth avenue who actually believes that he is President. As for the thunder mouths that give valuable advice and directions about the conduct of the nation, considering how everybody who wants an office dotes on the people, it does seem queer that the people need so much instruction.

Meanwhile the President of the United States continues to give it an able and a dignified administration. He is frank, open, honest and brave. He has shown that he cannot be bulldozed by the threat or the hope of votes. He does things instead of bellowing about them. He appeals to Stokes told her. and relies directly upon the common and sober sense of the American peo-

More and more and better and better he is understood by the people, the actual American people, a very different entity from that mythical, neurotic monster, fed on flubdub and passionate for humbug, to which the especial worshippers of the dear people for its votes yell their homilies. True and equal to his duties, modest, moderate, judicious, a hater of hypocrisy, faithful to the Constitution, he pursues his difficult way. The chatter of candidates and the howl of ten-cent energumens cannot drown the multitudes of quiet voices of quiet folk, who watch public affairs, who "size up" public men slowly but inexorably. Those quiet voices are saying: "Taft is making a good enough President for me."-New York Sun. We don't know just what "energumens" are-will as soon as we can find a dictionary however but we agree with the rest of the editorial any

HAIL MADERO AS NATIONAL HERO

Victor Makes a Triumphant Entry Into Capital.

GREETED BY THOUSANDS.

Big Crowd That Waited For Hours to Escort Insurrecto Chief to National Palace Was Composed of the Poorer Class-No Disorders Reported.

City of Mexico, June 8 .- Francisco I. Madero, the nation's hero, is in the capital, having made the most triumphant entry in the history of Mexico. Unarmed, he has traveled from the border to the heart of the country. where six months ago he was a hunted outlaw. Now he is the nation's guest, surrounded on all sides by shouting. applauding Mexicans. He was escorted under triumphant arches and showered with flowers and confetti as he made his way from the station to the national palace.

Many of the crowd had been standing in line for hours. The train was two hours late. The crowd displayed the best of temper throughout the long wait. More than 500 young Maderistas organized into bands of twenty were stationed throughout the city with in structions to preserve order and prevent unruly demonstrations. The street cars were suspended in the center of the city during the progress of the demonstration. This was because of the fact that Tuesday the windows in many of the cars were broken and it was found impossible to keep any sort of a schedule.

Maderist organizers announced that they would guarantee perfect order. The newly appointed governor of the federal district issued a manifesto ad vising the people that order depended upon the people themselves.

Owner of Ansonia Hotel and One New York's Richest Men In Hospit. With Three Bullets In Legs, One .. Which May Prove Dangerous Woung

New York, June 8.-William i.: Dodge Stokes, owner of the Ans. hotel and one of the richest men li New York, was shot three times and seriously wounded by two young wo loor of the fashionable Varuna, at Broadway and Eightieth street, be was visiting.

The young women were Lillian Gra ham, twenty-two years old, a singer and Ethel Conrad, eighteen years old. an artist. Each fired three shots, Miss Graham's bullets inflicting two wounds and Miss Conrad's one.

The first two shots from the singer's revolver penetrated Mr. Stokes' right leg. One, in the thigh, may prove dangerous. The shot fired by the artist penetrated the lower part of Mr Stokes' left leg.

Lillian Graham, who said in the sta tion house that she was twenty-two years old and a singer, and Ethel Conrad, three years her junior, who didn't specify her occupation, were the two girls, who had a small apartment in the Varuna, at 225 West Eightieth street. They have been there only three or four weeks. Miss Graham talked rather freely to the matron of the station after she had been waiting for some one to come and bail her out She said that she and her marrie. sister lived together at the Ansoni four years ago and that they knew

Stokes at that time. A year ago sh and her sister went to Belgium, where she was to study music. The sister remained on the other side and Miss Graham came back to this city and set up light housekeeping in the threrooms and kitchenette in West Eight eth street.

She had some letters which Stoke had written her and though she be lieved there was nothing in them to cause anything like uneasiness shhadn't been back long before Mr Stokes began to phone to her abouthem. He didn't like the idea of having Miss Conrad where she could in hands on them, Miss Graham says that

Stokes went to the Varuna and the discussed the question of the letters She was alone in the sitting room with Stokes and Miss Conrad was in the adjoining bedroom. She says that she told him the letters were destroyed but that he doubted her word. The had an argument that grew more and more one sided, because Miss Graham said she didn't want to have trouble. Then Stokes came toward her, so she told the detectives and the matron and tried to choke her. She had a litlegs and fired. Miss Conrad came run ning in from the other room and she, too, has a pistol. Both girls opened fire again, but either they didn't shoot straight or else they intended to shoot low. The three bullets that struck Mr. Stokes lodged in his right leg.

Soon after Mr. Stokes was taken to the hospital his attorneys had a long talk with him. Mr. Stokes told this story to the lawyers:

"I got a telephone message from a woman calling herself Ethel Conrad of whom I had never heard before She told me where she was and said she had some letters that I had written to Miss Graham. She said Miss Craham had sailed on the Baltic and that if I wanted the letters I must come right away, as she expected to return to New Orleans with her brother at any time.

"I knew of Miss Graham, but t couldn't remember that I ever wrote her any letters. I decided, anyhow to go up and see about it. I had no sooner been seated in the parlor of the apartment before both women face: me and the door was locked behind me at once. I believe the women weralone in the apartment.

"Miss Graham then said she had some letters of mine and wanted $25,000 for them, but she made no move to show me any letters. Then both women drew revolvers from their pointed them at me. I thought they were only showing a little bravado and that they would soon cool down, but TO CONTEST JOHNSON WILL, the first thing I knew Miss Graham
