

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Joe Jackson, Naps' Hard Hitting Outfielder.

Those members of the Detroit team who went on record last winter as considering Joe Jackson only a fair hitter may have occasion to change their minds before the season is much older. Jackson is accomplishing some wonder stunts with his bat, and there does not seem to be the slightest doubt that he will be one of the contenders for batting honors in the American league this year.

Winans Buys Adam Bede.

Louis Winans of London has bought from John E. Madden of Hamburg Place, Lexington, Ky., the colt Adam Bede, a candidate for the English Derby and now in training at Newmarket. Madden shipped the colt to England some time ago. He is by Adam-Grace Gumberts, by Sainfoin. The youngster has made a good impression abroad and is being talked of as having a chance for the Derby.

Madden bought the colt recently from the Newcastle stable, but has refused to tell the price at which he sold, although $10,000, with a contingent sum in case the Derby is won, is the general guess.

Allan Winter Goes to Russia.

Allan Winter, the great trotting stallion, will do service in Russia this year. He has been taken to the czar's dominions by Frank Caton, who has just left this country after his third visit in eighteen years. Caton has done a lot toward building up trotting in Russia, and he likes the conditions that exist in the country. Allan Winter was purchased two years ago by Louis J. Winans for $50,000, and Caton recently secured the horse from Al Penneck, Winans' trainer.

Twirler in Good Form.

Frank Smith, the big right hand twirler of the Boston Red Sox, says he will be the team's star pitcher this year. Smith was secured with Purcell from the Chicago White Sox last year in exchange for Lord and McConnell, but he couldn't do much pitching because of a weak ankle. The big twirler is as well as ever and ready to do the bulk of the work on the slab this season.

New Foreign Wrestler Here.

Aleksander Stephanoff, a giant Bulgarian, weighing 250 pounds and standing six feet three inches in his athletic togs, is a new Richmond in the wrestling field, being decidedly anxious, according to his countryman, Pauko Kubadinoff, to take on Zlyesco or any of the mammoths now engaging the attention of the followers of the grappling game.

Pitcher Donovan Resting Up.

"Wild Bill" Donovan, former star of the Detroit Tigers' pitching staff, will not be called upon to pitch by Jennings until the hot summer winds blow. Hughie figures that Donovan should win almost every game he works when he is right and will not take any chances with the old war-horse.

Plane Stadium For Yale.

That the members of the special committee on the question of a stadium at Yale have as individuals expressed strong opinions in favor of a stadium of some kind, one with movable stands being preferred, is stated on high athletic authority.

PRONOUNCE NAME LIKE "LAN-FEET."

The name of Lafitte, the Pe-tro-troit American's good young right hander, is pronounced in three or four different ways. Few give the cognomen the correct pronunciation. The owner of the name says it is pronounced, or, rather, should be pronounced, as though it were spelled "Lah-feet."

WHY CHAMPION MILER, JONES TOOK UP ATHLETICS

Doctor Told Man Who Recently Made New World's Record He Hadn't Long to Live.

Another John Paul Jones has written his name in letters of gold on history's pages—John Paul Jones, student and athlete of Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.

The Jones of today has proved himself the premier mile runner of the world, and his name has become a household word wherever the great American press has entry.

John Paul Jones is a mere youth, just turned twenty years. He weighs 145 pounds. It is not so many years ago that his family physician in Washington, his home town, looked at him sorrowfully, felt his pulse, tested his lungs and shook his head hopelessly. "He hasn't many months of life," was the doctor's verdict. An athletic course of treatment was suggested, and this peerless athlete of today bears little resemblance to the stooped over, hollow cheeked weakling of a short time ago.

At home he was always an excellent student. He prepared for college at Exeter, where he established an enviable reputation as a middle distance runner. Despite the fact that both the Harvard and Yale scouts had their weather eye out for the lad, he headed for the university on the shores of Lake Cayuga.

In the big meet at Cambridge recently Jones established a new amateur world's record for the mile. His time was 4 minutes 15 2-5 seconds, a fifth of a second faster than that made by Tom Connett at Travers Island, New York, in August of 1895. When Connett ran the mile in 4 minutes 15 3-5 seconds he ran his first half in 2 minutes 8 seconds flat. The speed of Jones can best be appreciated when it is realized that he ran the last 440 yards of his mile in 60 1-5 seconds. The professional record for a mile is 4 minutes 12 2-5 seconds, made by W. G. George in England over five years ago.

Jones is the only man in the world today that looks up as having a possible chance to lower this professional record. After doing his record breaking mile stunt recently the Ithacan admitted that he felt very tired, and his half mile epoch making victory which followed was truly remarkable.

POULTRY NOTES BY C.M. BARNITZ RIVERSIDE PA. CORRESPONDENCE SOLICITED. Includes an illustration of a woman with a chicken.

A TRAGICAL ROMANCE.

A cat crouched on a garden fence. A maid at her window sat. A bachelor sat in his hencoop. With a gun for that old cat.

The cat sprang for the chickens. The bachelor shot at the cat. The maid fell from the window. And landed on her rat.

In his arms he lifted her gently. She started to frown; but, no. Just then cute Cupid arrived there. And drew back his strong bow.

The bachelor had missed the tomcat. But Cupid was a sure shot. He let his arrow go singing. And killed two birds at one shot. C. M. BARNITZ.

FITS, SUNSTROKE, LIMBERNECKS

These three ailments when seen among fowls are often confused, but there is a difference.

In fits or epilepsy the eyeballs turn back, lids open and close, head is thrown back, bird walks zigzag, lies on back and claws the air and flaps its wings on ground or faints dead away.

While at times these spasms have their cause in the brain, they mostly come from intestinal worms.

There are few cases where fanciers feed a worm killer occasionally, such as one tablespoonful of turpentine or a handful of oak ashes to every two quarts of mash.

The pressure of a finger tip on the eyeball will often bring a bird back to consciousness, and it will often run off seemingly none the worse for wear and may never have another attack.

Sunstroke is different. Like humans, the fowl is often struck down quick.

It generally lies where it falls and is often found with feet spread wide beneath the body.

If not killed by the stroke the victim often gets blind staggers, running into any obstacle in its path.

In case of sunstroke a dip in cold water will sometimes save, but young stock is generally killed outright.

A tablespoonful of epsom salts is also given to old stock. Limberneck gets its name from the chief symptoms of this trouble.

The neck gets limber as a cotton string, and the bird flattens out. The chief cause is maggots in meat or sour mash.

The maggots get on to the nerves. The chicks in the picture have found the carcass of a sunstroke victim and are helping themselves to a dose of limberneck.

As a remedy for this trouble first remove the cause, then give the victim a two grain asafoetida pill and place a teaspoonful of hypsulphite of soda in every quart of drinking water.

DON'TS.

Don't strain at a gnat and swallow a gold brick.

Don't live among the relics of the past in this bright age when all improves so fast. This is a day of advanced thought, a day when wonders great are wrought. So let us with the might and main of heart, of hand, of busy brain, a greater victory still attain and win eternity's acclaim.

Don't be a pickle. A sweet smile doesn't cost you a red cent. Then smile—yes, smile—to all and spread content.

Don't let your temper get the best of you, for then you surely show the worst of you. That temper is to steel your will, your heart, your brain, your hand, that you may reach success, sublime and grand. So make it help you in your valiant fight until you're crowned a victor on yon golden height.

Don't ship dressed or live fowls by freight. If they don't spoil or die they may get there too late.

Don't be in a hurry to dun a customer. Deal on a cash basis if possible. When some people say, "Just charge that to me," you never a cent of their spendulicks see.

Don't make roost slats round and narrow. Corns.

Don't have nests too small. Broken eggs.
