SIGNED EDITORIALS.

Senator Grady, New York, has introduced a bill into the legislature requiring that the signature of the writer be attached to every editorial hereafter published in a newspaper in the Empire state. The Grady bill provides that every newspaper published in New York must set aside a page or part of a page as an editorial section and that every article appearing therein must bear the full and true name of the writer. If the bill becomes a law the New York yellows and others employing large staffs of writers will bear an imposing lot of signatures, while it is presumed those of the country contemporaries may be embellished by pictures of shares and paste pots.

As all know, the name of a writer of an article appearing in any paper does not signify anything. The policy of the paper is controlled by the publisher and the opinions advanced by this editorial writer or that are his opinions or are sanctioned by the publisher for what appears in his columns, and he is the individual who must take the medicine whether the party who has a grievance appears in a damage suit or with a club. The "bright young man" who sometimes get the boss into trouble are supposed to keep in the background and let the man of letters take the knocks.

But Senator Grady evidently believes that there should be reconstruction of the arrangements of the modern printing office. He apparently thinks that when a politician has been roasted the aggrieved individual should be allowed the pleasure of singling out and licking the writer of the article instead of being obliged to settle with the editor, who may be one of the diplomats able to give the soft answer that "turneth away wrath," or may be too big to thrash.

We don't know but Senator Grady may be correct in the intimation that signed editorials would have a subduing effect upon the editorial brainstormers of New York. We have often noticed that correspondents, who have sent many letters to the press under nom de plumes, are as mild as lambs when fixing up communications to which their names are signed. If the Grady bill becomes effective it is probable that the Machiavelian paragraphs and character painters will be careful to select men not in Jack Johnson's class as their victims, anyhow.—Scranton Tribune-Republican.

A Life Lesson.

This lesson take to heart, my son: Into each life some rain must fall. 'Tis better to have loved and won Than never to have loved at all.

PRESIDENT TAFT PLANS MANY TRIPS.

Engagements Will Keep Him on the Go "if Congress Adjourns."

If President Taft does not cease accepting invitations with the condition "if congress has adjourned" he will have an army of dissatisfied descending upon Washington should it not adjourn early. With a two weeks' western trip, including stops in Kansas, Iowa and Minnesota, planned for September, he is daily making tentative additions which will keep him traveling most of the summer.

When the president goes to Manhattan Beach, N. Y., on June 22 to attend the dinner of the New York State Bankers' association he will drop in upon the Canadian club of that city at Manhattan Beach and make a speech on reciprocity. If reciprocity is still in the balance at that time this will give the president an opportunity to express himself, which he is likely to make worth while. On June 21 the president probably will be at a reunion of two armies of the civil war to be held at Manassas, which will celebrate the anniversary of the first battle of Bull Run.

"If I am not at Beverly June 21 I will go to Manassas," said the president when the invitation was presented to him. The president also consented to try to stop at Terre Haute, Ind., on his way west in September. They want him there to help in the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of Fort Harrison.

Needham, Mass., drew a blank. Representative Weeks invited the president to the two hundredth anniversary of the founding of that town in September. The date conflicts with others already made.

PIE EATING CONTEST.

Wellesley College Girls to Have a Match to a Finish.

The supremacy of the Pie Eaters as pastry publishers at Wellesley college is threatened by the Consumers, a new organization which already holds the fudge and charlotte russe records. Wellesley is strong for the eats.

Pie was barred from the women's college. But pie, the girls declared, they must have, and "Pie!" became their password and slogan. The Pie Eaters was formed and is now one of the healthiest organizations in the college. Then the Consumers came into existence.

The Consumers have challenged their rivals to a catch-as-catch-can pie eating contest next month, and the Pie Eaters have accepted. The date of the contest is being kept a close secret.

The only stipulation is that there shall be no dill pickles in sight. The president of the Consumers says the members of her club could not resist the temptation of dill pickles.

NO BEARDS ON HIS FARM.

James B. Haggin Orders Help to Shave Every Other Day.

J. B. Haggin, the multimillionaire owner of Elmendorf stock farm near Lexington, Ky., has caused notices to be posted requiring the several hundred employees on his 9,000 acre estate to be shaved every other day.

Mr. Haggin believes that whiskers propagate dangerous microbes, and the order is meant to affect particularly employees in the dairy department. A barber shop is being installed, and accompanying it is being built a $100,000 bathhouse, both of which are to be maintained free of cost to the employees. Mr. Haggin has a gray beard himself.

FORTUNE TO TEN GIRLS.

Aged Bachelor With No Relatives Plans to Enrich Them.

Samuel Rudy of Canton, O., eighty-six years old, a bachelor, who is said to be worth $200,000 and with no near relatives, has drawn up a will in which he made ten young women beneficiaries in the county courthouse offices belonging to the extent of $1,000 each.

Rudy met the girls during the long litigation in the courts over the question as to whether he was able to take care of his own property, in which he was finally the victor.

President Taft's Shoes.

President Taft will be presented with a pair of golf shoes, which should enable him to better his score at golf this summer. The shoes are being made from measurements at a factory at Brockton, Mass. They are of tan moose leather, of high cut and rubber soles. They are size 11, EE width.

The Bride.

The orange blossom crowns her. The bridal satin gowns her. The happy anthem ring. Girlhood's gay reign is over. She goes to meet her lover While Eden's voices sing.

The marriage vow is spoken. The wedding bread is broken. With blessings and with tears, These two set out together Through storm and sunny weather To journey through the years.

Fate, send your choicest dower. Great joy and plenty shower From blue and kindly skies, Earth's music and its laughter And gladness ever after. And love that never dies.

So life goes on forever. Hands join no more to sever. The roses crown the June, And down the aisle a-swinging We hear the angels singing A joyous hymnal tune.
