RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

There is much favorable comment from newspapers of every party on the action of Congress in passing the Canadian reciprocity treaty. The large part played by President Taft in bringing about the success of the issue is dwelt upon by all the editors, and he is praised without stint for his courage and the unflinching confidence that he had in the proposition. On the other hand, the President is generous beyond measure in his appreciation of the assistance given by the Democrats in bringing Canadian reciprocity to pass. It is a rare thing indeed for a Republican President to come out in a formal statement acknowledging the credit that belongs to the Democratic majority in the House, and proves the sincerity of the man. "The Democrats did not 'play politics,' says the President, 'but they followed the dictates of a higher policy.'" The comments of some of the leading newspapers of the country on the important step taken by Congress, which is believed to mark a new era in industrial relations between Canada and the United States, are of much interest.

New York Times: Obviously the success of reciprocity is a personal and political triumph for President Taft. It is also, and more, a great and precious advance in the path of prosperity for the nation. With amazing energy, spirit, skill and ability he waged a campaign of education in every part of the land. The result is a vindication of the inherent good sense of the people, as well as of the high standard of public duty of the President. The President has literally tried his case before the people, and by the force of the conviction he has implanted in the public mind, he has won.

The New York Sun: The economic and commercial effects of reciprocity with Canada must be tested by time; and the abundance of prophecies of good or ill to come from it may be dismissed as essentially poetical. A political effect of the discussion of the agreement has been disclosing itself gradually since Mr. Taft's message to Congress on January 26, and with particular clearness in the last few weeks. Mr. Taft has gained remarkably in public estimation, and the Insurgents have sagged steadily in reputation until there seems to be a general feeling of disgust at their insincerity, selfishness and double dealing. Mr. Taft has shown that he is a frank, brave and capable leader. The Progressive saints have lost their halos; the congregation of the hypocrites is desolate.

New York Tribune: The President's programme has won its way against selfish and narrow opposition because it was broad-gauged, patriotic and right. It would have been pleasanter to find a larger number of Republicans in Congress supporting a programme so obviously sound and beneficial.

New York World: By the passage of the reciprocity act in the Senate of the United States a splendid triumph was won for the people against Partisanship, against Privilege, and in the high cause of Peace. It is matter for just pride that neither of the great historic American parties can claim exclusive or even exceeding credit for this fine act. In the great movement for Peace which is being urged throughout the world side by side with that struggle for the better realization of the industrial and political welfare of the masses of the people, with which it is firmly linked, Canadian Reciprocity will be one more inspiring forward step. It will carry dismay no less to the lords of war than to the arrogant pets of commercial and industrial favoritism.

Philadelphia Ledger: The passage by the Senate of the measure providing for reciprocal trade concessions between Canada and the United States is the most important piece of legislation and the most useful and valuable act of constructive statesmanship since the day John Sherman announced the resumption of specie payments, which was the turning point in sound finance and in the tremendous effort of this country toward recovery from the blows of the Civil War. It has been Mr. Taft's fortune to perform an act, and to get Congress to ratify it, that gives the brightest promise to bringing the whole tariff question down to a business-like discussion and treatment for the next generation. We count it of the greatest good fortune that in the enactment of the law the Democrats, whether from self-interest or broad statesmanship, joined in this movement, and share in the triumph.

BEACH LAKE.

(Special to The Citizen.)

BEACHLAKE, Pa., July 27.—Such a busy time may be the reason that a few items from here are in The Citizen of late. Everybody is very busy at their respective duties. A great many people are now spending their vacation at the different houses. Saturday will be quite a rush as a hundred more are booked for that day.

How anxiously we have been waiting for rain but all heavy showers have gone round. Things that were so prosperous are now greatly in need of rain and will soon be scorched beyond restoration if no rain soon. It seems strange to have the county fair in August. We shall learn later if the change is to be successful. It really seems too early in the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Olver are visiting relatives in town. George Dunn and grandson are visiting his brother and sister here. Rev. Mr. Seymour has his sister and family spending some weeks with him at the parsonage.

Frank Knoll and family are visiting their parents and friends at Beachlake.

Harry White, Lake Ariel, motored to Beachlake Sunday.

Fred Woodley, wife and daughter, were callers at J. P. Budd's and H. Bradbury's Sunday.

About three hundred boarders now in town with many more for August. August 5 is the date for Berlin schools to hire their teachers.

Delbert McIntyre continues about the same. No improvement noticeable.

STERLING.

(Special to The Citizen.)

STERLING, Pa., July 27.—We are now having cooler weather which is appreciated.

S. N. Cross spent Saturday and Sunday in Scranton with his old friends, G. D. Stevens, whom he found laid up for repairs and E. A. Stevens who leave tomorrow for Washington Territory where he is interested in a mine and timber lot.

Last week George Stevens lost a fine horse and Henry Musgrove also had a horse lie down and die suddenly.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Simons have a number of Mrs. Simons' relatives as guests.

P. Fetherman has a new dwelling up and are at work on it.

George Headen, Erie, was a guest at A. J. Cross' over Sunday.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday the Boholink and neighbor, Mr. Jenkins, picked 110 quarts of huckleberries. Their better halves are still wearing smiles.

Saturday, July 15, while a severe hail storm passed over this section, Ralph Haley lost two valuable Jersey cows. His ten cows were all feeding in the same lot, when the two left the herd to find shelter under a ash tree. It is a wonder that the whole herd didn't follow the two. Ralph says there wasn't a mark left on either the tree or cows.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jenkins called on friends in Clinton township last Sunday.

Elmer Hamby, Honesdale, visited friends at Steene Sunday.

Potatoes will be a light crop throughout Wayne county as the blight is doing its deadly work with the vines.

OUR BOYS

EDITED BY

ONE OF THEM

The Boy Scouts go into camp up on one of the hills back of the Maple City the first week in August. About two-thirds of the twenty-five young Americans belonging to Patrols A, B, C, and D will spend several weeks out in the open.

Ninety dollars was cleared at their recent benefit performance at the Lyric Theatre, and this sum will be used for the purchase of tents.

Inasmuch as most of the boys work during the day they will only spend the night in, and have breakfast at the camp.

In the opinion of the Scout Master, E. G. Jenkins, a number of the boys who have been smokers for years, some without their parents' knowledge, and others openly, are showing a disposition to cut out tobacco, because of the objection of headquarters to it.

While there doesn't seem to be any hurrah about the new movement in the frigid zone of Honesdale, still it is showing a steady, wholesome growth. The boys are taking hold of the work in a way that assures its ultimate success.

They are not raising any big outcry about what they are doing, but they are going about their work in a matter-of-fact way. Scouts, by the way, are not supposed to make much fuss about their daily tasks. To them drudgery is a delight.

Eliza tripped across the ice,

I love to read of Valley Forge

RICKERT'S

THE AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER

Chapter three of Frederick Hankin's article on color photography: "There are many processes of color photography in use to-day, each affording a considerable range for the reproduction of colors, and each possessing certain advantages over other processes, but none of them as yet has been able to offer the most essential item necessary to successful color photography—a photographic paper which is able to receive satisfactorily the color impression. There are many investigators who declare that such a paper cannot be made.

"Color photography is based upon the accepted theories of light rays. It has long been known that a ray of light passing through a prism, the simplest form of a spectroscopic, is broken up into the colors of the rainbow. Not only is the scientist able to analyze a light ray as the chemist analyzes a chemical compound, but he is able to build it up again. This can readily be illustrated with three pieces of colored glass. If one takes these three pieces, one red, one green and one blue-violet, and puts them all together the light passing through them will be white. Taking any two of the three pieces he may make still different colored lights.

"Another property of light which has its bearings upon color photography is the fact that it consists of waves of varying lengths. Scientists have been able to advise measuring machines which can measure a distance much shorter than the millionth part of an inch. With these instruments they have been able to measure the length of the light rays which make the different colors."
