Claus A. Spreckels, Enemy of the Sugar Trust.

Claus Augustus Spreckels, who gave important testimony before the congressional committee investigating the sugar trust, is head of the Federal Sugar Refining company. For many years he has fought the big combination, and in the course of his testimony he produced letters which purport to show that the trust was a violator of the Sherman law for at least a short time after the enactment of that statute.

Claus A. Spreckels, besides being a prominent figure in the sugar business for many years, has been active in the civic life of San Francisco. He took a leading part in the reform movement in that city which resulted in the conviction and imprisonment of Mayor Schmitz and Abe Ruef in 1907.

Mr. Perkins, Financier. George W. Perkins, organizer of the International Harvester company, former partner of J. Pierpont Morgan and associated with him as organizer of the steel trust, is said to have received $5,000,000 for his share in the consolidation of the harvester companies.

GEORGE W. PERKINS.

formed by the consolidation of the McCormick Harvester company, controlled by John D. Rockefeller; the Deering, the Glessner, the Plano and the Milwaukee companies, all engaged in manufacturing agricultural machinery. Later four other companies were absorbed. According to statements made before the Stanley house committee, the International Harvester company is practically in control of the manufacture of farming implements.

Mr. Perkins is chairman of the finance committee and a director of the great harvester combine. He is a native of Chicago and is forty-nine years old. He began his career in the life insurance business, becoming chairman of the finance committee of the New York Life in 1900 and vice president of the company three years later.

A NIHILIST'S DESPERATE DEED

Story of a Queer Bet and Why It Was Made.

Two men were conversing in a wing of the Winter palace in St. Petersburg, the one the Grand Duke Nicholas, the other Captain Dmitre Warasoff of the Russian army. The grand duke was sitting behind an ebony desk; the captain was standing before him.

"Your treachery is an unpardonable sin," said Nicholas. "I have advanced your interests by attaching you to the czar's staff, thus opening to you a career. You have repaid me by joining this conspiracy against the czar."

"I have not!" exclaimed the captain indignantly.

"I have the proof." "Let me see it." "The grand duke held before the young man a letter written in the captain's handwriting and signed by him. The accused man started back, a sudden pallor overspreading his face.

"Ah!" said Nicholas icily. "When confronted with evidence your assurance deserts you."

"I never wrote that letter!" "It is in your handwriting."

"So nearly like it that I could not tell it from mine. Nevertheless it is a forgery."

Nicholas' eyes flashed. "Who would be interested in perpetrating such a villainy?"

"I cannot imagine. Stop! Let me think. Can it be that they are trying to get me out of their way?" He paused in deep thought.

"What do you mean?" "I suspect certain men, a certain man especially, owing to an accidental discovery I recently made of an attempt not on the life of the czar, but on yours."

"Whom do you suspect?" asked Nicholas, changing color.

"One of them is my friend. If I accused him it might be wrongfully. I would rather go to Siberia than harm him if he is innocent."

"You will go to Siberia if you do not give me his name."

"Then I will go to Siberia."

The door opened and a young man named Pertof entered.

"How fortunate," exclaimed the com-er, "to find you two together! I have heard that Warasoff is in trouble, and I came to say to your imperial highness that any accusations against him are absurd."

"I am sorry to say, Pertof, that I have indisputable proof. Read that." And he tossed him the letter he had shown the captain. Pertof read it and flung it aside contemptuously.

"The capital is full of plotting," he said. "I believe no accusations, for I am as likely to be accused as any one. Dismiss this matter from your mind, Nicholas. We three are intimate friends. None of us knows how soon he may fall a victim to intrigue. Therefore let us not worry, but enjoy what of life remains to us. Bring out some of that wine I tasted when we were last together and let us make merry."

The grand duke, though not convinced, concluded to fall in with his friend's humor and, tapping a bell, he ordered the wine.

"What's the matter, Dmitri?" cried Pertof. "Isn't his highness' wine good enough for you?" "I cannot drink under accusation."

"You're squeamish, man. Whoever troubles himself at being suspected or even accused in these days is in danger of nervous collapse. I'll make you a bet of 100 rubles even that within thirty days I will be accused of some conspiracy. I'll make another bet of 100 to 1,000 rubles that within sixty days I go to Siberia and a third bet of 10,000 rubles that I am executed."

"You are trifling with serious matters," said Nicholas uneasily.

"Not at all. We are all in danger, and if I could make the last named bet it would be an insurance on my life for my family."

"I will take that bet," said Warasoff, with a singular look in his eyes.

"Done," said Pertof, taking his hand. The grand duke looked at both men as if he thought they had taken leave of their senses.

Pertof took a cigar case from his pocket and was about to strike a match when, recollecting himself, he handed the case to the grand duke.

Nicholas took a cigar from the case, struck a match and lighted it. He had taken but a few whiffs when Dmitri Warasoff made a leap for him, snatched the cigar from his lips and, raising a window sash, threw it out.

Nicholas looked at him angrily for the apparent insult. In a few seconds an explosion was heard in the court below. All stood mute for awhile. Then Warasoff, pointing at Pertof, said:

"There is the man, your highness, who forged that letter. I overheard him speaking with some suspicious persons upon the subject of an explosive cigar."

Pertof was tried and executed for the attempted murder of the Grand Duke Nicholas. The day after the execution the widow received an anonymous letter containing 10,000 rubles. It was in payment of the wager made between Warasoff and Pertof. The bet was made by Pertof because he had determined to sacrifice his life to the nihilist cause and accepted by Warasoff because he had loved the girl Pertof had married. Five years later he married his old love.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF PENNSYLVANIA AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Number One. A JOINT RESOLUTION.

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly, met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose distinct and separate court as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law. The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

Number Two. A JOINT RESOLUTION.

Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly, met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted; Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.
