The policy of The Citizen is to print the local news in an interesting manner, to summarize the news of the world at large, to fight for the right as the paper sees the right, without fear or favor to the end that it may serve the best interests of its readers and the welfare of the county.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 18, 1911.

THE FAIR.

By the time this paper is in the hands of its readers, the Forty-Ninth Annual Wayne County Fair will have passed into history.

The real success of the Fair seems to have answered the objections of those who thought it came too early. Everybody seems to have enjoyed it and to many, ourselves included, it will be a matter of regret that it did not last out the week.

With a few small exceptions, the order at the Fair was excellent and the two gallant members of the State Constabulary must have been bored to death for lack of a little excitement.

All in all, the Association may congratulate itself on the Fair as a whole.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN.

No less a person than Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, professor of physical education at Harvard has come forth with the statement that women should wear trousers. Dr. Sargent says:

"Trousers are a suitable and useful costume for working women and are not a bit more indecent or immodest than any other costume.

"They are far more hygienic than skirts; they do not gather dust. I think they would do away with the wearing of corsets, and they give a greater freedom to the body.

"We have adopted trousers in the gymnasium. Could women adopt them at their every day occupations they would be going a long step in the direction of right and hygienic living."

There seems to be a great deal of truth in the Doctor's remarks. Still, if he really wants to get women to take up the idea, he should emphasize the number of pockets in trousers. Every woman wants pockets.

Perhaps then the ladies might cast aside the unhygienic skirt for the apparel which doth now proclaim the man.

CROP ESTIMATES.

There seems to be a general disposition among well informed observers, says the Harrisburg Telegraph, to dispute the pessimism in the recent official crop reports.

That the yield from American farms will be by no means so large as we had hoped last spring that they would be, owing to the increased acreage of cotton, wheat and corn, no one attempts to dispute, but there are many who argue that this same increased acreage will serve to keep the yield well up to the average for the last ten years.

And again, it must be borne in mind that all predictions made in advance of the cutting of a crop are more or less guess work. Sometimes a crop that promises little yields much. Sometimes crops that look fine turn out poor. For example, a few weeks before the early potatoes were harvested in this section, it was supposed that they would be exceptionally plentiful, but when they were plowed up, it was found that the supposition was all wrong.

So the estimates regarding the aggregates of our farm production—carefully and conscientiously as they have been made—may prove to be gloomier than the facts warrant. In a country which is continent-wide, comprising all sorts of climates, soils and agricultural conditions, there are many opportunities for crop surprises.

At all events, it is foolish to worry over estimates when the facts will be along so soon.

The farmers of Pennsylvania, as well as those of New York, will be interested in the results of experiments with various species of timothy hay by experts of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Men working under Prof. H. J. Webber have found that in a trial of nineteen new varieties of timothy an average increase of 850 pounds per acre was obtained. The best variety produced an increase of one ton per acre.

A large yielding type has been produced that is available to the farmers. The experts estimate that the value of the hay crop of New York State, can be increased $10,000,000 a year as the result of the experiment made by the State College of Agriculture.

PROGRESS OF THE TAFT ADMINISTRATION.

Bureaus, chief of which are that of Animal Industry, Plant Industry, Soils, Entomology, Biological Survey, Irrigation, Public Roads, Forest Service, Foods and Drugs and Publication and Statistical work. Most eminent experts are employed in each Department and with liberal appropriations by the Government the various services of the many Bureaus have been carried on successfully and with advantage to our farmers that have proved invaluable.

While the constantly increasing efficiency of this Department would not admit of a saving in expenditures, yet comparatively the work has been carried on under the present administration more economically than ever before and is a tribute both to the Secretary and to the President under whose directions the department has shown such progress and attainment.

Navy Department.

In no department of the Government has there been a greater saving, and that too without loss of efficiency, than in the Navy Department under Secretary Meyer. A practical reorganization has been put into effect in every branch of the department while great progress has been made in the line of target practice, in the work at Navy Yards and in engineering competitions. All waste has been obliterated and repair plants have been improved, while better rations coupled with bitter discipline has increased almost to perfection the service aboard ship as well as at port.

Economies have come from the saving in fuel and in the cost of freight and transportation of supplies. A new accounting system has proven a great success and millions of dollars have already been saved as compared with previous years.

The great transactions of the world have not been and cannot be governed by mere maxims of abstract right. Some day it may be so, but thus far it never has been so in any age or among any people. Since the dawn of civilization, in the providence of God, it has happened that only through agony and the shedding of blood could the living principle contained in the Declaration of Independence—the eternal principle of individual rights and liberty—be wrought out.

The attitude of the present Chief Executive on the question of color prejudice in the United States is so well understood by all that it seems a little like imbecility for any one to misinterpret his standing on the question. The color line exists, and is so intricate in character that it is extremely difficult to fully understand it in its entirety.

Prior to the last presidential contest a large part of the press of the United States declared it to be a truism that except for the fear of "negro domination" the Southern States would go Republican almost solidly. This did not mean the total disfranchisement of the colored voter, but the broad statement was made by both the democratic and republican papers of the country that but for the colored man's ballot Mason and Dixon's line would be wiped from the political map; that the democratic party would then be left in a sorry plight for a real live southern issue. A few brief years before this Editor Henry W. Brady, one of the South's famous leaders and, perhaps, its best journalist, declared in a speech in the city of Boston, before the Merchants' Association, that:

"Never before in this Republic has the white race divided on the rights of an alien race. The red man was cut down as a weed, because he hindered the way of the American citizen. The yellow man was shut out of this Republic because he is an alien and an inferior. The red man was owner of the land—the yellow man highly civilized and assimilable—but they hindered both sections and are gone. But the black man, clothed with every privilege of government is planned to the soil, and my people commended to make good at any hazard, and at any cost, his full and equal heirship of American privilege and prosperity. It matters not that every race has been routed or excluded. It matters not that wherever the whites and blacks have touched, in any era or any clime, there has been irreconcilable violence. It matters not that no two races, however similar, have ever lived anywhere, at any time, on the same soil with equal rights, in peace. In spite of these things, we are commanded to make good this change of American policy which has not, perhaps, changed American prejudice—to make certain here what has elsewhere been impossible between whites and blacks—and to reverse, under the very worst conditions, the universal verdict of racial history.

"We are driven to this superhuman task with an impatience that brooks no delay, a rigor that accepts no excuse, and a suspicion that discourages frankness and sincerity."

BEING A "GOOD FELLOW."

Every now and then we hear of some one dying in bitter poverty after having spent a fortune in "being a good fellow." Of such a one it is commonly said while he is alive and spending that he has a "heart like an ox and a hand always deep in his pocket." He is spoken of frequently within his own hearing—as a "prince among men" or "one of nature's noblemen."

It seems passing strange, says the New York Herald, that a man with the power to attract to himself so many warm friends should not have any willing to pay his funeral expenses. Yet such is often the case. It is a fact frequently commented on by philosophers that these perages of cafe creation die with the fortunes that produced them. A real "prince among men" or "nature's nobleman" loses his title when his money ceases to burn holes in his pocket, after which he should set aside a little money for his own obsequies.

But those who argue from the forlorn and friendless passing of one of these "good fellows" that there are no real friends to be had in this world are wrong. Every one can make friends, and staunch ones, too, by the practice of unselfishness, but not by wasting money on the worthless in the vain hope of being considered a "good fellow," which is merely another name for a complete fool. It is not he who "gives to every one who asks," but he who seeks out those who are too proud to ask and relieves their necessities, who awakens genuine gratitude and attaches to himself the sort of friends that are worth having. Such a man, however, is seldom termed "a good fellow."

RIVERDALE.

(Special to The Citizen.)

RIVERDALE, Pa., Aug. 17.—George Kubach, Sr., son Henry and Miss Elizabeth Kubach, Newark, N. J., are passing several days at W. S. Martin's.

Miss Viola Allen, Pleasant Mount, spent the week-end at George Hauenstein's. Mrs. Kate Deming is also visiting at the same place. While starting logs at Cole's saw mill one day last week Harold Wildenstein seriously bruised and sprained his ankle by having a log roll upon his foot.

W. A. Gustin, Jr., had the misfortune to break one of the bones in his ankle while digging a well on Saturday.

Mrs. Barbara Hauenstein has returned home after spending several weeks at Maple Grove.

Lloyd Wildenstein is recovering from an attack of blood poisoning in his foot.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Connelly, daughter, Dorothy, New York, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Glehrer, son, Fred and daughter Viola, and Miss Barbara Seelig, Honesdale, were entertained at Henry Wildenstein's on Sunday. Mrs. W. H. Sherwood and son, Merrill, Honesdale, are spending several days at the same place.

WHITE MILLS.

(Special to The Citizen.)

WHITE MILLS, Pa., Aug. 17.—For some time past Rev. Father Burke and his assistants, Father Welsh and Mrs. J. J. Boyle, who has charge of the Sunday school, have been preparing a class of 44 children for their first holy communion and confirmation. And on Sunday, August 13, the children assembled at the I. O. H. hall from where they marched in a body, escorted by the altar boys, lily bearers and teachers to the church, while there was a march played suitable for the occasion. Rev. Father Burke officiated at the mass while the choir rendered its usual music. They were assisted by Eugene and Frederick Beilman.

On Sunday, August 13, Right Reverend M. J. Hoban, D. D., Bishop of Scranton, administered the sacrament of confirmation, assisted by Fathers Burke and Welsh in St. Joseph's church, White Mills. Father Welsh celebrated the mass after which the Bishop made some very impressive remarks concerning the sacrament they were about to receive. The ladies very neatly decorated the church for these two occasions.

INDIAN ORCHARD.

(Special to The Citizen.)

INDIAN ORCHARD, Pa., Aug. 17.—The farmers of this place are looking forward for a day off sometime during the week at which time they will attend the Wayne county fair and see what is raised in other parts of Wayne. They expect to find an exceedingly large crop of candidates, all good fellows, especially our present Judge, A. T. Searle, whom we hope will be elected to succeed himself; then, too, there is J. W. Barnes who is the candidate for Prothonotary from Berlin, who not only is worthy of but entitled to the nomination and election. He is a man that is fully competent of performing the duties pertaining to that office.

Indian Orchard Grange No. 1020, will send some vegetables and fancy work to the fair. If they cannot capture first premium, why then they will take whatever the Judges decide belong to them.

The adult male members of Indian Orchard Grange held a clam bake in Buckingham's Grove on Saturday last.

Rev. Seymour, Beachlake, was a business caller at this place on Tuesday of last week.

J. P. Budd, Beachlake, is building a porch on O. D. Henshaw's house which, when completed, will add much to the beauty of his home.

Joseph Schwartz, who has been working at Hawley and Honesdale at drilling artesian wells, is spending a few days with his family.

E. C. Ham, W. C. Spry and son, Charles, were business callers at Narrowsburg on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hiller, Susquehanna, are visiting the latter's mother, Mrs. Charles Smith.

Mrs. Isabella Ham, Scranton, Mrs. Ray Bayly, son Elwin, and daughter, Mildred, East Honesdale, were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Ham last week.

The Berlin schools will open on September 4 with the following teachers: East Berlin, Freddie Frey; Troop's Corners, Julia O'Neil; Beach Lake, Bessie Decker; East Beach Lake, Marcia Barnes; Chestnut Lake, Jennie Van Wert; Vine Hill, Edith Marshall; Bethel, Frances Gray; Swamp Brook, Anna Schmidt; Laurel, Florence Maloney; Berlin Valley, Eva Silsby and Edna Toms. J. W. Reining and Mrs. R. B. Marshall are on the sick list.

W. H. Hall, who was on a business trip through the Valley, returned home Saturday.

Frank Hollenbeck, the veteran lumber dealer, has begun to remove the timber from George Ham's lot. Bessie Decker, May Bradbury, Jennie Van Wert, Beachlake, and Ella Frey, Honesdale, spent Wednesday of last week with Mrs. John Spry.

Richard Ham and wife attended the Grangers' picnic at Torrey on Wednesday.

Mrs. Halsey Wells and Mrs. William Downing, Beachlake, Mrs. Albert Mitchell, Laurella, and Mrs. William Pregall, East Honesdale, were entertained at the home of Mrs. W. D. Buckingham on Saturday.

The Republican voters of Berlin Nos. 1 and 2 will meet at the Vine Hill school house on Saturday evening next between the hours of 6 and 8 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of naming candidate to be voted for at the primaries on Sept. 30, 1911.

A BIG BABY.

NEWARK, N. J., August 15.—The doctor dashed up to the home of Samuel and Adele Gutin, with the high speed on his automobile, and ran into the house.

"Oh, a splendid boy baby!" he exclaimed. "A big baby! I'll get out my scales."

When baby Leo was placed on the scales, the hand went to the end with a click and stopped.

"Funny," said the doctor. "Those scales register 14 pounds, and who ever heard of a baby weighing more than that?"

"I'll get my scales," said Grandpa Gutin.

Ten minutes later he hurried back from his meat store, three blocks away, with the store scales.

"Twenty pounds!" exclaimed the doctor, after Baby Leo had been placed on the scales. "That's impossible. Babies never weigh twenty pounds at birth."

The groceryman's scales said 20 pounds too; so did two other scales, brought in from nearby stores.

At last the doctor came out and said to the neighbors:

"That baby is the champion heavyweight baby of the United States. He weighs 20 pounds and he is a perfect baby. The mother can get up and go around the house to-morrow if she wants to."

The doctor thought that Baby Leo Gutin would be talked about in doctor books for centuries.

Adele Gutin, mother of the giant baby is 21 years old; the husband is the same age, and this is their first child.

"He'll be a great big man," says the mother proudly. "I only hope he will be as good as he is big."

But Baby Gutin is not the only newcomer who has puzzled the doctors. James A. Cody of Mt. Airy, Ga., at 27 months, is the biggest baby in the world. He weighs 122 pounds and is still growing. James eats as much as his father and mother together.

The flying machine at Lake Lodore on Saturday will be worth seeing.

AFTER THE PLAY IS OVER.

After the show was over Wednesday night ("The Pinkertons," a screaming farce, presented by the Maltese Players), this conversation was overheard in the Lyric lobby: First Critic: "That's the first time I ever heard a Honesdale audience applaud." Second Critic: "But the trouble is, it wasn't a Honesdale audience. Most of the people at the show were from out-of-town."

THE AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHER

We hope our readers have been helped by the series of articles on "Color Photography," of which the following is the closing chapter: "Color photography has proved some things about the properties of light which were never known before except in theory. For instance, it has been able to demonstrate that there are colors so refined that the human eye cannot perceive them, just as there are sounds of such high pitch that the ear is insensible to them. In the range of visible colors of the spectrum, of the rainbow, the extreme colors are red and violet. But beyond these, invisible to the human eye, are other colors, known to scientists as ultra-violet and infra-red. That these invisible rays of light existed was proved in theory by chemists, but it remained for color photography to demonstrate them visually. Photographs have been made with these ultra light rays, the use of a lens excluding all but the infra-red rays being especially successful. In photographs made with this light, the lights and shadows of ordinary sunlight as they appear to the eye are exactly reversed and the sun appears to cast a deep shadow while the shade of a tree or a wall appears as a luminous light."

CHANGING HER FACE.

Any woman not satisfied with her complexion can remove it and have a new one. The thin veil of stifling half-dead cuticle is an encumbrance and should be removed to give the fresh, vigorous young skin underneath a chance to show itself and to breathe.

There's a simple old-fashioned home remedy which will always do the work. Get an ounce of pure mercolized wax from your druggist and apply it at night like cold cream, washing it off in the morning. The mercolide will gently absorb all the lifeless skin and leave a healthy and beautiful complexion as fresh as a child's. Naturally it takes with it all such facial blemishes as freckles, tan, moth patches, sallowness, liver spots, pimples, etc. It is pleasant to use, effective and economical. The face so treated immediately looks years younger.—Household Friend.

PROGRAM FOR HEALTH.

The program for a day's hygienic life may be laid out as follows:

Upon waking go to the window and take several long breaths of pure air.

Drink a glass of cold or hot water.

Take exercises for twenty minutes.

Take warm sponge bath, followed by cold plunge.

Light breakfast—no meat.

Short walk—one mile or two.

Work.

Light lunch—no meat.

A little rest after lunch.

Recreation for one hour, combined with out-of-door exercise. Two miles walking.

Slight rest.

Dinner.

Recreation.

Two glasses of water.

Exercise for fifteen minutes.

Sleep for eight or nine hours.

OUR BOYS

EDITED BY

ONE OF THEM

HOW A BOY BECOMES A SCOUT.

After the boys form the patrol their work has just begun. They become Tenderfeet first and must remain in that class one month before they are eligible to take the examination for the second class scout. This examination includes first aid, lighting of fires, cooking and the points of the compass. The test for the first class is still more rigorous. The boy must show fairness in various lines of work and study. He must be systematic in cooking, must know how to read a manual correctly, and show that he can cut down trees, judge distances, can swim, at least, fifty yards.

After having taken the test of the first class scout, he is stimulated to further activity by the hope of getting various merit badges. There are some sixty different activities touching the phases of boyhood life, for which merit badges are offered. The boy must pass examinations before he can get such a badge. If he wins 21 such badges he is entitled to the Eagle Scout Badge, which is an emblem of honor.

The making of the Boy Scout requires the expenditure of much money by the national organization, necessitates the writing of many letters, and the thoughtful attention of men trained in boys' work. Once, however, a boy has become a scout, and is really influenced by the activities, he is on a fair way to becoming a useful, upright citizen.

The leaders of the movement feel that they have accomplished enough if they can give the boy a training which will enable him to be a good citizen and to make him resourceful. They ask for nothing more. If this is done, there is no doubt, but the Boy Scout Movement will be a permanent organization in this country.
