ASTOR—FORCE.

Well, they finally were married, weren't they? A Congregational minister performed the ceremony and they are to spend the winter abroad. It must seem peculiar to have one's son act as best man at one's wedding, mustn't it? Also Miss Force seems to have done much better than if she had gone into the chorus. Beyond these two remarks we have nothing to say except that her mother is a wonderful manager and we should have liked to have heard her sigh of relief after the $200,000,000 fish had been landed.

THE CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

The steam roller has gone over us and again we are flattened out. The Bradford-Susquehanna combination came to the Republican Congressional Conference with the necessary votes already secured and again captured the nomination. The politicians of our sister counties frankly conceded the justice of Wayne county's claim to the nomination. They made no hypocritical pretense, put forth no fallacious reasoning, used no argument save the cold, positive argument of seven votes out of ten. Our conferees, Messrs. Simons and Decker—than whom none better could have been sent to the conference—very ably presented Wayne's case, were listened to courteously, and then—calmly voted out. But the situation has its compensations. Capt. Ainey, the chosen candidate, is a man of experience and ability. His qualifications fit him to represent this congressional district with credit to himself and with satisfaction to his constituents, and to do good service to his party and the country. Moreover, it is extremely important that this district should be represented in Washington by a Republican.

The Citizen will support Capt. Ainey.

IN GERMANY.

These are the things one must do in Germany before he can run a car in public without getting arrested:
He must spend a week in the "school" of the factory that made his machine, watching motors being taken apart and assembled and learning to steer.
He must take to the police authorities a sworn certificate from this school, bearing witness to his proficiency, together with a birth certificate, a photograph of himself, and a certificate from a state doctor saying that his sight and hearing are normal and an application for a permit.
He must drive a car, carrying a police examiner, through a hilly country, turn it around in a narrow piece of road, pass a quiz as to the mechanism of the motor, and lastly run the machine through narrow city streets where tram cars are running.
If he passes all these tests he gets a permit—to which his photograph and autograph are officially affixed. And nobody but the man in the photograph can run that machine.
Oh, yes, they do things differently in Germany. They also have efficient safety appliances for all dangerous machinery in Germany.

VIRGINIA JUSTICE.

It took the jury only 57 minutes to decide that Henry C. Beattie, Jr., killed his wife while out auto driving. So far everybody seems to be satisfied with the verdict—except the young man, himself and naturally he would be somewhat put out. He heard the verdict with the same amazing air of aloofness which has characterized all his actions since the night of the murder. Although a mean, contemptible murderer, he has shown throughout a philosophical calm worthy of a far better cause. As he himself says:

"You never can tell what a jury will do. If I had been tried by a jury of city men instead of farmers I believe I would have had more chance. I was convicted more for having associated with Beulah Binford and having neglected my wife than I was for murder."

"Those jurymen seldom or never heard of such a thing and they believed, on general principles, that a man, who would do that would commit murder."

"Well, I guess my friends will fight to the last ditch and I expect there will be a new trial. Good-bye, boys; tell my friends I'm right comfortable—as comfortable as anybody could be in this place."

We think he is wrong about the new trial, unless, of course, he means his trial at the Judgment Seat.

As for the Binford girl, she, too, is done for. Already the theatres have canceled their engagements with her, and her hope to make capital out of her sordid relations with the principal of the murder has been short-lived indeed. It is well that the American stage has been spared the disgrace of her presence.

GOULDSBORO.

[Special to The Citizen.]
GOULDSBORO, Pa., Sept. 12.—One of the prettiest weddings witnessed in Gouldsboro in some time was that of Miss Maude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Crooks, who was married to Allen Reaser, of Moscow, at the home of the bride at noon Wednesday, Sept. 6. The maid of honor was Miss Grace Crooks, a sister of the bride. Walter Reaser, Stroudsburg, a brother of the groom, acted as best man. Roy Crooks and Ray Crooks, a brother and cousin of the bride, acted as ushers. The bride was attired in a handsome white satin gown trimmed with heavy pearl passementerie and carried a bridal bouquet of roses. The maid of honor wore pink silk, veiled in white marquisette, and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The color scheme of pink and white was beautifully carried out throughout the parlor, living room and dining room, the decorations consisting of large quantities of pink and white chrysanthemums, china asters, sweet peas, and roses intermingled with ferns. To the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march rendered by Miss Bessie Smith, the bridal party marched up the aisle formed by wide white satin ribbons held by little Margaret Tierney, Tobyhanna, and Ford Hoffman, a little Gouldsboro boy, to a beautifully large arch formed of pink and white china asters and white bells, with a background of pink and white flowers, ferns, etc., where they were met by the minister, Rev. P. S. Lehman, pastor of the M. E. church, who using the impressive ring ceremony pronounced them man and wife. After congratulations had been extended a wedding dinner followed. Miss Bertha Crooks, a sister of the bride, and the Misses Maude and Lottie Beers, of Scranton, served. At two o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Reaser left by automobile and will visit New York, Philadelphia and other points. The bride's traveling suit was cinnamon brown chiffon broadcloth. George Edwards and Miss Anna Smith accompanied them as far as Mount Pocono. The bride received a large number of handsome and costly gifts, consisting of several gold pieces, silverware, china, cut glass, bric-a-brac, linen, pictures, etc. The bride has always resided in Gouldsboro, and is very popular. In the four years that Mr. Reaser was located here he made a great many friends, and all extend the most hearty congratulations and good wishes. They will make their home in Moscow. ### PORTRAITS OF POLITICAL CANDIDATES.

The publication in the newspapers of the portraits of political candidates is exciting varied comment. Those who criticize it unfavorably are generally those who affect displeasure over politics generally and of personal bids for party support in particular. But there seems to be no good reason for deprecating politics, since we must have government and every person ought to be versed in the science of it; neither is there any very great occasion for disgust because a man announces himself willing, or even anxious, to undertake the responsibilities of office. Must public office never be filled except by men from whom a hint that the position would be agreeable to them could not be extorted by an electric dynamo? To look upon the portrait of a candidate is often an advantage and favor to voters who are prevented from meeting personally those up for suffrage. Common men are not so demagogic as to be insensible to the significance of that saying once expressed by a man of letters concerning the human face, that "the sculptor's chisel always leaves its mark upon the statue's front."—The Hawley Times.

FATHER'S OLD VIOLIN.

[By S. S. Robinson.]
How well I remember that old violin. Way back in life's dawning where memories begin. And all the old tunes that he always would know. As "Haste to the Wedding" and "Rosin the Bow." Quite often at evening when going to rest, My weary head pillowed on dear mother's breast, I heard the pins squeak and the tuning begin. And then sweetest music on that old violin. And oft in the morning before I arose, Only half sleeping in blissful repose, He would be singing some old-fashioned hymn And playing away on the old violin. Now it is silent, discordant and dumb, No more its music as years go and come, My heart will gladden 'mid life's toil and din, Longing for strains of that old violin.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
