DEATH OF ANTHONY MANNY.

Anthony Manny, of Binghamton, N. Y., died Monday, September 4, from heart trouble, aged 64 years. Surviving relatives are his wife and children: Frances, Henry, Elizabeth, Lena, Arthur and Helen.

Anthony Manny was a pioneer in the blue stone industry in the Delaware Valley. He was generous to a fault, and a valued and kind-hearted friend. He was a self-made man, and was remarkably successful in his business ventures.

He was born near Jeffersonville, Sept. 6, 1847, and learned the blacksmith's trade. Later he purchased, in partnership with Paul Ross, a blue-stone quarry at Hankins.

In February, 1875, he was married to Matilda Kille. From the time of his marriage until 1893 he lived at Kellam, moving thence to Hankins.

In 1904 he removed to Binghamton. He was a member of the F. & A. M., and of the Presbyterian church of Binghamton.

Forty Years in Honesdale as Carriage Decorator

E. T. SMITH LEARNED HIS TRADE JUST 45 YEARS AGO.

E. T. Smith, one of Honesdale's artistic carriage decorators and trimmers, has been in business the longest of anyone in his line in Honesdale. Mr. Smith learned his trade in Newark, N. J., 45 years ago and since February 14, 1871, has been a resident of Honesdale, having followed his trade here ever since. What makes the story more interesting is that he has been in the same building this length of time without a change, not even having experienced a fire. The old carriage decorating shop is substantially built. The interior is partially plastered. The continual dropping of paint and varnish upon the floor has formed heavy coats of paint and it is impossible to discern where the cracks of the floor are in some places. The building is equipped with an elevator. Shortly after coming to Honesdale Mr. Smith formed a partnership with the late Eugene A. Edgett. Carriages were made and decorated by the firm. There are wagons that were made by Smith & Edgett that are still in use. After three years' partnership Mr. Smith sold his interests in the business to Mr. Edgett, who exclusively conducted the manufacturing end of the business, while Mr. Smith continued the decorating end.

Mr. Smith's business has gradually changed of late in that wagons are built by large concerns more rapidly and cheaply now than could formerly be produced by hand, consequently he has purchased his wagons by the carload, using his shop as a repository.

Mr. Smith is one of Honesdale's most enterprising and progressive citizens.

The ball committee is composed of Messrs. F. Schuerholz, T. Gallagher, J. A. Bodie, W. W. Kimble, John Carmichael, J. M. Lyons, W. H. Bader, H. Richards, Chas. P. Searle, Esq., W. J. Ferber.

The majority of the fifty-four members of Protection Engine Company No. 3 were present at the annual meeting.

The firemen have enjoyed a most successful year. Brand new parade uniforms were purchased several months ago, and with the prospective addition of 400 feet of new hose, the fire-fighting apparatus of the company will be materially strengthened.

It was decided to issue invitations to Hose Company No. 1, Alerts No. 2, Chemical Engine No. 4 of Texas, and Seelyville Fire Company to take part in the parade to be held in the Maple City, the latter part of October.

wouldn't give $50 a year rent for the place.

William Daniels and a number of other witnesses testified that the place was not worth over $2,000 and that Mrs. Klencik would be unable to contribute anything toward the support of her son.

The defense made out a strong case.

At the conclusion of the taking of testimony, Judge Searle stated that the burden was upon the overseers to show Mrs. Klencik could support her son in the Insane Asylum without impoverishing herself, and from the evidence in the case, her ability to support her son had not been shown.

By agreement of the attorneys, however, Mr. Kimble was given until the third Monday in October to file a brief, when the case will again be argued and decided.

"I told him you know you are in my charge," and pulled out the paper signed by Judge Searle.

"I think Judge Searle will be kind enough to parole him in my custody. There's nothing else left for me to do about him."

In the absence of Judge Searle, Treasurer Duffy interviewed District Attorney M. E. Simons. This was Mr. Simons' verdict:

"He's to keep him until the Court decides what they will do with him. He's to keep him until the order of the Court."

"We have to make little sacrifices every now and then," philosophically remarked Mr. Duffy to the reporter after interviewing the District Attorney. "I reasonably expect they'll parole him in my care."
