

OPEN LETTER FROM A. O. BLAKE TO THE PEOPLE OF WAYNE COUNTY.

To the Voters of Wayne County:— Gentlemen: September 30 is less than two weeks distant. The nomination papers are all on file at the Commissioners' office.

I have always been a Republican. My family before me were staunch supporters of the party.

On September 30, 1866, I was born on a farm in Wayne county. My school days were spent at the Honesdale High school.

I am a charter member of the Beech Grove Grange, which was organized nineteen years ago, and have filled all its important offices.

I am Master of Wayne County Pomona Grange and county organizer. I am also affiliated with the I. O. O. F.

I have always aimed to produce an A1 article of milk both as to quality and cleanliness. Six years ago I began buying and shipping stock extensively.

I have met and transacted business with hundreds of farmers in Wayne county, and sold stock through Orange, Essex and Essex counties, York state, bringing money back and distributing it through the channels of business in Wayne county.

Twenty-five years ago, last June, I was married. My family consists of one daughter who for four years has been away from home at a training school.

In the last election for candidates on the Republican ballot I ran for the office of Register and Recorder, receiving all but three votes in my home town. I was defeated in the election.

Now, Mr. Voter, we would ask you to deal as squarely by me as we have by you in all our business transactions.

Most cordially yours, A. O. BLAKE.

The Canadian Campaign Is About Over

Victory Claimed by Both the Liberals and Conservatives.

Much Depends on Vote in Ontario and Quebec. Laurier's Threat.

THE reciprocity campaign in Canada is nearly over, and both parties in the struggle are confident of a victory on Sept. 21, and both apparently believe their prophecies.

than has been noticeable in past elections. R. L. Borden and W. S. Fielding, the minister of finance, who is the minister individually most responsible for the reciprocity agreement, are both Nova Scotia men, and both will have to fight hard for their own seats.

Generally speaking, these two sets of opinions are the substance of what platform orators have been giving to the people of Canada in all of the nine provinces.

Nationalists' Campaign.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier held only one meeting in the province of Ontario and has since been campaigning in his own province of Quebec, endeavoring by the force of his personal influence with the French Canadian electorate to stem the tide of nationalism.

Some Holding Aloof.

One of the big features promised by advance agents of the campaign is lacking. Premier McBride of British Columbia, Robert Rogers, minister of public works in Manitoba, and other leading provincial Conservatives were billed to join in the fight as federal candidates.

Mr. Laurier, who is the grandson of Louis Papineau, a French Canadian patriot of bygone days, has broken with his old leader and has recently acquired extraordinary strength in Quebec as the champion of the so called rights of the French Canadian minority.

To the extent that he is against Laurier, Bourassa is with the Conservatives, although he denies that he is in league with them or thinks with them. The fact remains that if his campaign succeeds the Laurier government will no longer be able to count upon the substantial majority hitherto contributed by the province of Quebec, and added to this comparatively slight Conservative gains in the other provinces would mean the defeat of the Laurier government and the end of reciprocity.

R. L. Borden, the Conservative leader, will close his campaign in Quebec. Mr. Borden has spent most of his time in Ontario, a province which gave him a majority in the last parliament, which majority he hopes to increase.

Ontario and Quebec to Decide.

Ontario and Quebec between them must decide the election. A landslide in either province will send the government out of power or will send it back stronger than it ever was. It is not too much to say that the Laurier ministers are absolutely confident of the latter result. They are paying much attention to Ontario and Quebec, but are at the same time giving more care to the maritime provinces.

NIZAM OF HAIDARABAD.

Premier Prince of Indian Empire Had Annual Income of $10,000,000. Asaf Jah Nizam-ul-Mulk, the nizam of Haidarabad and the premier prince of the Indian empire, who died recently, was born Aug. 18, 1869, and succeeded his father, the Nizam Asaf-ud-Daula, on the latter's death, Feb. 26, 1893.

The late nizam belonged to a family of the highest antiquity and importance among Mohammedan rulers, being lineally descended from the first caliph, Abu Bakr, the successor of the prophet. The area of the state of Haidarabad is 82,698 square miles and occupies the central part of that region of India which is called the Deccan. It has a population of 11,141,142, of whom 9,870,839 are Hindus. About 1,000,000 are Mohammedans, and the ruling class is of the Mussulman religion. The dominions include the city of Golconda, which now lies in ruins. The late ruler was the ninth in succession from the Mogul chieftain Asaf Jah, Nizam-ul-Mulk, the founder of the dynasty.

The nizam was said to have had at his disposal an income of about $10,000,000 annually, and he entertained lavishly. His collection of jewels, which contained many gems of almost priceless worth, was one of the most magnificent in India. Among these jewels was the historic crown of rubies brought to the court of Golconda in 1503 as a gift from the Shah Abbas, king of Persia, and the enormous diamond known as the Nizam.

RODE ON AN AVALANCHE.

Engineer and Son Slide 2,000 Feet Down Mountain Side.

W. L. Brown of San Bernardino, Cal., a civil engineer, rode for 2,000 feet down the side of Mount Grayback on an avalanche of ice and snow and is alive to tell of his experience. He was accompanied on the wild ride by his thirteen-year-old son, Lawrence.

While far up on the slope of the big peak young Brown started a bowlder rolling down the mountain. It crashed into rocks and logs on the slope with such force that it jarred from its place a huge ice pack. The snow gave way, and Brown and his son found that they were on the crust that was slipping down the mountain side.

Brown was seated on the snow eating an orange when the avalanche started, and his son was thrown from his feet as the slide gathered in speed and tore over the rocks to the bottom of the ridge far below. They escaped death only for the reason that they were near the top of the avalanche. The bottom as it struck the saddle between Grayback and Mount San Bernardino broke up.

They would have been crushed to death or buried alive had they been at the bottom of the pack. The ice and snow were about eight feet deep. Anointed With Holy Oil. Egferth of Merca, 785 A. D., was the first recorded English king to be anointed at his coronation with holy oil.
