According to George D. Thorn, chief clerk of the State Department and an authority on election matters, if the decision of Judge L. L. Davis of Allegheny county, in the case of the so-called McKeesport "ripper" bill is sustained by the higher courts, it will deprive hundreds of municipal and county officers throughout the state of extensions of terms the recent legislature endeavored to grant them. He says: "The decision of Judge Davis is far-reaching and effects more public officers than any decision that has been made for many years past. The decision wipes off the statute books the so-called 'Alter act,' which provides for the extension of terms of officers not provided for by the schedule to the amendments adopted in 1909. This includes all justices of the peace and aldermen elected in 1907, also borough and township officers elected, which is the first Monday in March or April or May, 1912, as the case may be. Under the Alter bill these officers were continued in office until the first Monday in January, 1914. All county officers elected in 1909 are in the same position, and instead of serving four years, will serve but three, and vacancies will occur at the end of the three years for which they were elected, which will be filled by appointment."

Owing to the fact that some doubt has existed as to whether assessors should or should not be elected this year, the Commissioners have held the question under advisement until the present time. A judicial decision handed down by Judge Benson, of Erie county, Pennsylvania, holds that assessors are not to be elected this year, but the ones now holding said office will hold over until their successors are elected in the year 1913. This being the only decision handed down by a Court thus far on the question, the Commissioners have decided to follow said decision. Therefore no assessors will be elected this year.

On Sunday he was on his way toward church when he was run down—not by the underground trolley road—but a burly dog, who chased Brer Rabbit until his little heart went pitty-pat. Her affliction is a rare one. As far as can be learned no cases of a similar nature have ever come under the observation of her physician. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she is resting comfortably.
