McNamara Defense Alleges "Union" Prejudice.

HOLIDAY HALTS THE TRIAL.

Examination of First Juror of Venice Brings Out Line of Defense—Will Oppose a Jury With Any Feeling Against Organized Labor.

Los Angeles, Oct. 12.—James B. McNamara, ironworker and alleged dynamiter, is now on trial for his life charged with the murder of Charles Haggerty, one of twenty-one persons who lost their lives in the explosion that wrecked the Los Angeles Times building on the morning of Oct. 1, 1910. John J. McNamara was returned to his cell in the county jail, there to await the outcome of the trial of his brother.

Early the defense indicated clearly the fight it is going to make to get a jury to its liking. When the examination of the first venireman called, Z. T. Nelson of Long Beach, commenced Leconte Davis began questioning him as to his opinion regarding labor organizations. The prosecution objected to this line of questioning, asserting that organized labor is not on trial; that this is to be a trial of individuals and not of the issues between capital and labor. Davis finally withdrew the questions.

Much time was taken up with the examination of Nelson, Clarence Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, and Joseph Scott, associate counsel, assisting Davis. Nelson was trapped finally into an admission of some prejudice in the case, and it is certain he will be challenged.

Adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock Friday morning, as today is Columbus day, a legal holiday in California.

Every seat in the courtroom had been taken long before the McNamaras entered the room. The attorneys for the defense were there also. The attorneys for the prosecution did not appear until fifteen minutes later.

After the venire had been sworn the district attorney called for the indictment and made a brief statement of the case. He pointed out J. B. McNamara to the occupants of the jury box and read the charge, calling attention to the date of the disaster.

Mr. Davis began the examination of the prospective jurors. After asking them the usual questions, he commenced questioning Z. T. Nelson. Having brought out that Nelson was a farmer, now retired, he asked him whether he, being aware of the "bitter" warfare in the United States between labor and capital, had sympathies either way. This was objected to by the prosecution and Davis, addressing the judge, said:

"While it is not alleged in the indictment that this alleged crime grew out of a labor war between the Times and organized labor, yet the prosecution will claim this. It is alleged that the motive of the crime was to avenge the attitude of the Times toward organized labor. We have to meet that. Your honor will agree that no man opposed to organized labor should act on the jury."

Davis finally withdrew his question.

HEAVY SNOW IN MONTANA.

Telegraph and Phone Lines Into Butte Down For Hours.

Butte, Mont., Oct. 12.—The heaviest snowfall in twenty years cut Butte off from the outside world yesterday. Every telegraph and telephone wire out of Butte was down and street car traffic was entirely suspended. The snow in the streets was two feet deep. Between Butte and Anaconda the weight of snow on the wires not only broke them, but pulled down miles of poles. The phone lines will practically have to be rebuilt.

Thousands of school children were unable to go to school on account of the depth of the snow. The railroads have suffered little and trains are running on the through lines.

DEFENDS TRUST PROBERS.

Wickersham Denies Rumors of Shake-up Because of Attacks.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Attorney General Wickersham has issued an emphatic denial of a report which has been current in Washington for several days that a shakeup is impending in the bureau of investigation, the secret service division of the department of justice. Mr. Wickersham said that he has entire confidence in its operation under Stanley W. Finch, chief of the bureau, and added that in his opinion the newspaper and other attacks upon the bureau were prompted by its efficient and successful results which resulted in its investigation.

The bureau has a force of about a hundred examiners, agents and accountants and has become an important branch of the government service since the trust investigations were begun. The bureau was created as a result of the fight between former President Roosevelt and leaders in congress over the alleged illegal operations of the secret service division of the treasury. At that time members of congress were anxious to limit the secret service officers in the treasury to functions of detecting counterfeiting and protecting the life of the president.

They say Mr. Allen has notified the government agents to figure up the amount that is alleged to be due the government, and it will be paid. This $150,000, with the fine paid, will bring his total expenditure in the Jenkins jewels up to $162,000.

New York, Oct. 12.—In a slambang ten round glove fight Battling Nelson, the former world's lightweight champion, earned a draw with Willie Beecher, the local boxer, at the Madison Athletic club.

Lehigh Tie the Tigers.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 12.—Princeton struck a snag in Lehigh, and the best the Tigers could do was to escape with a 6 to 6 score. Although Princeton forced the play throughout the game, making eight first downs to Lehigh's one, it was not until toward the end of the third period that Baker managed to break away with a sixty yard run for a touchdown, from which he kicked the goal and saved the game.

ACCUSES NEGRO.

Coatesville Girl Points Him Out as Her Assailant.

WAS IN BED WHEN ARRESTED

Negro Found Under Covers Fully Clothed—Identifies Him Watching From Hotel Window and Confirms Accusation in Police Station Later.

West Chester, Pa., Oct. 12.—Amy McElhaney, the fifteen-year-old school-girl who was attacked by a colored man on a lonely road near her home at Coatesville Monday afternoon, identified Thomas Harmon, under arrest here on suspicion, as her assailant.

Harmon was arrested at his home by the state police. The constabulary were seeking him on a clew given by Elmer Rambo, a farmer. When taken into custody Harmon was lying in bed fully clothed. He admitted knowing the McElhaney, but denied all knowledge of the attack.

Harmon was brought here soon after his arrest, and arrangements were made to have the girl come over from Coatesville to see whether she could identify him. Miss McElhaney came to West Chester and was taken to a hotel opposite the courthouse.

She was seated at a window overlooking the street when Harmon was being led from the jail to the courthouse. As Harmon passed Miss Elhaney leaned forward.

"Father, that's the man," she suddenly cried.

Mr. McElhaney immediately took her over to the office of the district attorney, where Harmon had been led. As she entered the room Harmon was seated by a window, the light falling upon his face.

Miss McElhaney hesitated only for a moment and trembled as she gazed at the prisoner.

"Yes, that's the man," she stated emphatically. "I recognized him as he passed across the street from the hotel. I was not sure that I would know him, but I am satisfied that there has been no mistake."

Harmon said nothing. He was several times questioned, but refused to answer. After the identification the negro was taken back to the county jail.

A dramatic turn was given the negro's arraignment. The girl appealed to the people of Coatesville not to wreak summary vengeance on her assailant.

At first she tried to speak to the crowd that surrounded the courthouse, but their cries for speedy vengeance on the negro made it impossible for her to be heard. Then she wrote this message, addressing it to the people of Coatesville:

"Do not darken the fair name of your town by another such occurrence as that of Aug. 13. There is no need of mob violence against the negro, who, I am given to believe, will be punished by law with the greatest possible dispatch."

The negro after a brief hearing was held for trial.

ACQUIT ALLEGED LYNCHERS.

Cut of Seven Trials For Coatesville Affair Seven Go Free.

West Chester, Pa., Oct. 12.—Albert Berry and William Gilbert were found not guilty of murder for their alleged share in the death of Zach Walker, the negro who was burned at the stake in Coatesville.

This makes seven acquittals out of seven trials, with two men yet to be tried.

Jack Miller, who was in the posse that pursued and finally cornered Walker in the tree where he shot himself, corroborated Berry's testimony, declaring that both he and the defendant had counseled the members of the posse against lynching Walker when there was talk of it. The witness was asked by Judge Butler whether Walker at the time looked like a fit subject for a lynching.

"No," replied Miller. "I thought he was dead."

MURDERED ON LONELY ROAD.

Schuylkill County Man Attacked, Killed and Robbed.

Pottsville, Pa., Oct. 12.—The body of Anthony Betch was found on the public road near his home at New Castle, with the nose cut off and the forehead and right temple caved in. There are evidences that a knife and club were used by his assailants during a severe struggle.

Robbery was the cause of the murder, as Betch's pockets were rifled and turned inside out, and his watch and money are missing. A detail of the state police is working on the clews. Betch had been to St. Clair and spent money freely. It is believed that when he started for his home, two miles from there, he was followed by two or more men, who, after beating him to death, robbed him.

James T. Ashley, formerly cashier of the bank, was indicted on the same grounds, the indictment alleging he concurred with Grout in making the report, which is declared to be false.

Grout and Ashley were accompanied by an imposing array of counsel, who took no active part in the proceedings except to stand about their clients in a protecting attitude.

NEW EVIDENCE OF BRIBES.

Lorimer Probers Hear More About $1,000 Offers.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Starting charges of lighthouse unknown offers of money to members of the Illinois legislature of 1909 to get votes enough for Senator William Lorimer and the testimony that the senator himself the night previous to his election declared he was to be "put over" were made before the subcommittee now probing Lorimer's election in Chicago.

Representative John Griffin of Chicago was named by Representative Henry Terrill of Colechester as the man who had told him "there was $1,000 or more in it" if he would vote for Lorimer.

"Griffin asked me to vote for Lorimer," the witness told the committee. "I asked what there was in it."

"He told me there was at least $1,000 in it. I just asked out of curiosity. That ended the conversation."

Terrill declared that he did not want the committee to interpret his testimony as an accusation that Griffin had offered him a bribe.

"Griffin never offered me anything," he said. "He merely told me when I asked him that he believed a man could get at least $1,000 for voting for Lorimer."

REJOICE IN ROME.

People Happy Over Successes at Tripoli.

ARMY OF OCCUPATION LANDS.

Perfect Organization of Expedition and Secrecy of Departure Causes Much Favorable Comment—Evaluating Permit Turks to Evacuate With Military Honors.

Rome, Oct. 12.—The arrival of the Italian landing expedition at Tripoli is officially announced. Forty troops, escorted by four battleships, submarines, destroyers and torpedo boats, have reached Tripoli. The convoy advanced in line and dropped anchor four miles offshore.

The disembarkation by means of rafts began as soon as the ships had come to anchor, and the warships fired salutes. There was prolonged cheering and excitement mingled with some shedding of tears. The landing was admirably conducted.

The news of Monday night's skirmish, which has assumed the proportions of a victorious battle, coupled with the successful landing of the troops, has provoked a frenzy of rejoicing in Rome.

The perfect organization of the expedition and the secrecy of its departure is receiving the most favorable comment. It is said that Italy is willing to allow the Turkish garrison to evacuate Tripoli with military honors and spare it the humiliation of surrender provided that Turkey is willing to become reconciled to the unconditional loss. Peace under such conditions is possible, though it is not considered imminent.

Italy will continue to send troops to Tripoli pending the outcome of the negotiations which will follow the armistice, but no hostilities will occur.

NOT PREPARED FOR WAR.

Turkey's Minister of War Oppes For Intervention of Powers.

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—Shevkat Pasha, minister of war, says that even Asia Minor was not properly garrisoned, for Turkey had not believed that there was reason to fear attack. The defense of Tripoli was impossible, as Turkey had no fleet. Asked how far Turkey was prepared to go in the matter of concessions, Shevkat Pasha said:

"We have not yet decided. We are waiting to know what Italy's demands will be."

In reply to a question regarding Turkey's hopes of mediation of the powers, or if she contemplated a direct communication with Italy, he replied:

"We hope that Italy will spare us that. The intervention of the powers is the most suitable way to have the matter settled."

My record is before the public and I wish to be judged by it. My best efforts have been given to the service of the people, in a legislative position, which it is well known, affords an inadequate compensation; and I now appeal to the people for their support in my efforts to attain a position in which the performance of duty is better rewarded.
