

His Man Friday

He Blunders Into His Happiness

Lewis Warren's new bungalow was perched on a pine covered knoll on the shore of the lake.

There were several bungalows about the beautiful little lake, and here and there jutted forth a narrow pier around which clustered gayly painted canoes or rascally fitted motorboats and from June until September the little summer colony fished and boated and bathed and then, suddenly, when the first week in September came the cottages could be closed and there would be no sign of life except the little wild animals that came to drink at the water's edge and the birds flitting among the pines.

Lewis Warren had built the bungalow for a retreat wherein to spend solitary days that would restore the energy he had lost during busy weeks in the heart of the big city.

He went up there in June for a brief visit and hastily turned the key in his door and departed—to return again in September when his neighbors had flitted cityward. On this brilliant morning, when the sky seemed newly washed in blue and the little lake gaily reflected azure heaven and green earth, Lewis took from his Japanese servant a basket of lunch and went down to his own pier. The lunch, together with fishing rod and basket, was tossed into the bottom of a canoe, and Lewis stepped in and paddled slowly over to the island.

To have a whole month to himself in the most glorious season of the year, when every day is golden and the nights are cool and made for sweet, sound sleep, seemed too good to be true, and at last, haunted by the fear that there might be some cottager lurking near by who might suddenly start his phonograph blaring into the delicious silence, Lewis started on a tour of the island skirting the beach in his walk.

Then all at once he stopped short and fastened his gaze on the damp sand at the water's edge.

"Well, I'll be hanged!" he ejaculated in an injured tone. "I had a feeling that somebody was around. Can't lose me on that premonition business."

There under his very nose was impressed a footprint, the mark of a small bare foot, evidently that of a boy, and close beside it was another and another and still another of the same feet. Some of the footprints appeared to lead straight into the water, and others evidently climbed the sandy slope and were lost among the brown needles that strewed the ground.

"Somebody left those footprints on the sand, and that not so very long ago. I suppose the rascal is hiding in the trees up yonder. I may as well follow this trail among the spruces."

The trail was soon lost among the needles, and as there were a dozen little paths winding among the spruces it was no easy matter to decide which one to follow. Lewis soon tired of hunting for the trespasser and concluding that, whoever he was, the boy would probably not disturb him now that his presence had been discovered, the young man returned to his canoe and the neglected fishing.

He had just landed a shining lake trout when a distant splash attracted his attention. He turned his canoe and paddled around to the southern shore just in time to see a small dark head bobbing above the surface of the water, with now and then the flash of a bare foot as the swimmer drew nearer the mainland.

Lewis chuckled softly to himself, amused at the lad's hasty flight. "He doesn't know he's my man Friday," he grinned as he paddled back once more.

The day had been badly broken up by his uneasy wanderings, and now, after his luncheon was disposed of and he had spent an hour with pipe and hook, he returned home resolved to come back the next day and enjoy the full measure of a lazy day.

Another glorious day dawned. He made his usual landing, fastening his craft to a weather beaten stake thrust in the sand. Then he carried hook and basket around to the sunny southern shore and stretched himself on the sand. The water looked cool and inviting, but swimming was a diversion he had been obliged to forego the past year on account of a severe attack of rheumatism, which gripped him cruelly at the first impact of cold water.

Suddenly there bobbed into his range of vision a green canoe, untenanted and idly floating toward the mainland. It was several moments before it occurred to him that his own craft might have gone adrift, and when he went to look his fears were verified. The ancient stake had snapped asunder at the water line, and now he could see it floating along in the wake of the canoe.

"No use yelling to Taku. He'd only get excited and tumble in the soup kettle. He can't help me, and I can't help myself. Here I must stay until I am rescued, and I wouldn't be a bit disappointed to see that man Friday! Wish I hadn't scared him off—serves me right."

Shortly afterward a stone rolling down into the water startled him to a sitting posture just in time to see a flash of bare feet disappearing among the spruces far down the beach. He followed his impulse and went after the trespasser. When he reached the spot he could plainly distinguish the little wet footprints leading straight up into the thicket of spruces. He halted there at the foot of the embankment.

"Hi, there, man Friday!" he called good naturedly.

There was no reply. Not a sound broke the stillness.

"I saw you that time, my boy. Don't try any game on me. I won't hurt you."

"Hi!" A voice startled him from the gloom of the thicket not three yards distant.

"Ah, skeptical, are you, son? Well, listen to this—my canoe's gone adrift and I can't recover it on account of being old and rheumatic. I've discovered your footprints on the sand of my island, and therefore you're my man Friday. Today's Friday, you know. Don't you want to swim over and get my canoe for me, and then come back and have luncheon on the shore?" Lewis' voice was alluring.

"Poor old Robinson Crusoe!" chuckled the voice from the thicket, but its owner made no attempt to come forth.

"Will you get the canoe?" persisted Lewis. "I think there's chicken pie in the basket."

"I'll get it for you if you will go back and stay on the beach," parleyed the voice after awhile.

"Very well, Friday; I'll go burrow my head in the sand if you insist. I'm quite at your mercy. Exit Robinson Crusoe." Lewis grinned to himself as he went back to his pipe and book. Studiously turning his back to the lake and the strip of beach to his left, he enveloped himself in clouds of smoke and presently quite forgot his man Friday and the errand upon which he had been sent.

A pebble struck him squarely between the shoulder blades and brought him to his feet. The canoe was beached nearby, and sitting in it, a tarpaullin thrown over her knees, was a girl. Lewis stared at her with slowly rising color, while she gazed with dark laughing eyes. Her face was tinted daintily by sun and wind, and her red lips were parted above perfect teeth.

"I beg your pardon," Lewis managed to ejaculate. "Are you—did you—I thought I was speaking to a boy." He knew the girl was enjoying his embarrassment.

She shook her head with a charming smile. "No excuse, Mr. Warren. Friday has reclaimed the canoe for you and expects a piece of chicken pie."

"Of course—of course I am honored," assured Lewis after he brought forth the luncheon basket, and he blessed the fastidious Taku for the dainty arrangement of the viands, the crisp paper napkins, the surprise of delicious fruit.

He did not invite her to leave the canoe, because he knew that the tarpaullin covered her pretty pink and white feet, and he had thought they belonged to a boy! He waited on her eagerly and forgot to eat as he watched her consume the luncheon.

"I'm ever so much obliged to you for bringing in the canoe," he said at length. "I would have been marooned here all night if you hadn't overlooked my presumption and swim over for it. I hope you won't take cold." He looked at the pretty blue bathing dress, with its elbow sleeves displaying slender brown arms.

"Dear me, no; I'm in and out of the water a dozen times a day. I'm enjoying it all I can this week, because we break camp next Thursday and return to town. Father and I returned from Europe only two weeks ago. As soon as he had learned that you had bought the other end of the lake—our camp is at the west end—he went over to call. That was yesterday, and he did not find you at home. He's gone over again today, and he won't find you at home."

Lewis looked puzzled and happy at the same time.

"Your father knows me?" he asked eagerly.

"Why, yes. I forgot to tell you who I am. I'm Freda Lanson, and father's Homer Lanson. He and your father used to be business partners."

"Oh, of course. Isn't that great?" Lewis was growing enthusiastic. He had known Homer Lanson for years, but never had met the only child which composed his family. Once in awhile the two men had dined together at some restaurant, and it always happened to be on the elder Warren's birthday, and in this way Lewis Warren kept a connecting link between his father's memory and the man with whom he had been in business.

"I'm sorry you've bought this island. We used to consider it public property," observed Freda as she suddenly slipped into the water and prepared to swim across to the mainland. "I hope you won't put up 'No Trespassing' signs on the beach."

Lewis blushed as he recollected his irritation of the day before. Then he recovered his self possession. "The island belonged to Friday as much as Robinson Crusoe," he said, laughing.

"Thank you," she flashed back over her shoulder. "Au revoir, Robinson Crusoe!"

"Goodby! Miss Friday," called Lewis, and he stood there watching her until a curve of the shore hid her dark head from view. "Friday—Freda—Friday—there's something coincident about those names. I believe I'm having another premonition, and I'll help it along until—until!" He smiled whimsically as he walked back to the canoe, and, although he never finished the sentence, it is a significant fact that he always called her Friday, even after he had earned the right to call her his wife.

WOMEN LOSE CALIFORNIA.

All of the Other Amendments to Constitution Were Adopted.

San Francisco, Oct. 12.—With about 80 per cent of the vote counted it is now certain that woman suffrage was defeated by about 5,000 majority, while nearly all the other twenty-two amendments submitted to the people were adopted.

It is possible districts to be heard from may cut down materially this majority, but they cannot give the victory to the women. The defeat of suffrage was accomplished by this city, which gave a majority against the amendment of 13,550, while outside of the city the state gave a majority of 8,000 for suffrage.

Not discouraged by their defeat, the women, taking advantage of the initiative amendment adopted at the election, are preparing to submit to the people at the regular election in November another proposition for suffrage. They contend that their defeat was due to the fact that in the country the vote was very light, while in the cities, where suffrage was weakest, the vote was much heavier.

It is interesting to note that the recall received a majority of 75,000, the greatest for any amendment.

MOB TORTURES VICTIMS.

Two Negroes in Missouri Killed and Others Flew.

Caruthersville, Mo., Oct. 12.—A. B. Rich and Hugh Picketts, two negroes, were tortured and shot to death by a mob here and the bodies were then pitched into the Mississippi river. The mob broke into the city jail and dragged the men to the baseball park. Sounds of lashing and the screams of the victims were heard.

Picketts had followed two white girls to their homes. He was arrested when found hiding in shrubbery. Rich was lynched because he stole a package of merchandise after being warned to leave town. It is said he was responsible for several mysterious fires.

There has been smoldering excitement here since last week, when Lee Fleming and Albert Dugger were slashed nearly to death by a "bad" negro.

With the departure of each train and steamboat many negroes are leaving the city in fear of mob activity.

BOUNDARY ARBITERS MEET.

Americans and Canadians Hold Their First Session.

Washington, Oct. 12.—The international joint commission, which is charged with the duty of adjudicating waterway boundary disputes between the United States and Canada, has held its first meeting here.

The commission will remain in session the rest of this week, so that the members may reach an understanding with reference to the amount of work on hand, the scope and powers of the commission and the methods of procedure.

OBJECT TO MORMON GIFT.

Silver Service For Battleship Utah Bears Figure of Brigham Young.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 12.—The intention of the Mormons to present to the United States battleship Utah, soon to be launched, a silver tray bearing the figure of Brigham Young and the Mormon church, has aroused a protest by non-Mormons of Utah. They have offered a silver tray, but with a patriotic design.

Protests against the Mormon gift have been made to Secretary Meyer.

HALFWAY IN HIS FLIGHT.

Rodgers in Sea to Sea Trip Over Kansas Today.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 12.—C. P. Rodgers, sea to sea aviator, who landed in Swope park yesterday after flying eighty-four miles from Marshall, is again in the air some place in Kansas today.

He has covered 1,483 miles since leaving New York and is within a few hours' flight of the halfway point in his cross country journey.

A LIBERAL OFFER.

We Guarantee to Relieve Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well-known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is carefully prepared so as to develop its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid. Without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The Carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the disturbances and pain caused by undigested food. This combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents, and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at our store—The Rexall Store.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Number One. A JOINT RESOLUTION.

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, so as to consolidate the courts of common pleas of Allegheny County.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section six of article five be amended, by striking out the said section, and inserting in place thereof the following:

Section 6. In the county of Philadelphia all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the district courts and courts of common pleas, subject to such changes as may be made by this Constitution or by law, shall be in Philadelphia vested in five distinct and separate courts of equal and co-ordinate jurisdiction, composed of three judges each. The said courts in Philadelphia shall be designated respectively as the court of common pleas number one, number two, number three, number four, and number five, but the number of said courts may be by law increased, from time to time, and shall be in like manner designated by successive numbers. The number of judges in any of said courts, or in any county where the establishment of an additional court may be authorized by law, may be increased, from time to time, and whenever such increase shall amount in the whole to three, such three judges shall compose distinct and separate court as aforesaid, which shall be numbered as aforesaid. In Philadelphia all suits shall be instituted in the said courts of common pleas without designating the number of the said court, and the several courts shall distribute and apportion the business among them in such manner as shall be provided by rules of court, and each court, to which any suit shall be thus assigned, shall have exclusive jurisdiction thereof, subject to change of venue, as shall be provided by law.

In the county of Allegheny all the jurisdiction and powers now vested in the several numbered courts of common pleas shall be vested in one court of common pleas, composed of all the judges in commission in said courts. Such jurisdiction and powers shall extend to all proceedings at law and in equity which shall have been instituted in the several numbered courts, and shall be subject to such changes as may be made by law, and subject to change of venue as provided by law. The president judge of said court shall be selected as provided by law.

The number of judges in said court may be by law increased from time to time. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January succeeding its adoption.

Number Two.

A JOINT RESOLUTION. Proposing an amendment to section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:— Amendment to Article Nine, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight, article nine, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation," so as to read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenue in excess of the interest on said debt or debts of the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted. Provided, That a sinking fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained.
