The Bell Telephone company has presented the Austin operator who stuck to her switchboard and sent out the alarm when the dam broke, with a gold watch and a prize of $250. A few days ago they doubled her salary and gave her a life position.

William A. Sinn, who was for years secretary of the Masonic Lodge of Pennsylvania, died October 18 in Philadelphia and is mourned by many friends. Mr. Sinn was a frequent visitor to Honesdale, whose spirit of enterprise and progress he much admired. He was one of the principal figures at the laying of the cornerstone of the Capitol Building in 1898, at Harrisburg.

Game Warden Gilbert White, of Honesdale, has been informed that parties were seen up on the Dyberry, in the woods, with guns and dogs, and heard shooting. They were hunting. All he is waiting for is to get the names of the parties before taking them before a Justice of the Peace. Being seen in the woods with guns and dogs is evidence sufficient, and he proposes to prosecute them. If any parties, owners of land, see persons shooting with guns before the law is up, he would like them to give him the names, and he'll prosecute them.

J. W. Smith was killed in a mine at Wilkes-Barre on Wednesday last. Death resulted by a fall of rock. Mr. Smith was a son of Mrs. C. N. Smith of River street. The deceased was born at Smith Hill 40 years ago and left Honesdale at the age of 16 years. He was married in Wilkes-Barre and is survived by a wife and five children, also by his mother, Mrs. Effie Sherman, Mrs. Charles P. Silsby, Wheeler and Fred of Honesdale; Roe, Horace and Mrs. Albert Williams, all of Wilkes-Barre. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in Larksville, Mr. Smith's late home. Mr. Smith had just purchased a farm near Wilkes-Barre where he intended to live, making a home for his mother. Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Effie Sherman and Mrs. Charles P. Silsby attended the funeral.

The vines on the Catholic church, Allen House and Grace Episcopal church are beautiful in color.

A good time is assured those who attend the Heptasophs ball at White Mills Saturday evening, Oct. 28, 1911.

Joe Killhullen, of Carbondale, a few years ago a catcher at Villa Nova and the last two seasons working out at Tyrone, Pa., with a semi-professional team, has been tendered a contract by Manager Mack, of the Athletics, and he will sign and report to that team next spring.

Fire partially destroyed the home of H. E. Polley, Hawley, early Sunday morning. Mr. Polley and family were at Ariel visiting. The cause of the fire is unknown. The building was owned by George Beyer. Loss about $3,000.

Edward E. Kinsman is shipping rutabagas to Scranton and other valley cities and towns. The rutabagas are not as large in size as in former years, due principally to the dry season. Some farmers state that woodchucks stunted their growth by eating the tops shortly after they were planted, which affected the growth.

The January meeting of the Scranton Archdeaconry will be held at St. David's church, Hyde Park, Scranton. The preachers for that occasion will be Rev. George C. Graham, Carbondale; Rev. J. H. Griffiths, Plymouth. The book review or exercises will be in charge of Rev. J. T. Ward, of Wilkes-Barre, and Rev. A. L. Whittaker, of Honesdale.

There are a number of slippery cellar doors on Main street which should be replaced by a corrugated surface or wooden doors. Last Wednesday a stranger fell upon one of these doors and it was necessary for two men, one the owner of the building in front of whose business place he fell, to place the man upon his feet—and he was not intoxicated either.

Miss Kathryn M. Wadsworth and R. S. Conner, both of Schenectady, N. Y., were married Monday afternoon by Rev. Benjamin P. Ripley, pastor of the Hawley Methodist Episcopal church. The ceremony was performed in Central Methodist Episcopal church parsonage, Honesdale. The bride and bridegroom are friends of Rev. and Mrs. Ripley, who accompanied the young couple to Honesdale.

The chauffeur slowed up (it almost seems incredible), the clerk wrapped his apron around him and stroled out, the lawyer left his office and walked up street, the court house officials telephoned, the doctor paused in his hurried walk and Honesdale's entire police force, the butcher, the baker and candlestick maker stopped. It was the result of the final inning in the world's series being announced at Schuerholz's cigar store.

S. S. Robinson, the Wayne county bard, treated the office force of the Citizen to a box of fine Old English Sheldon pears last Friday afternoon. His contribution of luscious fruit was received with thanks, and devoured with pleasure. Mr. Robinson, by the way, writes some mighty fine poems, as the readers of this paper are well aware. He is as successful in raising pears as he is in writing poetry, and that's saying a good deal in these days of the San Jose sale.

Albert Painter, a Wayne county farmer, made a flying leap through the plate glass front of E. A. Bloxham's office, Forest City, last Saturday afternoon. Painter had gone to the lumber yard for a load of shingles. Leaving his team standing alongside the building he went into the office to purchase shingle nails, when the team became frightened at a passing locomotive and made a dash up Grand avenue. Painter saw them going, and in his excitement leaped nimbly over a radiator and on through the glass front. With the blood spurting from the wounds in his head he never halted until he came up with the team which had been stopped in front of Zaller's liquor store. None of the wounds were serious.—[Forest City News.]

Those who were figuring on the Wayne county Republicans jumping their candidate for congress and voting the Keystone-Democratic combination are destined to be disappointed, judging from the reports coming in from old Wayne. While that county very much desired the nomination of Homer Greene, the voters do not intend to sulk or do anything that would injure the party and the chances of a Wayne county man in the future. The fact is, that the Democratic-Keystone combination gave Wayne very little consideration and cannot hope to have the people of our neighbor across the mountain "pull the chestnuts from the fire" for the benefit of the coterie in Bradford county which seems to have a monopoly of reform candidates. In W. D. B. Alney the district has a candidate of the progressive pattern, and one who will be able to do something for the district, if elected. He is peculiarly well fitted to represent this district with unusual ability. Before any real constructive Republican legislation can be put through, the lower branch of Congress must be redeemed to the Republicans and the Willmet-Grow district will, without any question, enter the first wedge in that direction. Dr. Rockwell may be a good man, we doubt not he is, but if elected he would be compelled to act with the Democratic wing in the house, and not in accord with the policies believed in by a majority of the voters of this district.—[Forest City News.]

Rally Day was observed in the Methodist Sunday school on Sunday last. In the absence of Superintendent Buel Dodge, M. E. Simons presided over the school. A special program was rendered which was appreciated by a large attendance. A good collection was received.

Dr. H. B. Ely performed a plastic surgical operation upon Mrs. Ray Woodward, of Adelia, Tuesday, at Mrs. Elizabeth Hattler's, Eleventh street. He was assisted by Dr. L. B. Nielsen and Miss Catherine Hattler. The patient is doing nicely.

Florence Williams, eight-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hattie Williams died Sunday of pneumonia at her home in White Mills, after a short illness. Besides her mother, one sister and five brothers survive. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the White Mills Methodist church. Rev. Walter Walker officiating.

Among the visitors in Scranton yesterday was J. E. Richmond to attend the nineteenth birthday reception of his cousin, Wm. H. Richmond, the famous coal operator, the Sage of Richmond Hill. Mr. Richmond was a former Honesdaler in 1845, and removed to Carbondale in 1850, and went into the mercantile business there, when Scranton was known as Sloum Hollow. Our townsman, J. E. Richmond, was his partner until he removed to Scranton in 1865.

George Myers, the popular proprietor of the Seelyville Hotel, was injured by an explosion on Monday day morning. Myers and a helper, Walter Sonn, were cleaning the acetylene gas making machine. Mr. Myers released the carbonator and took it from the shed near the hotel to the side street, just outside. He could not see clearly what was the matter with that part of the machine so he struck a match and held the ignited match to the gas tank. Immediately there occurred an explosion that shook the small village of Seelyville and the report was heard in Honesdale, the accident happening about 11 o'clock. Houses trembled, window panes were broken and the badly frightened people ran out of their homes to see what was the matter. Mr. Myers was thrown to the ground by the explosion. He received a compound fracture of the right arm and his body was more or less bruised by the explosion. Mr. Sonn was thrown about ten feet from where he was standing. His arms were badly scratched. The force of the explosion made a large hole in the earth. Dr. Ely was called and treated Mr. Myers' injuries.

The following complimentary notice appeared in Wednesday's Harrisburg Telegraph: Father Penn has the rest of the heads of the various States in the Union beaten some miles in the matter of revenue raising. The Pennsylvania treasury balance is known all over the country and the fact that this State could build a $13,000,000 Capitol and carry on all its great projects and yet have money in the bank is one of the wonders in governmental circles. The State's system has been turned around, placed on its head, held to the light, X-rayed, probed, plumbed and pried into by experts from every state in the Union and by the financial sharps of some of the Canadian provinces, all anxious to see how to do it without any State tax on land. When Pennsylvania men get up to speak at tax conferences they are accorded the entire floor—all want to hear all about it. Now it happens that among the tax experts up on the Hill is one N. E. Hause. Mr. Hause comes from Wayne county and is chief clerk of the Auditor General and thinks taxation problems everywhere but out loud. He is one of the leading adjusters of different propositions and so well he is thought of in the Congresses of the experts on taxation that he has been invited to read a paper at the national tax conference next year. This is the real blue ribbon organization because it is made up of the big State officials of the States and the United States and its deliberations bring forth many matters which affect millions of people. Mr. Hause will discuss Pennsylvania taxation.

TRIANGULAR ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Preliminary arrangements were made on Saturday last by representatives of Dunmore, Carbondale and Honesdale High schools for the triangular contest, which will be held after Easter in the Lyceum Theatre, Scranton.

Those present at the conference, which was held in Hotel Casey Saturday morning, were Prof. C. E. Hoban, Vice Principal Dayton Ellis, Mrs. Matthews Owens and Miss Gilligan, of Dunmore; Principal T. W. Loftus and Miss McCabe, of Carbondale; Prof. H. A. Oday and Miss Harriet Arnold, of Honesdale.

The oration, which was first introduced last year, has been dropped, a musical selection being adopted in its place. "In Spain," a four-part selection, in which 80 students will participate, was selected. The piece is arranged by N. C. Page. The introduction of music is entirely new and it is hoped it will awaken the interest of music in the High school. The fact that more students will be interested in it will cause it to become of more general benefit. There will be 80 students interested in a musical selection, whereas now only three at the most are interested in a declamation. The recitation decided upon is "How Girls Study." Declamation, "Work," by Carlisle. After lunch, the conference adjourned.

ANOTHER SUCCESS.

The Amity Social club have ever been interested in presenting to the people of Honesdale entertainments of the most pleasing nature. The success attained by the production of "A Night Off," "Hazel Kirke," "Flowers of the Forest," and Barbara Fritchie," and the never-to-be-forgotten "Amity Circus" still live in the minds of all. This year they offer at the Lyric theatre a company of nine men called the Gay Hussars or Singing Band, who give an entertainment full of music and mirth. This is probably the highest paid attraction ever booked by a local society and is something entirely new in the line of entertainment. Press notices are loud in praise of its merit. The date is next Tuesday, Oct. 31.

WIND TURNED GAS ON.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Henry Freund, well-known resident of Northfield, near the golf links, was found dead early Sunday morning. He had hung his vest over the gas jet before retiring and then opened the window. The wind swirled the vest, turning on the full pressure of gas.

From indications the man's death had occurred on Friday night, the last time he was seen. He is survived by two sons and a daughter, who reside here.
