

COURT NOTES FOR OCTOBER TERM

With but one criminal case marked for trial, and nothing at all on the civil list, there was very little work for the court and jurors at the October term which was convened Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and adjourned Tuesday noon.

When the list of traverse jurors was called all responded to their names save the following yeomen, who were excused: John Doyle, blacksmith, Waymart; William Guinn, merchant, Hawley; C. Marshall, laborer, Hawley; John Merigan, farmer, Scott; M. J. Monaghan, farmer, Preston; A. M. Sandercock, farmer, Cherry Ridge.

The following accounts were presented for confirmation nisi:

John L. Burcher, Honesdale; Lydia Bennett, Carbondale; Stephen Torrey, Honesdale; Martha Pau, Honesdale; John J. Fulkerson, Mt. Pleasant; Wm. C. Ames, Hawley; S. L. Olver, Berlin; Grace Giles, Prompton; Elizabeth Bennett, Prompton; Sarah A. Wilson, Honesdale.

Second and final account of M. J. Hanlan, guardian of Eugene C. Lesh, a feeble-minded person; first and partial account of Geo. H. Ham, guardian of Lewis L. Ham, a feeble-minded person.

Appraisements were allowed to the widows of Lewis Hill, Damascus; real estate; Julia Washburn, minor child of Frank L. Washburn, Preston; personal estate.

As forecasted in last week's issue of The Citizen all the civil cases were continued, so that there is nothing on the civil list to be tried.

When the list of criminal cases was called, it was found that the case of Commonwealth vs. Charles Stevens, assault and battery, would be continued on application of the defendant, with the intimidation by the defendant's attorney, F. P. Kimble, Esq., that it was about to be settled.

The case of the Commonwealth against Charles Stevens, surety of the peace, was set down for a hearing next Monday.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. G. W. Swartz, Scranton; Floyd Portree, prosecutor, eight indictments, four for larceny as servant, and four for simple larceny were returned by the grand jury against the defendant. Upon application of the defendant's attorney, Frank P. Kimble, Esq., who declared that he hadn't had time to prepare the case, it was permitted to go over to the next term.

In the case of the Commonwealth versus Dominic Luciani, mention was made that the defendant had entered a plea of guilty on the charge of illegal liquor selling, and sentence imposed last Monday.

Other criminal cases enumerated by the District Attorney, as still pending, included those against J. Bradley Rawleigh, charged with larceny as servant; against Henry Keger, charged with fornication and bastardy; against Frank Bregar, charged with assault and battery; against Jos. Ackerman and others, charged with assault and battery; against Ira Ritch, charged with assault and battery.

C. A. McCarty, Esq., attorney for Jos. Ackerman and others, made an application for a continuance of the case against his clients, on account of the illness of several important witnesses. His request was granted.

Following the call of the bar, when a number of motions were made, and several important orders handed down, the case of the Commonwealth versus J. Bradley Rawleigh was called.

"I have a plea of guilty to the charge of larceny as servant," said District Attorney M. E. Simons, when the case against Rawleigh was taken up. It took just twelve minutes to dispose of the Scott township buttermaker's case.

The facts in the case as outlined by the District Attorney were: "The defendant was a butter maker employed by Geo. A. Smith to make butter up in the township of Scott, and the charge is that he sold this butter and he received the money himself, and made no report to his employers. Mr. Smith hasn't had time to find out how much he had taken. It's been such bad weather he couldn't get around."

When questioned by Judge Searle it was learned that Rawleigh, who came from New York state, last March, and denied ever having been in trouble before, had made restitution as far as he could. Rawleigh admitted having sold butter at three or four different times, and pocketing the proceeds.

Geo. A. Smith was called upon to state what he knew about the matter. He said that Rawleigh came here from Cooperstown, N. Y., last March. He declined to testify himself no way of knowing just how much butter Rawleigh stole. He rather thought it might amount to $300 or $400 worth.

Rawleigh, who worked under a man by the name of O'Connell at Cooperstown, N. Y., denied that he had been in trouble before, although Mr. Smith stated that Mr. O'Connell had written him recently that he got into office titles up there.

Chester A. Garratt, Esq., made a plea to the Court asking the Judge to show mercy to his client on the ground that this was his first offense, and that he has promised to pay back all he owes.

Declaring that under the indeterminate sentence act passed by the Legislature he had very little discretion in the matter, Judge Searle soundly lectured the prisoner, saying:

"Now Mr. Rawleigh you are a man of intelligence, and you didn't have to take this butter and sell it. You not only took this butter, but you deceived those who employed you. We can see no excuse for you whatever. You made trouble for the patrons of the creamery and for those who employed you, besides causing an actual loss to them."

At this point Judge Searle asked Mr. Smith whether the creamery at Sherman was closed, and was informed that it shut down several weeks ago.

Concluding his remarks, Judge Searle said: "The sentence is that you pay the costs of prosecution; that you pay a fine of $25 to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; and that you undergo imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia, at separate and solitary confinement, for an indeterminate period of not less than nine months nor more than three years."

Following the imposition of the sentence, Rawleigh left the courtroom with Sheriff M. Lee Braman as unconcernedly as he had entered it.

C. A. McCarty and Chester A. Garratt appeared for the defendant.

At eight minutes past eleven o'clock, Tuesday morning, the jurors were excused by Judge A. T. Searle, who declared that "We are pleased to announce that all the cases have been settled or continued. Now that the weather has cleared off, you'll have something at your homes as profitable as at Court."

Tuesday morning Herman Harmes, Esq., was appointed master in the case of Lottie M. Olver by her next friend, Samuel Farrell, libellant, vs. A. Lloyd Olver, respondent.

Tuesday morning in the case of Garney Belknap, libellant, vs. Jessie M. Belknap, respondent, a divorce was decreed.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY HEARING

The services of an interpreter were required in the case of the Commonwealth versus Frank Bregar, Brownvale, who is charged with assault and battery upon one John Kurochic of the same place, on July 1, 1911, the taking of testimony in which action was commenced Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Three twelve men were called into the box to serve as a jury in the case: W. Hertel, Jr., glassworker, Palmyra; E. W. Howe, laborer, Sterling; James Noble, farmer, Salem; George Ehrhardt, butcher, Dreher; C. L. Dunning, merchant, Honesdale; Depew Teeple, farmer, Manchester; C. H. Wilmarth, farmer, Clinton; T. J. Rourke, farmer, Buckingham; Geo. A. Smith, blacksmith, Lake; W. Buddenhagen, teamster, Lake; O. F. Bowen, farmer, Scott; C. S. Van Sickle, blacksmith, So. Canaan. The defendant's attorneys challenged these three jurors: Martin Snively, Damascus; Charles Jacobs, Starrucca; W. H. Rose, Damascus.

After the jury had been impaneled, all the rest of the traverse jurors were excused for the remainder of the afternoon. Attorney W. J. Maxey, Forest City, who was associated with Herman Harmes, Hawley, as counsel for the defendant, was admitted to practice in Wayne county upon the motion of the latter, and the case of the Commonwealth was outlined to the jury by District Attorney M. E. Simons who said:

"This action is a simple case of assault and battery. The defendant is charged with striking the prosecutor over the head with a shovel. It occurred in the little village called Brownvale just across the line from Wayne county, July 1, last. This prosecutor was on his way home. The defendant called him across the street to his house, and said he wanted him to pay him $5. He had some dealings with the prosecutor. The prosecutor replied he didn't owe him anything. With that the defendant, who was just inside the gate, drew up a shovel and struck the prosecutor over the head a blow with a shovel and cut a great gash in his head and followed it up with some threats. That's about all there is to this case. Some parties came and Bregar went back into his yard and the other man to a physician where his scalp was treated and the wound sewed up."

John Kurochic, Brownsdale, the prosecutor, was the first witness. He said that he couldn't talk English, and so John Dutchman was sworn as an interpreter.

Kurochic's story of how the affray happened was somewhat as follows: He went to Forest City, July 1. He came home intoxicated and singing. On his way home he saw Bregar and called out "Hey you owe me $5." to which Bregar replied "when did you give them to me?" He stepped over to Bregar's fence and Bregar hit him over the head with a shovel and cut his head open. Then Bregar took a little stool and hit him over the leg and his wife threw dirty water at him. Kurochic's wife and daughter came and led him home.

The Doctor came to his house that evening, and found a gash 1 1/2 inches long. Kurochic didn't attempt to strike Bregar.

When cross-examined by Attorney Maxey, Kurochic said he went to Forest City that day to get three window panes; that he was thirsty and went into a saloon and drank a couple of glasses of beer and whiskey. He was singing on his way home. He didn't know whether he threw any stones at Bregar's house or not. He lived in Brownsdale six years, and never was in trouble before. Bregar struck him with a mine shovel on the back of his head. The scar is still on his head, and he showed it to the jury. He said he was 52 years old, and didn't remember ever being hit before.

John Kurochic, Jr., a son of the prosecutor, said he could talk a little English. "I see my father was out on the street," he said, "all bloody around the chin. I was going over and took him home. I didn't see Bregar strike father. I saw father in the middle of the street. Bregar was inside of the lot." The affray happened at six o'clock, and John, Jr., went for the doctor. There was no cross-examination.

Jennie Kurochic, the daughter of the prosecutor, wearing an immense white hat and a blue dress, took the stand, and swore that she was home on their porch on July 1, and saw what happened at Bregar's house, 200 feet away. "I see Father coming home," she said, "and so he (Bregar) called him over and asked him for $5. So I seen him hit the shovel on father. He took a chair and threw it on his leg. He was inside of the gate and my father was outside. Father didn't attempt to strike Bregar. I phoned to the doctor. My brother took him home."

On cross-examination she said: "Well, I just seen him when hit with a shovel. Father was coming home singing. He threw one stone at Mr. Bregar's house. Yes, he was drunk. Father threw a stone right after he was hit with the shovel. He wasn't talking straight."

Frank Debevoise was the next witness. He didn't talk English. He saw the affair 300 yards away and saw Frank hit Kurochic.

When cross-examined by Attorney Maxey he said: "Kurochic threw one stone at the house. He wasn't so drunk that he fell. I was upstairs in the Kurochic house when this happened. I heard the quarrel and went and opened the window."

The Commonwealth rested. Attorney Maxey presented the defendant's case to the jury in these words:

"The whole trouble arose over Kurochic being drunk. He stopped in front of the defendant's house. This man came in front of his house calling him names and asking him to fight. His wife came out and sent her husband back. He threw stones at the house. Bregar came out, picked up a shovel and threw it at him and hit him on the head. We think we can show he was on his porch all the time, didn't have a shovel and didn't strike him."

Frank Bregar was the first witness called by the defense. He swore that he was home July 1, and saw Kurochic coming along the street singing and hollering about 5:30.

He was minding the baby on the porch. Kurochic was calling "beggers" as he came down the road. Bregar asked him "did I owe him anything." He shook the fence. His wife ordered him away. He wouldn't go, so she spilled water on him. I came out with the baby. She chased me back. He threw two stones at the house. Then I came out again and picked up a stool and threw it at him. I never struck him with a shovel. I was sober. I was afraid of Kurochic.

When cross-examined, Bregar adhered to his original story. He said further that he told Kurochic he owed him $5, but didn't ask him to pay it. His wife was washing. He threw the stool, he said, because he was afraid Kurochic would come in the gate. God knows I didn't hit him with a shovel.

Mrs. Frank Bregar, corroborated her husband's story. Kurochic was going to go in the gate and she spilled water on him. Then he picked up a stone and threw it. Her husband threw a stool at him, but never hit him with a shovel. She said to her husband "You go in the house, and to Kurochic "You go home," before she threw the water. When the Kurochics came after him they hollered "murderers" and "killers" at her and she splashed water on them.

Mrs. John Milhevc was called, but 5 o'clock having come the case was continued until Tuesday morning.

After deliberating on the case for half an hour, the jury returned to the Court with this verdict: "We find the defendant not guilty, but to pay one-third of the costs and Jennie Kurochick, prosecutrix, to pay two-thirds of the costs."

"The Court is pleased with the verdict," remarked Judge Searle, addressing the jury. "The Court thinks it's a very sensible solution of the matter. Little matters like this ought to be kept out of Court."

LAKEVILLE.

[Special to The Citizen.]
Lakeville, Pa., Oct. 24.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized on the Miller lawn at the Mountain View House here under a canopy of flowers and ferns, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 17, at 8 o'clock when Miss Minnie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Miller of this place, became the bride of David S. Finkelstein, of Scranton.

Rev. Mazar and Rabbi Gold of Scranton, performed the ceremony. The bride was handsomely attired in a gown of white satin, beautifully trimmed in pearl and beads. Her veil was very dainty and neatly arranged with lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of the same. The matron of honor was her cousin, Miss Rose Freed, New York city.

The bride's maids were Misses Mary and Fannie Miller, the sisters, also Miss Hannah Levy and Miss Judith Mazen of Scranton. The ushers, Hyman and Abram Miller, Samuel Ziman and Maxwell Levy, The Orchestra of Hawley furnished the music. The bride received many beautiful gifts of cut glass, silver and linen and a number of checks. The out of town guests were: Miss Rose Freed, W. Miller and Mr. Bryan of New York City; B. H. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Levy and daughters, Mary and Molly, Mrs. B. C. Levy, daughters, Hannah and Dorothy, Mrs. David A. Levy, Miss Bertha Levy, Miss Judith Mazar, Samuel Ziman, M. Levy, of Scranton; Misses Carrie Ketchel and Emma Collum, P. H. Kearney and James Sheeley, Hawley. The happy couple left at an early hour for an extended tour including Philadelphia, New York city, Baltimore, and Washington, D. C. They will reside at Hawley.

Miss Sarah Pennell's auction sale which was to be held to-day was postponed to an early date in November.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. James and sons, Edwin and Howard, are passing a pleasant time in Brooklyn and New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bishop and family are entertaining David Hess and wife of Scranton, also Mrs. Weaver and little son.

Wallace Barnes, Berlin, was in town on Thursday.

James Ammerman, Wilkes-Barre, is the guest of his cousin, Spencer Daniels and wife here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Safford, of Avoy, were recent guests of S. M. Welsh and family.

Norman Bishop, Sr., who was injured by falling from a roof while engaged in doing carpenter work for Mr. Sanders at Uswick, is able to resume his duties.

Frank Purdy, who has passed most of the summer in Edgerton, Wis., with his sons, Orr and Lee Purdy, who operate tobacco farms there, returned to Wayne county a fortnight ago and is being entertained by friends and relatives in this vicinity.

The Lakeville Grange held at P. O. S. of A. hall on Wednesday evening of last week a pie social. Proceeds $22.55, for the "good of the order."

Miss Tuttle, Hamlin, who is assisting Mrs. D. A. Locklin, passed Sunday at home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Miller, of Newfoundland, attended the marriage of his sister here on Oct. 17.

Joseph Herzog, Jr., from Hawley, was the guest of his parents here on Wednesday.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Richer has the scarlet fever. Dr. H. Clemens White, an Ariel physician, is in attendance.

A. Goble has greatly improved his store and house by painting it. Lakeville's painter, David Engle, is doing the work.

Mrs. D. Smith and daughter Laura were recent guests of Honesdale relatives.

H. Locklin was a pleasant guest of Peckville friends last week.

Mrs. Clarence H. Pennell attended the Prear-Gallup marriage at Peckville, which occurred lately.

A number from Hildegard Lodge, No. 359, of this place, attended Rose Lodge, No. 89, of Hawley, on Saturday evening.

At the November election to be held here the Ladies' Aid society of this charge will serve a genuine dinner. Those looking for toothsome food will find quantity and quality here.

Lakeville is certainly a great town for marriages. Some time ago, in the course of a couple of years, a society was organized known as the "Girls Secret Society Club," which composed all in fact of the girls. The club is now unable to survive, having only two members. Oh, what a change!
