—At her reading (this) Saturday afternoon at the High school Mrs. Friedewald will present Walter Browne's "Everywoman"; an ingenious modern allegory, fashioned after the mediaeval morality play like "Everyman," and presenting in dramatic form, the pilgrimage of Everywoman in quest of love. In her dreams "Everywoman" had been a flower, a star, a queen; and now the dawn had a braver story to tell. She was a woman! and to be woman meant to be flower, star, queen and more besides!

—The "Three Twins" which comes to the Lyric theatre on Monday, Dec. 4, is essentially a laugh promoter and yet that is far from the best part of it. Its many striking novelties and catchy music would be hard to excel. The "Cuddle Up a Little Closer, Lovy Mine" number, with its seven ages of cuddling is one of the prettiest stage pictures ever produced. The Yama Yama song which created such a sensation in New York at the Herald Square Theatre where the "Three Twins" ran for ten months, is another of the many song hits; in fact, there are so many good things in "Three Twins" that it would require too much space to describe them. Of the many novel effects introduced, the most important are the dancing Yama Yama chairs, the Face O'graph and the gigantic Electric Aerial Swing. This swing is the largest electrical effect ever staged and weighs 5,000 pounds. It is illuminated with 2,000 electric lights and while revolving around at a rapid rate with six beautiful show girls in baskets singing the "Cuddle" song, presents a gorgeous spectacle.

The sale of seats opens Saturday, Dec. 2, and it is advised that all who contemplate taking in the performance be on hand promptly at the opening of the sale as one of the largest houses of the season is anticipated. To accommodate a large number of people in Hawley, White Mills and East Honesdale who have expressed a desire to attend, a special show train will be run leaving Hawley at 7:40 p. m., White Mills at 7:50 and East Honesdale at 8 p. m., returning at the conclusion of the performance, leaving Honesdale at 11 o'clock. If the people of Hawley and White Mills will give ample support to this train project they will be given more opportunities to see some of the best attractions that visit Honesdale in the future.

50 PER CENT. BONUS.

Wayne County Townships Will Soon Get Road Tax Rebates.

Townships of Wayne county which enforced the cash payment of road taxes last year have been notified of their allotment by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The vouchers for the payment of the money are being made out at the state highway department in Harrisburg. The bonus is allowed in accordance with the provisions of an act of assembly of 1905.

Under the old law each township which abolished the work tax system received in return from the state 15 per cent. of the moneys they expended on the roads. An act of 1911 provides that the township with cash systems will receive business of 50 per cent. of the moneys they spend on their highways, beginning with the fiscal year from June 1, 1911, to June 1, 1912. Agitation for road improvements in the county in recent years has been fruitful. Many stretches of improved highways were built with state aid, and it is expected that next year will see a lot more built as links of the chain of highways to be constructed by the state.

THANKSGIVING.

The following poetry was written by Irving Dix, a Wayne county young man:

Loud on New England's rock-bound coast
The ocean's wintry breakers roar,
And loud the snow-storm's icy host
Beats 'round a famished Pilgrim's door;

Within, a reverend father's head
Is bow'd in thankfulness and love
For bits of barley, corn and bread,
That is vouchsafed them from above.

Merciful Father!—we to-day,
For all thy bounties of the past,
Are not so thankful as were they
Who perished in the wintry blast,
Are not so thankful as were they
Who first observed Thanksgiving Day.

—Irving Dix.

GOOD AMERICAN CUTS OUT BARON!

a contract stating that I would marry her as soon as I got to New York. 'If you'll sign that,' he said, 'we'll furnish you a room, hire the minister, pay his fee and give you a trip.'

"Say, darling, you are not helping me out here," beseechingly remarked the five-day-old bridegroom to his bride who had by this time joined her husband in the parlor. By way of helping him out she put her arm around his neck. The reporter heard several smacks. He looked into the distance. As an old married man he knew all about that, and sympathized with them.

The bride then went on to tell how their shipmates promised to pay the marriage license, hire the minister, buy a ring and send the cab for the minister and give them a trip to California.

"A college friend of mine," resumed Mr. Price, "at Wesleyan University, the Rev. Claude Colle, Brooklyn, married us. I wired him and he came down to the ship and married us on board ship. A committee of twenty got up a ball for us in board ship. The entertainment committee arranged for sports in our honor every day on board ship.

"We were married, Saturday, November 25, at 12:15 p. m.," continued Mrs. Price.

"My uncle and two of my cousins were there to visit me when the ship docked, and they were witnesses of the marriage.

"I had quite a serious time," she laughingly explained, "keeping the girls away from Mr. Price. There was a 'Merry Widow' on board, and so between us we were kept very busy. I wasn't seasick.

"I always thought I'd like to do something of that sort. I always thought I'd like to have a husband with light hair. But all the men I met had dark hair, and I had almost given up hope until I met Mr. Price. We are on our honeymoon now. We're going to have a honeymoon for the rest of our life."

Judging from the way the "wedding" went on all through the interview, the reporter was sure they would.

"I cut out business for this," volunteered Mr. Price. "We can afford to cut out business to get a wife like I've got. My wife was singing 'The Holy City' when first I saw her. The reporters bothered us to death in New York. We had to go to another hotel and register under another name.

"I am a Yankee Hoosier. I was born in Indiana. My mother is a relative of Mark Twain. I am a thirty-second degree Mason. I don't drink or use tobacco."
