Taft Completes Arrangements to Receive Duke.

TREATED AS VISITING RULER.

Governor General of Canada Arrives In Washington This Afternoon—To Be Presented at White House by British Ambassador—Back to New York at Midnight.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Arrangements are complete for the visit of the Duke of Connaught and his reception by President Taft at the White House this afternoon. He was met at the station by the Right Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador, and the embassy staff and by Major Archibald W. Butt, the president's personal aid. Major Butt extended a welcome to the duke for the president and, after placing one of the White House automobiles at the disposal of the duke, accompanied him to the British embassy.

The duke will remain until 5 o'clock at the embassy. At that hour Chandler Hale, third assistant secretary of state, will appear at the embassy, accompanied by Colonel Spencer Cosby, U. S. A., and Lieutenant John W. Timmons, U. S. N., two of the president's aids. They, together with the British ambassador and the staff of the embassy, will accompany the royal visitor to the White House. The duke will be escorted from the embassy to the executive mansion also by a squadron of cavalry from Fort Myer.

The state department representatives will formally announce "His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught and his excellency the British ambassador."

The British ambassador will there upon present "His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught" to the president.

At the conclusion of the reception by the president the staff of the Duke of Connaught and the staff of the British embassy will be conducted into the blue room by a military and naval aid and presented to the president. Immediately following the presentation of the staffs the president will invite his royal highness to have a cup of tea with Mrs. Taft in the red room. Mrs. Taft has invited the wives of cabinet officers and the cabinet officers themselves and the wife of the British ambassador to be present at an informal tea. On leaving the White House the mounted cavalry band stationed immediately in front of the north portico will play the American national anthem until the party have left the grounds. The band has been stationed in the ground prior to the arrival of the duke and his party, and will play the British air, "God Save the King," until his royal highness shall have disappeared in the White House.

After the duke has returned to the British embassy and the cavalry escort has been dismissed the president will pay a return call.

This evening the duke will be the guest of honor at a dinner and reception to be given by the British ambassador. A number of invitations have been sent by Ambassador Bryce to his colleagues of the diplomatic corps. The duke will leave Washington on the midnight train for New York.

BUSY TIME FOR ROYALTY.

Duke and Duchess and Princess Pat Are Keen Sightseers.

New York, Jan. 25.—The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia are likely to know more about New York when they return to Ottawa than most New Yorkers know. As sightseers the royal visitors are indefatigable. They could hardly be more keen for detail if they were studying the city with the notion of building one like it.

Today the duke, with Colonel H. C. Lowther, his secretary, go to Washington to call on President Taft.

The duchess and Princess Patricia will spend the day motoring and at the opera in the afternoon and evening. Unless there is a change in plans, the royal party will leave New York at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow to return to the Dominion.

APPEAL TO JAPAN.

Chinese Imperial Clan Asks Mikado For Help.

Peking, Jan. 25.—There is a rumor in circulation that the imperial clan has or will appeal to Japan to save the empire. The Princes Tsai Hsun, Tsai Tao and Chun, the former regent, according to the report, urged the dowager empress to take this course and she consented.

Well informed people do not believe that Japan will listen to such an appeal now, although she might have done so at the beginning of the revolution.

There is more talk of a renewal of the fighting and also of difficulties about raising funds which are both sides.

They insist that reductions should be based on information from the tariff board, as President Taft contends.

FINGER PRINT EVIDENCE.

Introduced For First Time in New York Murder Trial.

New York, Jan. 25.—Finger print evidence was introduced in a murder trial in Judge Foster's court of general sessions for the first time in this county. Joseph Roberts, a negro, is on trial for the murder of Isaac Vogel, a jewelry peddler, whose body was found in the cellar of 125 Canal street on Dec. 6.

On Dec. 9 detectives found in a loft on the fourth floor, to which Roberts had a key, a part of the jewelry stolen from Vogel. Among other things was a silver cigarette case, with a finger print on it.

Detective Frederick Kuhne was called by Assistant District Attorney Moss and told how he had powdered the print to bring out the ridges and then photographed it. Then Kuhne went to the Tomb and took Roberts' finger prints. That part of his testimony was admitted over the objection of Dennis Cobalan, counsel for Roberts, who argued that Roberts was thus compelled to furnish evidence against himself, and who took an exception.

"Did you compare the two prints?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I did," said Kuhne, "and I found that the right middle finger print of those taken at the Tombs corresponded to the one on the cigarette case."

TO AID CHILDREN.

Proposed to Create New Bureau at Washington.

SOUTH OPPOSES MEASURE.

In Senate Overman of North Carolina Declared Last Investigation of Women and Children Labor Condition Resulted in a Report Offensive to Nation.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Several sensational statements were made in the senate in the course of a debate on a bill proposing the creation of a national children's bureau in Washington the object of which will be to collect information concerning dependent children.

Senator Overman of North Carolina recalled that a few years ago congress had appropriated $300,000 to investigate the conditions under which women and children are employed in factories and mines. The result of this expenditure, he declared, was a report so obscene and offensive to the people of many communities that part of it was suppressed.

Senator Gallinger added that he himself had read some of the report and had blueprinted it as unfit for publication.

Senator Overman declared with a good deal of feeling that the report had charged that in one county of the south there was not a single virtuous woman. He added the government investigation had invaded the homes and then pictured the small children as going about naked and chewing tobacco.

" Didn't most of the complaints against the report come from the owners and operators of cotton mills in the south?" inquired Senator Dixon of Montana, a defender of the bill.

Senator Overman replied that the complaints he received had come mainly from people in the counties of North Carolina, Tennessee and Georgia, in which r- mills were located. He charged the offensive reports related to the poorer classes who lived in cabins in the mountain sides and that the things which the government's special agents said about these poorer inhabitants of the south were simply outrageous.

Senator Dixon brought out the fact that North Carolina now permits children to work eleven hours a day in the mills.

Senator Borah, who is in charge of the bill, maintained that the important thing about the report was as to their truth. He believed the only way in which popular sentiment would be aroused to the shocking conditions under which women and children now work in industrial plants would be for a federal bureau to collect and publish the information.

In giving a recital of the conditions under which children worked in the mills of the country Senator Dixon was halted by Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, who inquired what the general government could do about these conditions to stop them.

"The general government cannot stop them," replied Dixon, "but it can turn on the light and arouse public sentiment that will lead to legislation by the states."

The bill proposes to create a bureau with a chief and clerks, the expense of which is to be about $30,000 a year, and the sole power given is to collect information regarding the condition of children in the various states of the Union.

Cardinal Gibbons, twelve bishops, together with prominent monsignori from all over the country, formed an escort with the papal knights and conducted Cardinal Farley from the cathedral college in a street procession to the door of the cathedral.

During the solemn pontifical mass, which was celebrated by Archbishop Prendergast of Philadelphia, assisted by Right Rev. Mgr. Kenney, Rev. E. M. Surrey and Rev. O. M. Strack, Cardinal Farley occupied a throne on the north side of the altar and opposite on a special mahogany throne, built for the occasion, Cardinal Gibbons sat, attended by Miss Flood and McCready, his deacons of honor.

The procession from the cathedral college started at ten minutes of 11, when the uniformed color guard of the Knights of Columbus and the Papal Knights of the Order of St. Gregory formed an escort on either side of the cardinals and proceeded down Madison avenue to Fifty-first street, through Fifty-first street to Fifth avenue and north to the middle door of the cathedral.
