

MORGAN'S ART WORKS COMING

Collection Now In Europe to Be Brought to America.

TOTAL VALUE IS $60,000,000

New Wing to Be Added to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, in Which to House Them—Will Enter Duty Free.

The J. P. Morgan art collection, the blue ribbon collection of the world as private collections go, is coming to this country. This collection of art treasures gathered by Mr. Morgan in the last fifteen years is usually considered the finest individual collection in the world. It is conceded to be in many respects without an equal anywhere in all of the world's art connoisseurs who have been privileged to inspect not alone that portion of it which is in the Kensington museum, London, but also the objects forming, perhaps, the greater part of the collection with which his house at Prince's Gate is stored. All of these treasures, consisting of pictures, bronzes, tapestries and objects of art in general, are to find a home in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, for the instruction of the people of this country.

Few persons have been privileged to inspect closely this array of art treasures. Various estimates of their value as a collection have been made. An art connoisseur in a position to know whereof he speaks places the value of the collection at $60,000,000.

The Morgan collection will be placed in the new wing now in course of erection at the north end of the Fifth avenue side of the building.

Not all of the collection is coming here at once. Immediate plans call for bringing to this country within the next three months only that portion of it which is in the South Kensington museum. This comprises about 500 objects. An art connoisseur thoroughly familiar with this portion of the Morgan collection placed a value on it of $10,000,000. It is only about one-sixth of the entire collection which Mr. Morgan has gathered since he began seriously to bring together art treasures some fifteen years ago.

Art dealers have been expecting for some time that the collection lent by Mr. Morgan to the South Kensington museum and forming perhaps the principal one on view in that museum would be brought over here by Mr. Morgan at an early date. They arrived at this conviction at the time the duty on works of art was removed. But that the entire collection acquired by Mr. Morgan, with the assistance of the foremost art connoisseurs and dealers of the old world, would be brought over here came as a distinct surprise to many.

Mr. Morgan's art treasures at present repose in many places. There are some on the continent and some in Glasgow, besides those in his London house and in the South Kensington museum. The removal of all of the collection will take considerable time and will cover a number of years.

The objects to arrive here first from the South Kensington museum in a general way were grouped by an authority familiar with Mr. Morgan's plans as follows:

First.—A collection of Italian bronzes of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Second.—A collection of majolica of the fifteenth century, consisting of plates and tazzas.

Third.—A collection of objects d'art, consisting of rock crystals and wood carvings, bought en bloc from the Baron Oppenheim collection of Cologne.

Fourth.—A collection of marble figures and plaques of the fifteenth century, the bronzes by Berrochio and the marbles by Rossellino.

Fifth.—The tapestries purchased by Mr. Morgan from the Kann collection.

Sixth.—A collection of gold enameled jewelry and the champleve enamels from the thirteenth century, including remarkable Byzantine specimens.

Seventh.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Eighth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Ninth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Tenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Eleventh.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Twelfth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Thirteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Fourteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Fifteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Sixteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Seventeenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Eighteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

Nineteenth.—A collection of tapestries of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, mostly of the Florentine and Paduan schools, comprising one of the finest private collections of bronzes in the world.

PENNSYLVANIA LEADS THE NATION IN VIOLENT DEATHS.

Over 3,000 Killed in Accidents and Murders During Year.

Statistics show that Pennsylvania had more deaths from violence both in 1910 and 1909 than any other state in the Union. There were 48,608 violent deaths during 1910, of which this state had 8,242. For the cities the highest death rates were: First, Memphis, 195.5; second, Birmingham, Ala., 188.3; and third, Scranton, 167.1. This registration only includes cities of over 100,000.

Of the total number of deaths from violence, other than suicide, in this country in 1910, there were 3,190 from homicide, of which 1,852 were by firearms, 1,452 from cutting and 886 by other means.

The remaining 45,418 deaths subtracted from the 48,606, were due to accidental causes. Traumatism by fall caused 8,305 deaths in 1910, or 15.4 per 100,000 population.

There were 7,877 deaths in 1910 from railroad accidents and injuries, or 14.9 per 100,000 population. Accidental drowning was responsible for 4,818 deaths in 1910, or 8.9 per 100,000 population. Burns (conflagration excepted) caused 4,182 deaths in 1910, 7.8. Traumatism in mines and quarries caused 2,484 deaths, or 4.6 per 100,000 population. Street car accidents and injuries are credited with 1,949 deaths, or 3.6 per. The absorption of deleterious gases caused 1,379 deaths, or 2.6 per. Machines caused 1,299 deaths, or 2.4 per. Firearms were the cause of 1,161 deaths, or 2.2 per.

The number of deaths from automobile accidents was 930, or 1.8 per. Injuries by vehicles other than railroad, street cars and automobiles numbered 1,940 deaths, or 3.6 per.

Other classes, with the total number of deaths and rate per 100,000 of population for 1910 were: Poisoning by food, 157, or .3; other acute poisonings, 1,227, or 2.3; conflagration, 745, or 1.4; traumatism, by cutting or piercing instruments, 89, or .2; landslide, 556, or .1; injuries by animals, 502, or .9; starvation, 38, or .1; excessive cold, 254, or .5; effects of heat, 826, or 1.5; lightning, 156, or .3; electricity (lightning excepted), 478, or .9; fractures (causes not specified), 623, or 1.2; other external violence, 3,391, or 6.3.

The young people are enjoying the fine skating and no accidents have been reported.

20 Cold-Weather Don'ts For Drivers.

Don't use cold bits in cold weather. Your horse's tongue is tender, and his mouth is formed of delicate glands and tissues.

Don't clip your horse when the mercury is at the freezing point. Don't fall to blanket your horse when he stands in the cold.

Don't forget that nasal catarrh, diphtheria, bronchitis and other ills often result from exposure and the chill which follows suddenly-checked perspiration.

Don't fail to keep your horse's shoes sharp when the streets are slippery.

Don't put your horse's feet in unskilled hands. Good feet are spoiled by bad shoeing.

Don't keep your horse in an over heated stable, then stand him for hours in a freezing atmosphere, and wonder why he became paralyzed.

Don't fail to water your horse the first thing in the morning, but not with ice water.

Don't load your horse too heavily when the streets and roads are blocked with snow.

Don't force him to back a heavy load over a heavy snow bank. A shovel, with a little energy, will make it easier for your horse and your conscience.

Don't try to convince your horse that he is on skates when his feet strike the slippery asphalt. Go slow, my son.

Don't fail to oil your wagon axles. There is a heap of humanity in wagon grease.

Don't fail to properly shelter your stock from the cold, and exercise them when the weather is good.

Don't fail to have your horse's teeth examined. Of what use is food if your horse can't eat it?

Don't dock your horse's tail. He needs it in winter as well as summer, and it was put there by a Master hand.

Don't overcheck your horse. Nature's curves are always graceful.

Don't forget that there is more profit in coaxing a horse than in kicking him. Try gentleness and see how it grows on you.

Don't wait till your horse is dead, or nearly so, before you send for a doctor or an ambulance.

Don't kill your horse trying to get him out of a hole before you send for the derrick.

Don't send anonymous complaints. "A Lover of Animals," "Friend to Humanity," and other familiar writers, baffle their title when they fail to send their address. Be manly and don't hesitate to appear when you are needed for the successful investigation or prosecution of a case. Don't by your seeming cowardice, consign your complaint to the waste-basket.

MAINE'S TURRET FOUND.

Rising Forward One Flung Thirty Feet Aft of the Ship by Explosion.

The missing forward turret of the battleship Maine, which the divers have been looking for since the work of removing the wreck began, was found in the mud twenty feet to the starboard of the ship and thirty feet ft.

The natural position of the turret is inverted, the barbette portion being uppermost. The guns are presumably in the turret, but this has not yet been determined.

The position of the turret suggests the idea that it was thrown aft the ship by the upheaval of the forward part of the vessel.

For Naval History of Revolution. A complete naval history of the Revolutionary war, to be compiled and written by retired naval officers, is proposed in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Fordney of Michigan. The measure carries an appropriation of $10,000 and directs all government officials to furnish any records and papers that might be used in the work.
