THE WAYNE COUNTY FARMER

BEGINS A SERIES OF ARTICLES

Readers of The Citizen are the lucklest people on earth! The editor of this paper met The County Farmer on the street last Saturday, while he was in town to buy some apron strings for his wife, and made a deal with him that will tickle Citizen readers in the hereafter to such an extent that they will have to take out accident insurance for fear of laughing themselves to death. The Frank-Hn County Farmer lives in this county, and will be a reader of this paper as long as he lives. All of you will like him, for he always wears a smile on his face as big as the broad side of a barn, and he is a wise old He is a first-prize joker, and we know that the articles he will write weekly for The Citizen will be ead by everybody in the county before you know it. Here is what he says: "Hello friends, I'm captured at last. While in Honesdale Saturday your editor sighted me on Main street and took me up to his office and made me sign a paper that will start some awful big doings in this grand county of ours. I will do it; for I'm one of the joillest old bacon eaters that ever watched the dog star wag its tail. I will give you weath-er predictions that will hit your funny-bone on the north-east side and make you giggle till sun up. I will tell you hundreds things on the bright side of life in this glorious old county. I don't expect to see any sour faces after this The Citizen will drive them away as sure as your uncle is pig-eon-toed and kicks in his sleep. When I signed the 99-year contract with The Citizen Saturday, the editor agreed to pay me $50,000 a year and all the old ink kegs they had for saur kraut, and I tell you I signed in a jiffy. This is just as much as Roosevelt got, and his wife had to buy her saur kraut barrels and mine doesn't. Another thing, I can save more money than Roosevelt could because we do our own washing. fact, we can get along real well on $50,000 a year, and Lena can pay all her grocery debts with it and sometimes have enough left to buy sewing machine oil and thread. This saves all the egg money for dry goods and the butter money for tooth picks, crop money pays for the chewing tobacco and the hogs pay for the smok-Who wouldn't tickle the readers of The Citizen for that! This contract has some funny clauses in One is that I am not allowed to die until my time is up, but if I should happen to turn up my toes before it is up I will get six years in jail and my wife will have to return all the empty ink kegs and immediately marry another man who can get as many notions in his head as I can, and pound them out a column at a time. The reason I won't break the contract is because the people always tell me that I am a good man and will go to heaven when I die, so you see I'm not going to waste any time in jail when I die, if I can keep out by staying alive, and then go to heaven when I die, if I can stay out of jall by staying alive, and not dying and going to jail in stead of to Heaven by dying. Then so far as Lena is concerned, she promised to live with me as long as I'm not dead, and if I should die now and break her promise it would kill me. So you see I'm here to stay, and will tell you a lot of things to cheer you up. Don't take me seriously; just laugh and grow fat. If The Citizen doesn't come to your home, hitch up old Tom and Dick and haul the dollar and a half in. If this dollar and a half doesn't bring you more joy than your wedding day I will eat my Sunday dlp. Watch for me next week.

At New Bethlehem Miss Ella Latimer, Twenty-three Years Old, Is Said to Have Confessed - Wore Good Clothes and Paid Expenses of Friend In a Hospital.

New Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 6. Miss Ella Latimer, aged twenty-three, for alleged emberrlement of more than $6,000 from the local postoffice, is un der arrest here today. The girl, who spent money lavishly on herself and her friends, is said to have admitted her guilt to the postal authorities.

Surrounded by weeping relatives when taken into custody, the girl ex ager, W. L. Houser. inimed to her sister, "Don't cry; I'm he one to suffer."

"'El," said one of her girl friends. was a mighty good fellow. She liked to dress well and she kept her three sisters and a brother well dressed They lived on the best to be had, and 'El' footed nearly all of the bills. When a friend needed assistance 'El' was there to give it.

"'El' doesn't worry. She told me the other day when we were talking about it that if she had to go somebody else would go with her."

Miss Latimer is reported to have con tracted candy bills, amounting in one instance to $50. She ate her midday meal and very often evening dinner in a downtown restaurant and expended about 50 cents daily on a popular soft drink

Expensive millinery, a new set of eostly furs and other fluery, acquaint ances say, must have cost her a large sum. Then again, it is reported, the young woman is paying the expenses of a girl friend who is a patient in a Pittsburgh hospital and whose parents have no knowledge of her whereabout-According to the authorities, the gir upon application for a money order would issue an order for the correamount, but when she entered up the transaction in her books she would cut down the figure and pocket the differ

Postal Employee Good to La Follette's Name to Go Before Convention.

From Now Until June Friends of Wis consin Senster Will Fight to Instruct State Delegates For Progressive Platform-Supporters Oppose Withdrawal.

Washington, Feb. 6. - Senator La Follette has decided to let his name get before the Republican national convention at Chicago even if he is unable to obtain any more delegates than he has pledged to him at present. This announcement in effect was made by the senator's campaign man-

The decision of Senator La Follette to allow his name to remain on the list of presidential candidates notwithstanding his poor health was reached after it had been practically decided that he would withdraw. Men closely connected with the La Follette movement acknowledged that a conference of the senator's friends had been held and that as the result of this gathering a statement would probably be given out announcing Mr. La Follette's retirement. Senator Bristow of Kansas and several other active La Follette supporters, however, opposed this plan, and at another meeting they apparently were able to impress their view of the situation on the men behind the La Pollette movement.

While La Follette's statement indi cates his name will go before the convention, it is acknowledged by his own supporters that his boom has collapsed and that the campaign in his behalf from now on will be only nominal. La Follette's manager urges states which cannot send delegates to the convencannot send delegates to the convention for the Wisconsin senator to instruct their delegates for the progressive planks in the platform. This in dicates that the La Follette forces from now on will center their efforts upon obtaining a progressive platform. The statement in part issued by W. L. Houser, La Follette's manager, fol-

"Senator La Follette finds it neces sary to take a few weeks' rest. This may prevent his making speeches in the states which are to hold early primaries, and his friends in those states will make such campaign for him as in their judgment will best serve the progressive principle which his candidacy represents.

"In any state where his friends find inability to fill speaking engagements to secure the election of delegates for him they will best serve the progressive cause by instructing delegates measures which he has introduced in the United States senate and in the addresses which he has already made in this campaign.

"Whatever time Senator La Follette can devote to the campaign after taking a needed rest for a few weeks will be given subject to such demands as his official duties make upon him."

The Roosevelt supporters in congress are busy conferring over the situation confronting them as the result of the collapse of the La Follette boom. They realize that something will have to be done by them without delay if the advance that President Taft is steadily making is to be checked. It is expected that steps will be taken within the next week to appoint a manager for the Roosevelt boom, the initiative coming from the colonel's friends, but being acquiesced in by him.

HAWLEY WILL NOT MISSING.

Nephew of Late Railroad Man Denies Rumor.

New York, Feb. 6 .- William Hawley, nephew of the late Edwin Hawley, the railroad man, says there is no truth until next fall. in a published report that his uncle's will was missing.

"There has been no search for the will," said Mr. Hawley. "So far nothing whatever has been done about the will.

It was supposed that Edwin Hawley more class. made a will in 1903 and that his partner, Frank H. Davis, was made executor and trustee. William Hawley wouldn't say anything about that. Mr. Davis made no statement and could not be seen because of pressing conferences. Walter S. Crande, another nephew of Edwin Hawley, was at those conferences.
