FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1912.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

It is never too late to give up our prejudices.—Thoreau.

MORE FREE-TRADE PRICES.

The American shoe manufacturers declared if Congress would give them Free-Trade on hides, they would be enabled to manufacture shoes much cheaper for the people than ever before. Congress put hides on the free list, and the price of shoes soon rose higher than ever before.

Now again comes news from Massachusetts shoe manufacturers that all grades of shoes will be advanced 50 cents a pair. This will mean that consumers will have to pay an aggregate of $124,000,000 more for footwear this year than in 1911.

That leather has become dearer is undeniable. But it has not increased in price to an extent in any way justifying the increase in price of shoes.—Greenville (O.) Courier.

In this day of progress when the lecturers and the state's work along agricultural lines is being brought before the farmer in such a way that he is enabled to see where he can get better results from the new methods, where he can grow two blades of grass where one grew before, there is no reason why the farmer cannot get the best possible production from the soil. There is no business that the state offers so much to us as agriculture. There is no business upon which money is so ungrudgingly spent as farming, for it is realized that from the farm is derived the basic wealth of the country, and as the population of the rural districts prosper so will the nation at large prosper. The greatest minds of the country are being directed towards the solution of the world-wide problem, "bread," and how to get it. The farmer holds the key to the answer. To this end then the scientific farming, farm sanitation and hygiene are being taken up in the public schools of the country.

Between thirty and forty union labor officials and agents were held responsible along with the McNamaras and Orlie E. McManigal for perpetrating more than 100 explosions which occurred in cities ranging from Massachusetts to California in the last six years and in which the wrecking of the Los Angeles Times building was merely an incident, have been indicted by an Indiana grand jury. The capases for arrests have been issued and the men have been secretly taken in custody by the government. March 12 has been set for a hearing before Judge A. B. Anderson at Indianapolis. Many men "higher up" were indicted and many more indictments may follow before the probe is at an end. The labor leaders have been carrying things too far and it is time the government is taking a hand in the matter. Destruction of life and property as a means of gaining an end is anarchy and should be treated as such. Organization is the stepping stone to progress but power in the hands of criminals is dangerous.

SECRETARY KALBFUS REQUESTS THAT FARMERS AND SPORTSMEN FEED THE BIRDS.

"The experience of many years teaches that while it is possible for birds of various kinds to exist in this State during the winter time, the securing of the food necessary to maintain life is, under the most favorable circumstances, a serious proposition; and now that the greater part of the State is covered with snow, varying in depth from a few to many inches, many birds must die of starvation. The wild turkey and the grouse can glean a living from the tree-tops, and frequently do maintain an existence through the most severe weather by eating certain buds upon the trees, and even laurel leaves.

"This is not possible with the quail or with the various kinds of woodpeckers that stay with us during the winter-time, or with the birds of the sparrow family, and others that I might mention; and I beg the sportsmen of the State to look after the quail in their section; I beg each citizen of the Commonwealth to do some little thing for the wild birds other than game birds, knowing full well that anything expended in their behalf will meet with a multiplied return through the labor of the lifework of the birds when summer time comes.

"Just a little shelter, only a little food for poor 'Bob White' in the time of his need, will surely bring its reward. He is ever ready to earn his living, and has worked for you all spring, all summer and all fall, and now, because the ground is covered with snow, he is compelled to turn to you, not as a beggar, but as a laborer truly worthy of his hire. He asks for a little pay for services rendered, and to be rendered, and calls attention to what he did this year as evidence of what he will do next year. Put yourself in his place and think of what winter means to him. You know the usual course; snow varying in depth for several weeks; then frequently a cold rain, followed by drifting snows, or by zero weather. The snows have shortened 'Bob's' food supply and reduced his vitality, so that when the rains begin he does not feel disposed to venture out, even though his crop is empty. But instead he sits huddled with his friends, in some point of shelter, until the first day is passed, and then, on the second day, driven by increasing hunger, he faces the storm, securing no more food, perhaps, than before the rain began; and then, with every feather dripping, chilled to the bone, empty, and still more greatly reduced vitality, he huddles with his family for the last time to die, or to be smothered by the drifting snows."

A FEW DON'TS THAT WILL HELP YOUNG MEN WHO'S STARTING OUT.

It is always easier to tell a person what not to do than what to do. Almost all laws are prohibitions. That which people dare do they need not be enjoined to do or given authority to do, but when they do that which is wrong, society sets up laws to prevent and correct those actions.

The decalogue is made up for the most part of "don'ts," is the bane of childhood and it is not exactly relished by older people. Usually don'ts are very harsh and repellent, but here is a set of don'ts that have neither of these qualities. They come from a Boston minister, are addressed to young men especially, but still can be read with profit by all persons.

"Don't speak of an old gentleman or an old woman. Fathers and mothers are a necessary evil in the present system of things. They have spoken respectfully of you when outsiders could not see anything on which they could hang a compliment.

"Don't give all your attention to your education in sports. It is not sufficient training for life.

"Don't invest your five cents in a glass of beer and then criticize the other fellow who invested his in the savings-bank.

"Don't expend the money of your tailor or laundress in guinea opera seats or 8c theatre tickets. The tailor and the laundress may prefer to spend their earnings in some other way.

"Don't try to get rich quick. Smarter men than you have tried it and lost all they had.

"Don't wrong a woman. Every woman is some mother's daughter. The white life you ask from your mother's daughter you have no right to take from the daughter of another.

"Don't defile your tongue with profane and vulgar speech, revealing your ignorance and showing the coarseness of your soul.

"Don't think you have sounded all the ocean of truth when you have let out all your line in the ocean on whose shore Newton gathered only a few pebbles. It can never be all in your little tin cap.

"Don't be a stranger at the church. Your father's old pew looks lonesome without you."

FEWER DAILY NEWSPAPERS.

Statistics for Past Year Show They Are Diminishing in Number.

Philadelphia.—Newspaper census figures for 1911, compiled by the American Newspaper Annual and Directory, published here, indicate that multiplication of daily papers in the United States has come to a halt. A year ago the number was 2,472; the 1912 Annual lists 13 less, showing that the trend is now in the downward direction. According to this authority, greater mortality than birth rate is explained by suspension or consolidation of newspapers in crowded and unproductive fields. New England has lost four dailies, New York four, middle west states nine, and the western states have thirteen less than a year ago. Gains have been heaviest in the southern states, while the middle Atlantic section has an increase of three.

Weekly and semi-weekly newspapers also seem to have reached their limit in numbers. The 1912 Annual names and describes 16,229 weeklies, 40 less than in 1911, and 665 semi-weeklies, as compared with 617 in 1911.

The 1912 Annual marks its forty-fourth year, contains more than 1,200 pages describing 24,345 newspapers and periodicals, presents ten distinct items about each, including its circulation rating, and gives 1910 census populations for the 11,000 towns in which newspapers are published.

Aeronautics, moving pictures and Esperanto are responsible for new lists of publications devoted to these subjects. There are over two hundred of these lists in the book just from the press. Religious publications number 865, agricultural journals total 463, and there are no less than 129 separate divisions of class and trade periodicals. Exponents of more than forty secret society orders are catalogued. Foreign language papers printed in thirty-four different forms of speech are described in a classification of their own.

These statistics are gathered from returns by the press of the country and sifted, verified and arranged by the publishers of the directory, who are engaged in such revision throughout the year. The importance of the newspaper publishing industry, likewise the development and rapid increase of advertising, is impressively illustrated in the magnitude of this work.

Church Advertising.

Rev. George Macadam, pastor of a leading Methodist church in Joliet, Ill., is a believer in the value of advertising as an aid to the promotion of religious interests. The pastor in question recently concluded it was bad church policy to permit the managers of worldly enterprises to monopolize the advertising space of the newspapers. On a recent Saturday, therefore, he advertised his church program for the following day in a local newspaper, using larger space for his announcement than that occupied by the leading theater in advertising its attractions for the same day. The result was that the attendance at Mr. Macadam's church on Sunday was larger than that at the theatre, and the clergyman was encouraged so he resolved to continue the publicity campaign, his conclusion being that, if you have big work to do, big advertising will help you to accomplish it.

Stomach Distress

Gas and Sourness Vanish.

What's the use of always feeling miserable just because your stomach isn't behaving itself?

Don't you know that scores of thousands of people have changed bad stomachs into perfect workings by the simple method of swallowing one or two little MI-O-N stomach tablets after each meal?

MI-O-NA is compounded from the formula of what is probably the best prescription for indigestion and upset stomach ever written. G. V. Peil guarantees it.

It relieves distress in five minutes but better still, it removes the cause of misery in a few days.

Large box 50 cents at G. W. Peil and druggists everywhere.
