Cardinal Farley Approves Boy Scouts

Cardinal Farley, one of the high dignitaries of the Catholic church, has come out openly and strongly in favor of the Boy Scout movement...

In speaking of the movement and Cardinal Farley's approval an exchange contains the following:

His Eminence Cardinal Farley, approves the Boy Scouts of America and the forming of Boy Scout troops in parishes of the Roman Catholic church. These troops will be known as the Catholic Boy Scouts of America...

Through hitherto some Catholic priests have been opposed to the movement and have discouraged Catholic boys from joining...

The Cardinal's ideas of the Scout movement are expressed by Monsignor Hayes, Secretary to the Cardinal, who said: "It is correct that the Cardinal has approved of the formation of divisions of the Boy Scouts within the parishes of his diocese...

The approval of the Cardinal was secured on a condition he requested which the New York Council assented to, viz: that there be a Catholic Division of the Boy Scouts and that all parish branches within his jurisdiction prefix the title Catholic Division before their official designation...

Many prominent Catholics throughout the country are thoroughly in sympathy with the Scout movement. Monsignor Thomas J. Shahan, D. D., President of the Catholic University of Washington and the Rt. Rev. Geo. A. Dougherty, Vice Rector of the institution, having expressed themselves to James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America as in thorough sympathy with the Boy Scouts Movement...

Spraying For Potato Blight.

"The destruction by pests has reached such a stage in this State," said Zoologist H. A. Surface in his office at Harrisburg recently, "that it becomes necessary to practice modern methods of spraying or pest suppression of practically every crop that the farmer grows."

Prof. Surface then proceeded to discuss spraying for potato blight as follows:

"There are three diseases of potatoes that are commonly called 'Potato Blight' and all of which should be distinguished by the grower, as there is only one that is really controlled by spraying. The first is called 'Early blight' and commences while the plants are quite young, causing the entire leaf to turn brown and die. It does not make the stem black nor cause the tuber to rot. Another that is wrongly called blight is to be called the 'Tip burn,' as the tip of the leaf becomes brown as though burnt. This is not due to a disease, but is due to dry, hot weather. Good cultivation to keep plenty of moisture in the soil is one of the best means to overcome this. The third cause of dead potato leaves is the disease known as the 'Late blight,' which causes the leaves to turn brown and the stem to turn black, and the tubers to rot. While this is a very destructive disease, it is, fortunately, controlled by spraying."

"While the Zoological Bureau of the Department of Agriculture has justly recommended dilute lime-sulfur as a fungicide for the summer spraying of many plants, especially apple, pear and quince, it does not recommend this as a summer spraying for potatoes. By all means the best fungicide for spraying potatoes is strong Bordeaux mixture, made by using six pounds of bluestone and six of lime in fifty gallons of water, and to this adding two pounds of arsenate of lead, or if this can not be obtained use one-half pound of Paris green. This arsenical poison is, of course, for the beetles commonly called 'bugs,' and need be applied only when chewing insects are present or about to appear. This compound is chemically practically the same as the expensive preparation sold under the name of 'Pyrox,' and is much cheaper, and at the same time is the most effective fungicide and insecticide that the potato grower can use.

"It appears that Bordeaux mixture stimulates strong, healthy growth of the potato vine. Even if there should be no blight there is better growth than though the mixture were not applied. Experiments recently performed at the Geneva, N. Y. Experiment station show that potatoes sprayed with the strong Bordeaux mixture, produced about one hundred and forty bushels per acre more than those sprayed with lime-sulfur solution.

"The potato plants should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture and arsenate of lead when they reach the height of at least one-half foot, or when beetles first appear, and before the blight has made its appearance. This spraying should be repeated about once per month during the growing season. Several manufacturing firms make field spraying apparatus by which from four to ten acres per day can be sprayed. The cost of spraying is so very slight that it does not pay anyone to attempt to grow potatoes, truck crops, or fruits without proper spraying. Information concerning the kinds and prices of spraying apparatus can be obtained free by addressing the State Zoologist at the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, Pa."

Women's Column

Flower Laden Hats.

Since the days of the "Merry Widow," of beloved memory, hats have not been so flower-laden as they are this spring. From the simple wreath about the wide brimmed shape, to the bonnet entirely covered with flowers and trimmed with a stiff, standing bunch of blossoms and foliage, flowers are the feature of trimmed hats. They merit this consideration for there never was a time when artificial blossoms were made with such marvelous fidelity to nature. They are more than faithful copies, they may be said to be even lovingly made, for every little graceful turn of stem and curl of petal has been reproduced.

Beside those flowers which are copies of nature there is a great liking for what may be called "conventional" flowers. These are made of silk or satin folded into flower forms but only suggest the original models. They are used more sparingly than others and in small wreaths and tiny bunches. They are likely immensely on children's millinery.

In all-flower hats, the brim-edge is usually bound with velvet and the under-brim covered with maline or chiffon. As a rule such hats set close to the head, for naturally the hats entirely covered with flowers are in the smaller shapes.

Yellow a Popular Color.

Probably the only color that is scheduled to rival the ever-popular black and white this summer will be yellow. It will be seen in shades from the tawniest orange to the palest primrose. There is something about yellow serge suits that does not sound convincing, but one has no idea what miracles may result from a few happy additions in the way of charming buttons and a delightful collar in old embroidery and lace. Yellow satin has forever been a thing of beauty, and the yellows of the coming season are expected to be pretty enough to deserve a prominent place in the fashion world.

Charming Designs and Many Models Are Provided From Which to Make a Selection.

Tailor-made coat and skirt costumes are very much under discussion at the moment, and many of them are carried out in fine navy serge and adorned with long rows of embroidered buttons.

Others, again, are trimmed more or less elaborately with black silk braiding, and arranged with smartly cut coats, lined with white satin, and finished with collars of black corded silk.

A new and very effective navy serge costume has a skirt opens down the center of the front to show a narrow panel of the same material, covered closely with black braiding. The coat, which is made in a short three-quarter length, has broad revers braided to match the panel which adorns the front of the skirt, the cuffs being braided to correspond.

In the course of the last fortnight a fair number of new models in cloth taffetas and charmeuse have been launched upon the Paris stage and at the races. One point is certain, the vogue of the long sleeve is established, and, in nine cases out of ten, we find it adapted to the principal creations of the rival camps in the dressmaking world.

The principal object in reviving this sleeve is to reveal the shape of the arm in all its beauty. In thick materials for tailor costumes, such as serge or cloth, the sleeve starts from the shoulder seam, and is cut on almost tight fitting classical lines.

Fashion Hints.

Tunics are seen on many tailored street suits.

The reign of the chiffon waists, is by no means over.

The lines of the spring gowns are undoubtedly fuller.

Striped and checked silks will be fashionable this season.

Strands of flowers hang from the neck in place of jabots.

The new skirt is draped or has the double or triple effect.

Silk takes a prominent place as hat trimming to form bows.

Cordings of silk, satin, chiffon, braid or light weight cloth are evidenced on nearly all the frocks.

Corsages are swathed in tulle, and sleeves on some of the evening dresses are tiniest puffs or tulle.

The light tailored sleeve is a prominent favorite for suits and dresses of heavy worsted material.

A novelty in millinery this season is the crown of one color and the brim of another. The quality of the straw may also vary.

Fringe plays a prominent part in trimming lingerie gowns. It is either of mercerized cotton or linen and, of course, is washable.

A citron yellow is very effective to trim a gown, or it may be used for the entire costume if relieved by touches of embroidery.

Oriental colorings are evident in many border designs and the garland effects of wreaths and vines are lovely and very stylish.

Dictates of Fashion.

Fitted blouses, posed diagonally, are seen on some of the new skirts. The diagonal line is seen everywhere in blouses and skirts as well as coats.

Many new coat models are slightly cut away and are buttoned diagonally down across the front.

The leather belt is sometimes made in sections buckled together or linked with rings of gold or silver.

The velvet ribbon belt may be an inch or even two inches wide and is drawn closely around the figure.

For the spring and summer seasons there are many novelties in printed effects, the patterns taken from India prints and early victorian styles. Everything new of this character is in the hand block printed effect, with the irregular outline.

WILL TEACH MODERN LANGUAGES BY SOUND.

Washington State College Announces a Distinct Innovation.

Washington State college at Pullman, Wash., is to provide phonetic instruction in modern languages. This department has just completed arrangements for the installation of complete apparatus.

Special phonographs are to be installed, and these will be equipped with records in French, German, Spanish and Scandinavian. The records are to be imported, and many will be reproductions of the voices of noted people of the various countries whose language is to be taught. Professor Frank C. Chalfant, professor of German and head of the department of modern languages, in speaking of the new arrangement, said:

"We are proud of the fact that Washington State college is the first school in the west to adopt this method. We shall have a fully equipped laboratory for this work in a short time. The laboratory is equipped with the latest phonographic appliances for the reproduction of classics and modern literary selections in both prose and poetry in the different languages as rendered by foreign actors and elocutionists. A recording machine is used to register and reproduce the student's rendering of the same selections, and the faults are made evident to the student and gradually eliminated. Each language has its peculiar accent and melody, and the language laboratory is for the purpose of teaching accurately foreign accent and intonation, so difficult to attain by the ordinary methods of instruction. Tests corresponding to the various records will be furnished the students. The phonetic laboratory will be open to all by the payment of a small fee for materials used."

NAMED FOR WEST POINT.

President Taft, Following Custom, Appoints Sons of Army Officers.

President Taft has decided on a number of appointments at large for West Point, giving the coveted places mainly to sons of army officers, according to the time honored custom which recognizes the fact that army officers, being ordered from place to place, have no abiding citizenship and no congressmen to give their West Point cadships to their sons.

The list is as follows: A. K. King, son of General Charles King, retired; H. C. Jones, son of Major W. K. Jones, pay department; J. M. Crane, son of Colonel Crane, Ninth infantry; W. A. Snow, son of Major W. J. Snow, Third field artillery; Frank C. Scofield, son of John C. Scofield, assistant secretary and chief clerk of the war department and one of the veteran officials of that department; J. B. Bennett, son of Major J. B. Bennett, Twenty-fourth infantry; Craigie Kraynbuhl, son of the late Colonel Kraynbuhl, Third artillery; F. G. Bonham, son of the late Lieutenant W. B. Bonham; E. C. Bliss, son of Brigadier General Tasker H. Bliss, commanding the eastern division of the United States; G. J. Newgarden, son of Major G. J. Newgarden, retired; C. H. Evans, son of Major E. W. Evans, pay corps; K. M. Halpine, son of Lieutenant A. F. Halpine, retired; J. W. Rafferty, son of Lieutenant Colonel Ogden Rafferty, retired.

Wilbur Wright, Air Pioneer.

Passes the conqueror Of that great, wide empire domain Which since the dawn of time Has sacred been to eagle, wind and rain;

Maker of flying ship, Which he steered safely, with exultant breath, Through that uncharted sea Which dashed so many followers to death.

Passes the pioneer Into those realms from which there is no flight, Nor any messenger To tell his welcome at their walls of light.

Dirge for the conqueror? And you will, but pass, too, must have Passed since the dawn of time For down the years to come His title will ring forth—air pioneer.
