ILLINOIS GAINS HEAVILY IN COAL PRODUCTION.

State's Output for 1911 Valued at Nearly $60,000,000.

The coal mined in Illinois in 1911 amounted to 53,679,118 short tons, with a value at the mines of $59,-503,278, according to a statement by Edward W. Parker, just issued by the United States Geological Sur-These figures compared with those of the year previous show an increase in tonnage of 7,778,872 tons and in value of $7,097,381. Much of this gain is to be explained by the abnormally low production of 1910 due to the strike.

The coals of Illinois are noncoking are not used to any extent in the iron and steel industry. Con-sequently coal mining in the State vas not influenced by the depression in the iron trade which so seriously reduced coal production in the Eastern States. Illinois is, however, one of the most important manufacturing States, ranking third in this particular and leading all the States of the Union in the manufacture of agriculture implements and in the salting and packing of meats. It is second in the manufacture of men's clothing and, although without iron mines, is third in the value of manufactured iron and steel pro-Its manufacturing industries have been developed and are maintained by means of the great coal resources of the State. They furnish the local markets for the coal and enable the producers to get higher prices than those obtained for the superior grades of coal from West Virginia, which depend almost en-tirely on markets distant from the mines. In 1911 the average price at the mines of West Vicinia coal, large quantities of which are shipped to Chicago and other points near the Illinois coal fields, was 90 cents; that for Illinois coal was $1.11.

Fifty-one counties, or exactly half of the 102 counties in the state, more coal-producing counties than in any other State in the Union, produced coal in 1911. Two countles, Williamson and Sangamon, produced over 5,000,000 tons each; one, Maoupin, produced more than 4,000, tons: and each of five other countries produced more than 3,000, 000 tons.

There was little or no trouble from strikes in Illinois in 1911 and the 76,600 miners employed worked an average of 188 days; the average production for each man was 701
