—It is claimed, owing to the foundation of Main street, that brick set in a bed of concrete will make the proper and in fact the best material with which to make a road. It is true that Main street's traffic is heavier than any other street in town and in fact there is more travel over it than streets in some cities. But why pave with brick? has been asked. Why not use creosote blocks or asphalt, brick is so noisy? The clatter, clatter of the horses' hoofs upon a brick pave is something that wears upon the nerves, states another. The town council wants to give Honesdale the most durable pave but it also wants to conform with the taxpayers' requests.

—If Main street is to be made an average width of 45 feet when it is paved, it will allow ample room for transplanting new shade trees on the east side of Main street. It is too bad that the trees that have died were not immediately replaced by saplings. Main street is exceptionally hot, especially when the sun beats down on the sidewalk. The reflected heat, together with the sun's rays, makes it uncomfortably hot to say the least. This could be overcome to a certain degree by setting out more shade trees. When the time comes for making the improvement in the street let it be followed by an effort on the part of property owners to set out shade trees.

MURDER AT KEEN'S POND

Several more neighbors, numbering about ten in all, were at the Dolph home until ten o'clock Saturday night. One of the number was a musician and furnished music for a dance. When the company arrived Mrs. Dolph states that her husband was in the kitchen and refused to come out and join the rest in a good time until one of the number went out and coaxed him. After that he enjoyed himself as much as the rest for the whole time the company was there or up to 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Dolph's Story Sustained.

District Attorney M. E. Simons, accompanied by Coroner P. B. Petersen and N. B. Spencer, went to Keen's Pond Monday and made a further investigation of the premises and questioned both Mrs. Leonard and Mrs. Dolph further as to the occurrence. Many neighbors were also questioned.

The undertaker was about to move the body from the house when Spencer arrived, preparatory to moving it to Dickson City for burial. He held it up until the Coroner and District Attorney arrived. A probe was made for the bullets which entered the man's body and to find the general direction of the shots. It was found that one shot had entered the fleshy part of the man's arm near the shoulder and went through his body piercing the left lung. The other shot pointed upward and entered the chest also piercing the lungs. The third and last was found to have gone through the heart. It was probably at this point that the wounded man exclaimed, "O! My God! I'm Shot!" and rushed from the room. The fact that the man was shot through the heart and was able to walk through two rooms before falling seems remarkable but Dr. Petersen stated that it was possible as it is undoubtedly what happened in this case. The course of all the shots entering the body was upward, tending to prove that Hubbard pointed the gun upward and that Dolph was leaning over him at the time. According to Hubbard's own statement six shots in all were fired. Only five of them have been accounted for thus far. The extra shot may have went through the open door, which accounts for its not being found. The investigation as a whole corroborated the testimony of the family. Both Mrs. Leonard and her daughter were rigidly cross-examined by the district attorney but no different story could be obtained from them.

A preliminary hearing will be held in a few days before a justice of the peace so that the charge can be legally placed upon Hubbard and he can be held for the next grand jury. The body was taken to Dickson City, his former home, on Monday afternoon, where burial took place. All of his relatives live there.

Husband Was Not Jealous.

Mrs. Dolph states positively that her husband was not jealous of her and had never mentioned anything of the kind to her since they were married. He disliked to have men callers at the house but never complained when one was there or seemed jealous. "He and Hubbard were on the best of terms all the time," she asserted. "In fact, Hubbard came on the invitation of Mr. Dolph, himself, who invited him to make our home his headquarters while working in the vicinity and Thursday he invited Hubbard to come and stay over Sunday with us."

"He had a jealous disposition though," continued Mrs. Dolph, but it took the form of hating any man who succeeded better than he did or who was able to make more money at any job than he was."
