

CHEER FOR T. R. AND JOHNSON

15,000 Sing Their Approval.

A REMARKABLE SCENE

Union and Confederate Veterans Fondly Embrace.

THOUSANDS JOIN IN DOXOLOGY

"This Is Not Politics; This Is Religion," Declare Senator Dixon and Others, Spell-bound by Enthusiasm.

Chicago, Aug. 8.—After Colonel Theodore Roosevelt of New York and Governor Hiram W. Johnson of California had been nominated respectively for president and vice president the delegates to the Progressive convention left for their respective homes confident that their standard bearers had more than a fighting chance for victory.

Both nominations had been made by acclamation amid scenes of enthusiasm. The convention had been in session since 10 o'clock in the morning. The delay in making the nominations was caused by exhaustive discussions over the platform in the committee on resolutions.

Colonel Roosevelt was put in nomination by Comptroller William A. Prendergast of New York and the nomination had been seconded by Judge Benjamin Lindsey of Colorado, Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, Alexander T. Hamilton of Georgia, General Horatio C. King of New York, Colonel P. Lloyd of Florida, General John H. McDowell of Tennessee, Henry J. Allen of Kansas, ex-Governor Garvin of Rhode Island, John J. Sullivan of Ohio and Robert S. Fisher of Arizona.

Governor Johnson had been put in nomination by Judge John M. Parker, Democrat, of New Orleans, and the nomination had been seconded by C. S. Wheeler of California, James R. Garfield of Ohio, Bainbridge Colby of New York, Frederick Landis of Indiana, Raymond Robbins of Illinois, Clifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, Governor Vessey of South Dakota, William Flinn of Pennsylvania and John R. Ciede, a negro, of New York.

Great Audience Sings Doxology. Colonel Roosevelt, arm in arm with Governor Johnson, appeared before the convention, and they were greeted with the wildest plaudits, a very bedlam of a demonstration, and formally accepted the nominations. The great audience of 15,000 souls sang the Doxology to the accompaniment of a band, the life and drum corps, a quartet of trombones and cornets, and with the benediction the convention adjourned.

At that moment the banner was dropped from the girders on the roof of the Coliseum with this legend: Roosevelt and Johnson. New York and California. Hands across the continent. For there is neither east nor west. Border, nor breed, nor birth. When two strong men stand face to face. Though they came from the ends of the earth.

From the very first moment to the last this convention has had the appearance of a great religious revival. Senator Dixon and others remarked at the close of the scene: "This is not politics; this is religion."

Like Great Moral Movement. On the last day of the convention all the semblance of a great moral movement was retained. At its opening there were but 6,000 in the hall. It was raining and muddy, but later in the day great crowds filled the Coliseum. The first militant religious melody sung by the convention was "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

This was varied at times by the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and the national melodies, all of which were sung heartily, almost soulfully, by the audience. The musical efforts of the convention have indeed been thrillingly interesting.

When Comptroller Prendergast began his speech nominating Roosevelt he was greeted as New York's next governor, and from start to finish he was generously applauded. When he closed by saying, "I present to you America's greatest statesman and lion hearted citizen, Theodore Roosevelt," he turned on another demonstration similar to that when Colonel Roosevelt appeared and spoke before the convention.

There were thundering cheers, the rolling music, the flags, the banners, the fifers and the drummers, the banging of the minute gun machine, yells, shrieks, cheers, howls, in fact a very crazy bedlam of enthusiasm. The great audience sang the "Red, White and Blue," "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "Star Spangled Banner," "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "Dixie," and at times turned and shouted a welcome to Mrs. Roosevelt, who again bowed and retired to a quiet corner in her box. This time the demonstration lasted forty-one minutes.

North and South United. Then came the seconding speeches. Although the rules adopted by the convention declare that no seconding speech shall last longer than five minutes all broke the rule except Miss Addams and General King. The general in closing his brief remarks declared, "This Progressive party is determined that the people of this country shall not have a government of the bosses, by the bosses and for the bosses."

Colonel Lloyd is an old Confederate soldier, with four Union bullets in him, and at the close of his speech General King flung his arms about Colonel Lloyd, indicating a fraternal feeling between the north and the south, and this brought out one of the howlingest demonstrations of the day.

Major General McDowell's speech was another to the effect that the sectional feeling must be obliterated. He declared that Colonel Roosevelt was the man to wipe out any remaining prejudice or sectional lines, and he closed by saying:

"Confronting my brave comrade on the other side, I want to see this nation united." This called for another wild scene. The thousands sang "Dixie," the band and the trombones and the cornets all joining in.

In due time, when the seconding speeches were over, William D. Lewis, dean of the Law school of the University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on resolutions, read the platform. This document differs widely, most drastically, from the platforms of the Republican and Democratic national parties. Especially does it condemn the Payne-Aldrich tariff law and the Democratic tariff plank at Baltimore, and in addition it demands the immediate repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act.

T. R.'s Speech of Acceptance. Chicago, Aug. 8.—Colonel Roosevelt, in his speech accepting the National Progressive party's nomination for president, said:

Mr. Chairman, and men and women who in this convention represent the high and honest purpose of the people of all our country, I come forward to thank you from my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me. To say that of course I accept. That I hold it and now I am measuring my words, I have been president, I have seen and known much of life—and I hold it by far the greatest honor and the greatest opportunity that has ever come to me to be called by you to the leadership for the time being of this great movement in the interests of the American people. And friends, I wish now to say how deeply sensitive I am to the way in which the nomination has come to me and to tell those who proposed and seconded my nomination that I appreciate to the full the significance of having such men and such a woman put me in nomination, and I wish to thank the convention for having given me the running mate whom it has given.

I have a peculiar feeling toward Governor Johnson. Nearly two years ago, after the election of 1910, when what I had striven to accomplish in New York had come to nothing, and when my friends, the enemy, exulted—possibly prematurely—over what had beaten me, Governor Johnson, in the flush of his own triumph having just won out, wrote me a letter which I shall hand on to my children and children's children because of what the letter contains, and because of the man who wrote it; a letter of trust and belief, a letter of ardent championship from the soldier who was at that moment victorious, toward his comrade who at that moment had been struck down.

High Praise For Governor Johnson. In Governor Johnson we have a man whose every word is made good by the deeds that he has done—a man who at the head of a great state has practically applied in that state for the benefit of the people of that state the principles which we intend to apply throughout the Union as a whole. We have nominated the only type of man who ever ought to be nominated. As for the vice presidency, we have nominated a man fit at the moment to be the president of the United States. Friends, I have come here not to make any extended speech to you, merely to thank you from the bottom of my heart for the honor you have conferred upon me and to say that I appreciate it exactly as I know that you meant it, for the greatest chance, the greatest gift, that can be given to any man is the opportunity to be met by the person in whom to do something that counts in the interests of the common good.

I appreciate to the full the burden of responsibility, the burden of obligation, that you have put upon me; I appreciate to the full that the trust you impose upon me is in me, to put every particle of courage, of common sense and of strength that I have at your disposal and to endeavor so far as strength is given me to live up to the obligations you have put upon me and to endeavor to carry out in the interests of our whole people the policy to which you have today solemnly dedicated yourselves, the interests of men and women for whom you speak. I thank you.

Platform of Progressives. Chicago, Aug. 8.—The platform adopted by the National Progressive party in part is as follows:

The Progressive party, believing that no people can justly claim to be a true democracy which denies people rights on account of sex, pledges itself to the task of securing equal suffrage to men and women alike. We pledge our party to a constitutional act that will compel strict execution and detailed publicity of both before as well as after primaries and elections.

We pledge ourselves to work unceasingly in state and nation for effective legislation looking to the prevention of industrial accidents, occupational diseases, overwork, involuntary unemployment and other injurious effects incident to modern industry; the fixing of minimum safety and health standards for the various occupations and the exercise of the public authority of state and nation, including federal control over interstate commerce and taxing power to maintain such standards; the prohibition of child labor; minimum wage standards for working women, to provide a "living wage" in all industrial occupations, the general prohibition of night work for women and the establishment of an eight hour day for women and young persons; one day's rest in seven for all wage workers; the eight hour day in continuous twenty-four industries; publicity as to wages, hours and conditions of labor, full reports upon industrial accidents and diseases and the opening to public inspection all scales, weights, measures and check systems on labor products; standards of compensation for death by industrial accident and injury and trade disease which will transfer the burden of lost earnings from the families of working people to the industry and to the community; the proper adoption of home life against the hazards of sickness, irregular employment and old age through the adoption of a system of social insurance adapted to American use. We favor the organization of the workers, women and men, as a means of protecting their interests and of promoting their progress.

For Legal Procedure Reform. The Progressive party in order to secure to the people a better discrimination of justice, and that means to bring about a more general respect for the law and the courts, pledges itself to work unceasingly for the reform of legal procedure and judicial methods. We believe that the issuance of injunctions in cases arising out of labor disputes should be prohibited when such injunctions would not apply when no labor disputes existed.

We also believe that a person cited for contempt in labor disputes except when such contempt was committed in the actual presence of the court or so near thereto as to interfere with the proper administration of justice should have a right to a trial by jury.

We are opposed to the so called Aldrich currency bill because its provisions would place our currency and credit system in private hands. We believe in a protective tariff which shall equalize conditions of competition between the United States and foreign countries, both for the farmer and the manufacturer, and which shall maintain for labor an adequate standard of living, primarily the benefit of any tariff should be disclosed in the pay envelopes of the laborer. We declare that no industry deserves protection which is unfair to labor on which it is operating in violation of federal law. We believe that the presumption is always in favor of the free trader.

ENGLAND ACTS IN SPY CASE. Seeks Particulars Regarding Arrest of British Yachtsman in Germany. London, Aug. 8.—Though England can do nothing short of declaring war to help the five British yachtsmen arrested at Eckedaforde charged with spying on Germany's coast defenses, Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey telegraphed to the Berlin embassy for full information concerning the case.

The English view is that the men were obviously perfectly harmless tourists and some newspapers urge retaliation upon German tourists in England.

AMERICAN SUICIDE IN FRANCE. Paris Police Seek Relatives of Albert Twyford Through Embassy. Paris, Aug. 8.—Through the United States embassy the police are trying today to get in communication with relatives of Albert Twyford, believed to be an American, who shot himself on the bank of the river Ailier and died in a hospital at Vichy.

Twyford told his name on his deathbed, but it is not known where he lived or why he committed suicide.

An unusually large bird was noticed by some of our townspeople the other day. It was a strange sight in our sky and was the subject of much conjecture, but it was finally conceded that it was an unusually large turkey buzzard on its way to the Chicago convention, having scented a feast in that direction. William Smith, who recently bought the B. H. Dodson steam saw mill, expects to install it in the mill.

Thursday last in the wee small hours of the morning, 'Squire Bortree was awakened out of sleep by Constable Swingle, who had just returned from Wildwood with a big fish, which he evidently wished to dispose of in the quickest way possible.

Having been called to Wildwood twice previous to this, and not being successful in finding his game, he decided to drive to Wildwood in the daylight and look over the ground which he did on Wednesday. Thursday night he was called again with the above results. So boys, if you don't belong to the club don't try to fish at Wildwood unless you wish to become fish and be caught yourselves. A word to the wise is sufficient. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Quintin are the proud parents of a daughter.
