LA FOLLETTE CHARGES THEFT.

Tells Senate Postoffice Department Rifled His Letters.

Washington, Aug. 13.—Senator La Follette charged officials of the postoffice department with rifling his mail in an attempt to learn the results of an investigation he was making into conditions in the postal service.

"My mail was subjected to an espionage almost Russian in character," declared Senator La Follette. "I have here a bundle of letters showing that my mail was opened, in violation of law, and rifled by some one hostile to the purposes I had in making the investigation."

The charge was made in connection with the provision of the postoffice appropriation which would permit employees to join associations and petition congress for redress or grievances.

HELD FOR MURDER

Woman Is Charged With Poisoning Husband.

MAN MAY BE AN ACCESSORY

Coroner Detective Says Druggist Admits Selling Arsenic to Mrs. Frieda Trost of Philadelphia—Her Bartender Also Held—Promises to Be Sensational Case.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Formally accused of instigating a conspiracy to cause the death of her husband by poison, but in reality charged with having given him arsenic, thus bringing about his death on Tuesday last, Mrs. Frieda Trost, who keeps a saloon, was arraigned before Coroner Knight in the city hall. She was committed to prison, the coroner sitting as a committing magistrate, for a further hearing.

Edward Guenkel, a married man, was arraigned with Mrs. Trost, whose bartender he is. He was also committed for the further hearing, but as a material witness in the case. Frank Paul, a coroner's detective and the man who arrested the two, said after the hearing that the case against Guenkel will probably be changed to include him "as an accessory before the death of Trost."

This, in brief, is the tale of what promises to be one of the most sensational cases here in years. The detectives say that Mrs. Trost bought arsenic, and a druggist admits he sold her a quantity of the poison. There is a witness, the police say, who will swear the woman gave some of the drug to her husband, and the coroner's physician, after an autopsy, places the cause of Trost's death as from arsenical poisoning.

The proceedings before Coroner Knight were brief. Paul, the detective, was compelled by William A. Gray, a former assistant district attorney and who, with C. M. Bowman, is counsel for Mrs. Trost, to divulge some of the evidence he had gathered against her. Paul said that Mrs. Trost purchased 10 cents' worth of arsenic on Aug. 5, the day before her husband died, at the drug store of Emil Gover, Germantown.

Dr. Wadsworth, a coroner's physician, who performed the autopsy on the body of Trost, ascertained, Paul says, that he died of arsenical poisoning. The poison was sealed in an envelope by the druggist and was labeled properly. It was also marked "Poison."

A TINY BABY THIS.

Philadelphia Infant So Small Its Fingers Are Like Toothpicks.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—His fingers are as big as toothpicks, his arms pass comfortably through a woman's finger ring. He weighs two pounds, and he is twelve days old. Russell Bailey is Philadelphia's protegee for the world's runt honors. When he was born he weighed a pound and eleven ounces, but he is growing. He is now nine inches long, or rather tall. Physicians said he would not live long. But in his place at the Infant Incubator hospital, at Point Breeze, young Bailey is persistently setting their predictions at naught. The indications are that he will keep on growing and be a regular baby, for he drinks his milk as eagerly as any other infant in the hospital. His mother is sixteen years old and weighs less than a hundred pounds.

FORGIVES ELOPING WIFE.

Husband Who Found Her After Chase Would Show Mercy.

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—Anxious to be reunited with his wife and two sons, George Vengau, a Roumanian, who caused the arrest of his wife and Joseph Averamsbacher, with whom she eloped, is ready to drop the charges and procure their release. He wants the accused man to return to his native country and never bother his wife again.

The chase by Vengau was worldwide, beginning in Roumania and extending through nearly every country in Europe, across the Atlantic to this city. When the pair were arrested Vengau made the additional charge of embezzlement against Averamsbacher, who, he declared, had absconded with funds entrusted to him as tax payments.

WALKLESS WONDER.

Christy Mathewson, the Giants Famous Pitcher, Sets up New Record.

New York.—"Old King Control," alias Christy Mathewson, whose blond bulk looms up so reassuringly in that vista of possibilities between now and the world's series, is unostentatiously compiling a new record for himself this season. It isn't such a record as will arouse the same hurrah as a strike-out figure or a consecutive victory mark, perhaps, but as a lot of things that get more publicity. It is one of the many little details that make the distinguished author and checker expert somewhat different from the other birds.

In an era of wildness among propellers of high and low degree the old master retains his serene self-possession. He is the Walkless Wonder. Always noted for a peculiar and intimate knowledge of just where the ball is going when it leaves his high-salaried right hand, the architect of the fade-away is surpassing himself this season. In twenty-six games up to July 30, when he pitched his last game, Mathewson had given but twenty bases on balls. None of the other right-handers in either league approaches this record for control.

Walter Johnson, of Washington, has yielded fifty-six walks in twenty-nine games, and "Smoky" Joe Woods, of Boston, has given fifty-one in twenty-six games. Ed. Walsh, the Iron Irishman, has passed fifty-three in thirty-eight games—a pretty nifty record in itself, considering the number of times the Meridian Scatter Gun has been out. Charley Hall, the Castilian curver on Stahl's staff, has issued fifty-five yards of free transportation in twenty-two games.

Chief Bender, the Athletic aborigine, has passed twenty-four in sixteen games, and John Coombs has walked sixty-four in twenty-four. Fellows like Jimmy Lavender, Cheney, Howard, Camnitz, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Bob Harmon, Tom Seaton, Russell Ford, Joe Benz, Buck O'Brien and George Mullin are veritable wild men compared with the serene Matty.

The spit ball brought a great deal of wildness in its wake, and where left-handers used to be ranked collectively as knights of control, it is found that they are no wilder than their knife-handed brethren who use the slippery elm.

Rube Marquade, for instance, has walked fifty-one in twenty-six games while Hendrix, of Pittsburgh, a right-hander splitter, has passed seventy-two in twenty-three conflicts. Still Alexander, the Doolin star, has passed not foot with the damp flag to any extent, but Alexander has worked in twenty-eight games.

Of course, these figures include games in which pitchers appeared for only a few innings at a time, but they give a pretty fair general line on the proposition of control.

Coombs in twenty-four games passed more men than the side-wheeler, Eddie Plank, in twenty-two. Against Jack's sixty-five walks, the Gettysburg Gatling let but forty-seven batters go free. Veau Gregg, the Cleveland Kokinor left-hander, walked no more in twenty-one games than Buck O'Brien, the Boston Blazer right-hander, did in the same number of times out.

—Of course you are coming to the celebration. Oh, you!
