IN MEMORIAM.

At a regular meeting of Hose Co. No. 1, held at their rooms on Friday, Sept. 13, the announcement of the death of William Katz was formally made and the following minutes were unanimously adopted and di-rected to be spread upon the records of the Company, a copy delivered to the family of the deceased and published in the Honesdale papers.

William Katz died at his home in Honesdale on Saturday, August 31, at the age of 33 years. His death marks the end of a close association with Hose Company No. 1 of which he was an active and honored mem-ber, of absolute integrity and irreproachable character; he had the confidence of all who knew him. With all the citizens of this community, we sorrow at his death, and to those who were near and dear to we extend our heartfelt sym-

THE COAL SITUATION

Buy Your Coal While You Can Get It—Dealers Say There Will be a Shortage This Winter. The local dealers are storing all ferently owing to great demand for coal over the entire country.

We do not want to be an alarmist but would suggest to the Honesdale people that they buy their coal when they can get it. The at present is great at and dealers and shippers of coal luged with orders for early fall ship-ments. The Coal Trade Journal has he following to say about the coal situation: "Strenuous times are ahead for coal men, both anthracite and bitu-minous. The call for tonnage from all directions was never heavier, and it is usually urgent for quick deliv-Improvement in the industrial ages and the scarcity of hard coal are the chief causes, and these condicontinue right up to the close of the year; in fact, right through the winter season to and beyond the begin-ning of the new coal year."

Another dispatch from the New England states claims that retail coal dealers from that territory small towns in New York state have been flocking to New York City in order to get anthracite to supply their orders. These dealers, it was stated, have been offering premi-ums of 25 to 50 cents a ton on the schedule price of stove coal, and a good deal of this size has been sold to these dealers. It was also learned that at a secret meeting held in Boston recently a committee of dealers was appointed to go to New York, where the headquarters of most of the coal companies are, to make a plea for a fair distribution of the available supply of anthracite in the smaller as well as the larger towns. In smaller towns, where gas ranges are not much used, there is an actual scarcity of anthracite, owing to the suspension of mining in April and May and the sending large quantities to fill orders in the northwest before the lakes and rivers freeze.

twenty-two tons, all of it anthracite;

Mr. and Mrs the next year fifty tons were mined the next year, seventy-five tons; and in 1819 the total quantity mined was There 350 tons. There was a remarkable increase, however, in 1820, when 3,-450 tons were mined, and two years later the quantity was 58,583 tons due to the entrance of Virginia in the field, with an output of 54,000 tons of bituminous coal. From that time, coal mining increased with leaps and bounds, so that at the close of the grst fifty years of the industry the output was 23,605,123 tons. figure, however, will be considered remarkably small when it is noted that the output of the mines of the United States in 1900 was 269,684, $27 tons. The largest annual output so far recorded was that for 1910, which was 501,596,378 tons. In 1911 the total amount of coal produced was 496,221,168 tons. The anthracite coal industry has increased from twenty-two tons in 1814 to 90,464,067 tons in 1911, the largest quantity yet recorded. The total amount of bituminous coal produced by American mines since the beginning of the industry is 6,468, 773,690 tons, and the total produc tion of both anthracite and bitumin-The chart also shows the production of each state for each year during that period.
