

PAID MURDERERS.

Webber Coolly Tells Plans of Rosenthal Slaying.

STRONGLY ACCUSES BECKER.

Corroborates Testimony of Jack Rose. Lent Becker $1,000 to Pay Off Gunmen—Sent $10 to Widow of Slain Gambler.

New York, Oct. 15.—The moneyed man of the Rosenthal murderers, Bridgie Webber, told on the witness stand a story of Lieutenant Becker's hate for Rosenthal, of Becker's savage insistence on murder and of his own share in the crime that matched the cold blooded narrative that Jack Rose supplied last Saturday.

Rose now and then displayed a trace of human feeling. Webber's story was as cold and emotionless as if they came from a frozen heart. Money, murder, the whirl of a roulette wheel, friendship, revenge—no one thing moved him more than another. His voice and manner were precisely the same when he told about sending the gunmen to the Metropole to kill Rosenthal as when he admitted that he had immediately sent $10 to the widow.

His testimony was effective for the prosecution in that it not only corroborated every shred of Rose's testimony, but also supplied details which were more shocking in their regard to Lieutenant Becker than anything Rose had said. He took upon himself responsibility for the inside management of the murder—that and the financial details.

Sent Money to Pay Gunmen.

He testified that Becker borrowed $1,000 from him with which to pay the gunmen and that he gave the money to Rose, who handed it to "Lefty Louie" and "Dago Frank." Insisting that he had a quarrel with Rosenthal, he admitted that he was willing for the gambler to be murdered when Becker demanded it. And all through his testimony was a chill unconcern—a voluntary admission that he never paused when asked to arrange a murder. He merely told Becker that it was a "serious matter."

He came to court with a memory for conversations, for the very details of foul epithets that was as remarkable as Rose's. His story of Becker's comment to Rose and him after the murder agreed almost word for word with Rose's testimony as to Becker's exciting description of the dead man and Becker's language.

4 DEAD IN CHINATOWN WAR.

One of Hip Sing Tong's Starts Furious Battle in Street.

New York, Oct. 15.—Lu Way, an "Americanized" Chinaman of the Hip Sings, who just returned from Sing Sing to Chinatown after serving a ten year sentence for a Chinatown killing, stepped out of the doorway of 13 Pell street and opened fire upon an On Leong Chinaman who had just come out of 23 Pell street to the west.

Within the next few moments one Chinaman, not connected with any tong, was shot dead as he looked into the street from the high balcony of the Chinese Delmonico's restaurant at 24 Pell street, across the street from the gunmen; a Chinese laundryman lay dead between the two gun fighters that started the row, an unidentified Italian, supposed to be a barber, staggered out of Pell street and dropped dead in the Bowery, shot through the heart.

A Russian Jew locksmith stumbled westward through Pell street and dropped dead at Pell and Mott streets with a bullet in his head; a Jersey City freight conductor lay critically injured in Pell street with a bullet in his left side; a stableman lay in the office of a livery stable in Mott street in a line with Pell street and the Bowery, unconscious and bleeding from a scalp wound where a bullet had torn his head.

HOLDUP MEN ROB CLERK.

Men With Revolver Get Cash in United Cigar Store.

New York, Oct. 15.—While Edward Danziger, clerk in the United Cigar store at 14 First avenue, was closing his shop two men entered.

"What will you have?" asked Danziger. "Everything we can carry away," said one of the men, pointing a blue steel revolver at the clerk.

"Thank you," murmured the clerk mechanically as he backed away before the threatening weapon into the stockroom at the rear of the store.

The holdup men took from the open safe $190 in bills and a quantity of silver. As they stuffed the money in their pockets they warned Danziger not to leave the stockroom for ten minutes after they had gone. Danziger was able to give no description of the robbers beyond the fact they were large and bloodthirsty.

Dogs Find Man's Body.

Camden, N. J., Oct. 15.—Hounds from the farm of Charles Holloway of Haddonfield dug from under leaves the body of Thomas Ford of Philadelphia. Ford, who was seventy years old, had been missing since July 26. The body was identified in the morgue here by relatives.

BALL PLAYERS GOT $147,571.

Twenty-three Giants and Twenty-two Red Sox Shared in It.

The sum of $147,571.70 was the share of the players of the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox for the 1912 world's series. The players' share this year was by far the greatest on record, eclipsing by almost $20,000 the figures reached last year in the series between the Giants and the Philadelphia Athletics. The 1911 purse for the players was almost $50,000 above the highest previous figure.

Of this sum 60 per cent, or $88,543.02, was divided among the players of the team winning the series, and 40 per cent, or $59,028.68, went to the losing team.

Twenty-three New York players and twenty-two Boston players were declared eligible to the series. In last year's series each member of the Athletics received about $3,000 and each of the Giants about $2,500. Fewer players figured in the division than this year.

Following are the players who shared in this year's receipts:

New York National Club—Ames, Becker, Burns, Crandall, Doyle, Devore, Fletcher, Groh, Hartley, Herzog, McGraw, Marquard, Mathewson, McCormick, Merkle, Meyers, Murray, Robinson, Shafer, Snodgrass, Tesreau, Wilson and Wiltse.

Boston American Club—Ball, Bedient, Bradley, Cady, Collins, Carrigan, Engle, Gardner, Hall, Henriksen, Hooper, Krug, Lewis, Numamaker, O'Brien, Pape, Stahl, Speaker, Thomas, Wagner, Wood and Yerkes.

ARMY MAN TRIES SUICIDE.

Slashes His Throat Near Jugular and Will Die, It's Believed.

New York, Oct. 15.—With his throat cut within a fraction of an inch of his jugular vein, a man described as Charles Quain, forty-five years old, of 51 West Fifteenth street, a retired army officer, was taken from that address to the New York hospital, a prisoner for attempting suicide.

Dr. Keith of that institution reported that hope for his recovery had practically been abandoned. At the West Fifteenth street address all information relative to Quain was denied.

PIERRE WEBER FIGHTS DUEL.

Badly Wounded by Theater Man Who Didn't Mind Waiting.

Paris, Oct. 15.—Leon Blum, a theatrical man, fought a duel in the Parc des Princes with Pierre Weber, the New York Herald's drama and art critic, and wounded him dangerously in the abdomen. Blum and Weber disagreed over the merits of a theatrical rehearsal.

The meeting occurred at 11 o'clock, much later than usual for such affairs, because Weber positively refused to leave his bed before his regular hour for rising.

Admit "Rose Guerra" is Fraud.

New York, Oct. 15.—Assistant District Attorney Wasservogel and his deputy, Deacon Murphy, who have been assisting in the prosecution of Burton W. Gibson, issued a statement admitting that the woman who had represented herself to them as Rose Guerra, the woman who posed as Mrs. Petronella Menschik and signed a waiver of citation which placed the administration of the estate of Mrs. Rose Menschik Szabo in the hands of Mr. Gibson, is a fraud.

PRESIDENT TAFT ENDORSES TUBERCULOSIS DAY.

Says Churches Should Work to Eradicate Disease.

New York, Oct. 15.—Cordial approval and endorsement of Tuberculosis Day, which will be observed by the churches of the country on October 27th, is expressed by President Taft in a letter to Homer Folks of New York, President of The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, made public today.

President Taft, writing from Beverly says: "My dear Mr. Folks: I have your letter of September 16th, and am very glad of an opportunity to testify to my belief in the importance of your campaign of education as to the means of preventing tuberculosis. You do well to enlist the active support of the churches and of all other agencies for the dissemination of information calculated to induce everyone to do his or her part toward the complete eradication of the dread disease. I hope and believe that a 'Tuberculosis Day' in the churches will be productive of great good.

Sincerely yours, "William H. Taft."

From present indications, Tuberculosis Day will be observed by almost every religious denomination in the United States and not less than 50,000 sermons on tuberculosis will be preached on October 27, or in the weeks preceding or following that date.

RUTH GRAY As Angel in "Freckles" coming to the Lyric soon.

MARY SIMMONS By T. L. BURBANK

I was the only unmarried man in the settlement and I was powerful lone some. When events come on each family got under their own roof and not around the open adobe fireplaces and was comfortable. I didn't have no fire and if I'd got one I'd had to set it by alone, not havin' any wife or children. Consequences was I was thinkin' o' diggin' out when sumpin' happened to keep me.

I was ridin' along a road when I seen a gal on horseback ahead o' me. I caught up with her and said, "How de," and "It's a fine day," and neighborly things like that. She was good lookin' and cottoned to me to onet, askin' me where I come from, where I was goin' and all that. I tole her I'd come from the settlement and I was goen arter some hosses that was needed there and I'd bought 'spectin' to make a reasonable profit on 'em.

Waal, we talked a lot, and I got kind a confidential. I tole her that I was alone in the world and livin' among married people. She allowed it was kind a lonesome livin' alone. I axed her if that was her fix and she allowed it was. We got thicker and thicker, and at last I up and fired a question at her if she would hitch on me and set up a home with me.

She said it was kind o' sudden, but wa'n't a bad idee, and she'd think it over. She was livin' with an aunt on a sheep ranch and was goin' there then. If I'd wait a spell she might decide to double up, and if she did I'd hear from her. When we come to the cross roads we separated and I went on and bought my hosses.

Comin' back with a dozen hosses, I brought some men with me, well armed, for boss thieves was mighty thick thereabouts, and I didn't know what might happen. Sure enough, when we got to the crossroads, lookin' down the road we crossed, we saw a lot o' men gallopin' toward us. But we was too quick for 'em and reached a wood before they could git near us, and in there we had the advantage over 'em, for we could see 'em and they couldn't see us. So we got our hosses away.

The day arter I got back Mary Simmons, the gal I overhauled on the road, come into the settlement and when she found me said she'd been thinkin' o' my proposition and was favorably inclined to it, but it seemed unnatural to make up with a man on such a small acquaintance, and she jist thort that if she could get some sort of a job in the settlement for awhile so's we could do some courtin' it would be all right. I tole her the only thing I knowed there was plenty of washin', and she said she was a good washer and ironer. So I got board for her at Mrs. Finnegan's, she payin' her own board and keepin' independent.

There had been so much boss stealin' goin' on that we concluded to keep all the hosses in the settlement in one barn when not usin' 'em, and we wouldn't keep 'em in any one barn two nights runnin'. We thort that in that way we'd keep the thieves from findin' jist where the hosses was and they wouldn't know where to go to get 'em. But one night they run in on us and made straight for the barn where the hosses was. There happened to be only six hosses in the settlement that night, but the thieves got 'em all.

There wasn't no more hosses taken for ten days, and then we lost another lot, the thieves goin', as before, to the barn they was in. We knowed that they knowed where the hosses was, 'cause none o' the men near any of the other hosses seen or heard anything of 'em. How they'd come to find out where we kep' the stock nobody could imagine. There wasn't nobody in the settlement but owned some stock themselves, and they wasn't likely to give information to rustlers about 'em.

I, bein' some'at in the hoss tradin' line and havin' lost some hosses, allowed I'd go and get some more. I seen Mary the night afore I went and got her to promise that when I got back she'd marry me. So I went away feelin' better'n I'd felt for a long while.

Waal, I bought my hosses and started back alone with 'em, 'cause I couldn't get no one to come with me. I allowed I'd sleep in the stable with 'em till the stealin' was over and get a bead on one on 'em. When I got near the crossroads I sor a woman there, and when I come near her who should it be but my promised bride. I didn't have time to ask her what she was doin' there when some men rode up from different places, and Mary said to me, motionin' to one on 'em:

"Allow me to introduce my husband."

"And allow me," said the feller, "to relieve you of your hosses."

They tuk the whole lot of 'em, and Mary rode away with 'em too. I didn't keer so much for the stock, but to be treated that away by the woman I expected to marry was like plizen.

Of course it was Mary, in league with the thieves, who got word to 'em jist where the animals was kept every night. As I rode on to the settlement bimbeby I begun to get mad. When I got there I got up a posse to hunt them rustlers offen the face of the earth. And I kep' my word. We killed all of 'em but Mary, but I made her a widdier with my own hand.
