losing ailments of his patients and confided:

"Another remarkable thing she does is to impersonate persons she has never seen.

"She impersonated Ismay exactly. Persons who had seen that gentleman and heard him talk recognized Mme. B.'s impersonation.

"I asked her, 'What was the cause of this disaster?'

"Vanity," she replied (talking as Mr. Ismay).

"And where was the captain of the Titanic? What was the matter with him? I inquired.

"Champagne," was her reply.

"Now, I don't know whether she is getting her replies from impressions created upon her mind by what she had read in the newspapers or whether it came from something unconsciously reflected from my mentality.

"I said nothing to the nurse, but merely allowed her to look at Mme. B. and listen to her talk.
