ASK DETAILS OF SCOTT'S DEATH

English Public Demands Explanation of Several Entries in Explorer's Diary.

London, Feb. 17.—In view of disquieting rumors concerning the Scott antarctic party a general demand is being made for the fullest inquiry into the death of Captain Scott and his four companions. The public wants several entries in the diary of Captain Scott explained, especially his reference to the shrinkage of his fuel supply. The refusal of any of the survivors to throw any light on this has caused the demand for further light on the subject.

Much chagrin is being expressed in many quarters at the slow response of the British public for funds for a memorial to Captain Scott and his companions. Despite the urgent appeals of the press for subscriptions for the fund, the public has given only about $4,000. The failure of a prompt response by the public in honor of the dead heroes is attributed to some extent to the many different agencies of collection, some of which overlap.

Commander Evans, now in charge of the party aboard the Terra Nova, is to remain in New Zealand to meet Mrs. Scott. She is now on the Pacific, unaware that the husband she expects to meet is dead. She is expected to arrive in New Zealand on Feb. 27.

DEATH ENDS HONEYMOON.

W. Rigby of Hackensack, Who Wedded His Housekeeper, Killed.

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 17.—William Rigby, sixty years old, who on Thursday evening of last week was married to his housekeeper, Mrs. J. A. Van Horn, a widow of the same age, was struck by a Susquehanna and Western railroad passenger train at the Main street crossing here and received injuries from which he died in the Hackensack hospital. He had walked in front of an approaching train, apparently unconscious of his danger.

Two weeks ago Mr. Rigby was found in East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street, New York, and was cared for by the police. He had been robbed and could not even tell his name. A bank book in one of his pockets led to his identification, and Chief Dudd of Hackensack went to New York and brought him home. The next day he and Mrs. Van Horn appeared before Registrar E. H. Johnson and took out a marriage license.

COLD ROBS HIM OF SPEECH.

Boy Stealing Ride Home on Train Found Semiconscious.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 17.—When a Philadelphia bound freight train from Jersey City reached here Clarence Clements, fifteen years old, was taken into custody by Special Officer Michael Murphy of the Pennsylvania railroad for safe keeping. The youngster was semiconscious from the cold and could not speak as he was carried from an empty car.

Later he said he had run away from his home in Memphis, Tenn., and had gone to Maine, but was now returning south because of the severe weather. He will be kept by the police here until his parents are notified.

Death of Mrs. William Utt.

Eleanor A. Bennett, widow of William L. Utt, died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. M. H. Harloe, at Uswick, on Friday, Feb. 7, 1913. She was 88 years old, having been born Jan. 23, 1825, at Purdyville, and had lived in that vicinity during her entire life. Her parents, Rufus and Amanda Van Lilet Bennett, were among the pioneer settlers in Wayne county. When only 14 years old, deceased joined the church and since that time, when strength permitted, she was an enthusiastic church worker. She was distinguished for her benevolence and generous hospitality. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ellen Utt, of Jermyn, Pa., a brother, Aretas Bennett, of Douglas, Mich., and by the following daughters: Mrs. C. E. Webster, of Sterling; Mrs. R. W. Murphy, of Hawley, and Mrs. F. E. Baisley of Scranton. Several grandchildren also survive. The funeral was held from her late home on Monday, the Rev. Mr. Treat officiating. Interment was made in Purdyville cemetery.

Death of William Arthur.

William H. Arthur, a well known and esteemed resident of Scranton, died at his home, No. 42 Birkett street, at 5:30 o'clock Friday evening following a long illness. He had been in the employ of the Delaware and Hudson company for the past twenty-eight years.

Mr. Arthur was born in Bethany, Wayne county, April 30, 1854, and had been a resident of Scranton for the past thirty years. He was a member of the First Methodist church and also of the Carpenters' and Joiners' local, which organization will attend the funeral in a body.

Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters, Mrs. A. H. Lampe, Mrs. W. E. Gritman and Mrs. V. R. Crandall, all of Birkett street, that city, and two grandchildren, Arthur Gritman and Marion Crandall, also the following brothers and sisters, James Arthur, of Forest City; John and Daniel, of Bethany; George, of Vandling; Mrs. Frank Toms, of Equinunk; Mrs. John K. Bodie, of Cherry Ridge and Mrs. L. C. Rowley, of Wayne street, Scranton.

Death of Fred Gaylor.

The death of Frederick Gaylor occurred Friday afternoon at his home on the old Lackawaxen turnpike near Aldenville. He was about 70 years of age and was born near where he died, having lived all his life in Wayne county. He was well known throughout the county, having been in former years a runner on the old Pennsylvania Coal Company's coal train which ran between Dunmore and Hawley.

He is survived by one son and one daughter, G. G. Gaylor, of Aldenville, and Mrs. Remsen, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; also by three brothers, W. A. Gaylor, Honesdale; R. M. Gaylor, Prompton; Louis Gaylor, of Cortland, N. Y.; one sister, Mrs. Ella E. Curtis, Honesdale.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon, Feb. 17, at half-past one o'clock in the Aldenville Baptist church, Rev. A. A. Knight officiating. The remains were laid to rest in Aldenville cemetery.

MRS. FRIEDEWALD READS, "THE TERRIBLE MEEK."

A one-act play entitled "The Terrible Meek," by Charles Rann Kennedy, was the subject of Mrs. Salo Friedewald's reading in the High school auditorium Saturday afternoon. The usual large attendance greeted Mrs. Friedewald at this reading which proved very interesting to all lovers of good literature present. The book has caused much comment and criticism owing to the fact that the soldiers in the play are made by Mr. Kennedy, to use a cockney dialect throughout their parts, although they are supposed to be Roman soldiers. There are three characters in the play—the Captain and a private and Mary, Mother of Christ. The scene of the play is laid just following the crucifixion of Christ and the first three acts are produced on a darkened stage. This is to portray the darkness which followed the crucifixion. In the last act, however, the stage is lightened, showing the three figures on the crosses. The Captain is brought to a partial acknowledgement of the wrong he has committed. This is by the same author as "The Servant in the House." The next reading will be on "Marlowe," the author of which is Josephine Preston Peabody.

Fred Chase, ex-county commissioner of Wyoming county, is spending several days in Honesdale. Mr. Chase says that Honesdale is one of the most beautiful places he ever visited.
