

FLAG RAISING AT ATCO

FITTING OBSERVATION OF WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BY PUPILS OF ATCO SCHOOL—EFFORTS OF TEACHER AND CHILDREN ACHIEVED—HONESDALE REPRESENTED IN MUSIC AND SPEAKERS.

It had been rumored for some time that the pupils of Atco school had a surprise in store for the populace of its district. It was said that elaborate preparations were in progress for a fitting observation of Washington's birthday, on Saturday last, and that all who would favor the school by their presence would be well rewarded. Expectations had risen to a high pitch, but high though they were, they were surpassed. Sometime ago, under the able leadership of Miss Elsa Brown, their teacher, the pupils organized the Y. P. S. club, and resolved that they would put forth their best efforts to raise a staff and flag in honor of the "Father of His Country" on his natal day, and on Saturday they gave proof of their ability to make good their resolutions. Of course, it must be conceded that the "Young People's Social Club" did not do it alone, but they were given all necessary aid by their parents and friends, but they deserve great credit for the perseverance with which they worked and are to be heartily congratulated upon their success. Much to the disappointment of all, the 22nd dawned dark and dreary with rain, but notwithstanding all obstacles, a large percentage of the residents of South Damascus and points far distant, arrived at the school before two o'clock to learn what the young people had in store for them and to shout themselves hoarse for the dear old Stars and Stripes.

This is not a flight of fancy, nor does the writer intend to fill the heads of the future citizens of Atco with flat bombast, or in other words to throw bouquets at them, but he wants to say right here and now that his hat comes off when his mind returns to the pleasant hours he spent in the little hamlet near the historic Delaware a few years ago.

The pupils intended raising a staff and flag, and they raised both. A beautiful, stately, spruce staff straight almost as an arrow, and perfectly tapered from butt to point, peeled and planed to nearly ideal smoothness by Messrs. Metzemacher, Wilbert and Miller. It was surmounted by an elaborate ornament and had been placed in position, well and firmly set upon a chestnut post six feet high which was reinforced by two heavy planks, iron-bound to make them extra strong, the foot being set in concrete to enable it to resist the stormy winds, and now the staff rears its nearly fifty feet of statelyness in front of the school house, a monument to the enterprise of the pupils.

Too much can not be said for the public spirit displayed by the men. The staff was presented by Sidney Woodley, who, together with Artemus Branning and two others gave an entire afternoon to the task of finding, felling and bringing out a tree which they thought worthy of the purpose. Martin Lilholt gave his time and team in bringing the tree to the school house. Mr. Metzemacher worked nearly three days in shaping the tree; George Heller contributed the post; William Guinnip the planks; Fred Yatch furnished the bands, and hauling setting up the post, etc., were attended to by F. Herold, John Fredenburg, and John Buckingham, who united their efforts with those mentioned above. Stop a moment to consider that all this was done without compensation, and you will quickly realize that the good old spirit of American patriotism and liberality is far from being dead. The young people had obtained by public subscription the sum of $11.35 and a box party arranged for the purpose of getting funds, netted nearly $14. They bought a flag—United States army bunting—8x12 feet in size for $10.00, and decorated the school house in and outside in such an elaborate manner that the visitors unanimously declared it was the best that had ever been attempted by any of the country schools. They engaged five members of the Boys' Band of Honesdale to furnish music, paying $9 for their services, and after paying all expenses, had a surplus of 33 cents on hand. They were proud to announce that their flag had no mortgage against it, and the audience enthusiastically responded to a call for funds with which to provide a fitting locker for the national colors. Nearly two hundred assembled. They came to see, to criticize, or to praise—and it is a safe bet that all went away praising. The speakers inspired old and young alike with their eloquence, telling of our great general and his deeds setting him as an example well worth following. Consider that Attorney C. P. Searle came from Honesdale as did the musicians, Rev. Minch came from Tyler Hill, Supt. of Schools J. J. Koehler journeyed from Honesdale, Mrs. Van Gorder from Beachlake and you can easily surmise that the youngsters worked hard to secure success.

The program was divided in two parts, afternoon and evening. The flag rose to its position amidst the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" rendered by the band and audience and was saluted with a volley of twenty-one guns and rousing cheers, in the absence of Rev. W. J. Seymour, whose coming was prevented by illness. Mrs. Van Gorder opened her exercises with prayer. The manner in which the children carried their parts surpassed all expectations and it was easily seen by the bright eyes of the assembly and the applause which was so freely given that the hearts of the parents were swelled with pride by the offerings of their children.

A special feature of the program was a quartette by Mr. and Mrs. F. Herold, Miss B. Ostrander and E. Gilbert. Wm. Guinnip spoke in appropriate terms of the history of the school and appealed to the parents and citizens in remarkably well chosen words to take greater interest in the future welfare of the children.

A series of living pictures, including Miller's story of the flag raising, were presented by the pupils. The pictures were acted out by the pupils in a surprising manner. An elaborate lunch was served between the two entertainments. The ladies of our little place demonstrated that their hearts were in the work and vied with each other providing sandwiches, coffee, cakes and other goodies too numerous to mention.

As a fitting climax to the day's exercises Attorney Searle announced that the resolution adopted by the pupils of Atco school that the daisy be adopted as the State flower of Pennsylvania, introduced at their instigation, to the Legislature by Hon. H. C. Jackson, had passed. The pupils and teacher wore a large daisy surmounted by small silk flags.

BETSY ROSS NOT THE ONLY FLAG MAKER. Our neighborhood flag was made in 1862. The idea originated in the brain of Frank A. Dony, who the previous winter had taught the village school. They raised the necessary money to buy the goods to make the flag of by popular subscription and by mite societies. A committee was sent to Honesdale to make the necessary purchases, and in due time "the goods" were delivered, and a day was set for the young ladies to gather and sew the flag together.

It wasn't to be a "dinky" little flag, but a full-grown, man's flag, and it was going to take a lot of sewing. There were no sewing machines in 1862. Women just used needles, thread, thimbles, beeswax, and gumption, and the way they could make things, or darn things, was a caution to everybody to keep out of their way and give them full swing. And so they ripped up great lengths of red, and great lengths of white. They cut out five-pointed stars by means of a pattern that was borrowed from Honesdale. Then they began to take some liberties with the flag.

The "states rights" Democrats who were helping build the flag, and were "saying things," wanted a motto on the blue among the stars that should read, "No Coercion"; but as I recollect it now, the motto was omitted. However, in the center of the starry field was one slapping great big star, that was supposed to stand for Pennsylvania. I guess Uncle Sam doesn't stand for any such liberties any more. And so the pretty and patriotic young ladies of Cherry Valley, as Hoadleys was called in those days, sewed, and smiled, and chatted. They talked of the brave young men at the front, and probably did a little innocent smiling at the young school-master and other young men who might occasionally drop into the room to see how they were all getting along.

And thus matters went on until the stripes were well joined, the stars were all in place including the whopping big center star, and the basting threads had all been removed. Not one of those young ladies was named "Betsy," and there were no "Rosess" in our neighborhood; but they made that flag that right but they made that flag all right, and in the making of it I suppose that at least seventeen different kinds of troubles and neighborhood squabbles were sewed into it, and they all came out to the breeze later on as that flag waved and fluttered in the winds. But our little neighborhood was no different than other neighborhoods, and no different than will be the coming neighborhoods, until that happy time arrives when the Lord returns and the millennium begins.—Wayne Countean.

STEENE.

Steene, Feb. 27. The donation and oyster supper held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cole last Thursday evening, was a grand success. Thirty-six dollars were cleared.

John Jenkins is seriously ill at his home here at Steene. Emmett Swingle is slowly recovering from a severe attack of the grip. If some of the teamsters that travel the highway of late are not more careful of the language they use in passing resident's homes, they will be very apt to be brought before a magistrate in the near future. Please take warning.

Farmer Denny is confined to his home by very sore foot and is not able to do much walking.

A. B. Wood is working on full time at Farview. M. A. McMahon, general foreman of the Lake Lodore Ice Company, has the five large rooms filled with A. No. 1 ice. Each room is 50x150, and 40 feet high. He is now filling an order of one thousand cars which he will accomplish if the weather permits.

BETHANY.

Bethany, Feb. 26. There was a large attendance at the box social Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Cottell, two loads coming from Seelyville and one from here beside many who came in their own conveyances. The boxes brought from $3 down and the nice sum of $50 was realized. All enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

There is a great feeling of sympathy here for Mrs. William Conbeer, who was so painfully injured in an accident on Wednesday and is now at the Hahnemann hospital in Scranton where she was taken Wednesday afternoon.

This village was again shocked to hear of the death of Mrs. Joseph Arthur, Thursday, at her home two miles from here. She was burned while alone in the house in attempting to light some paper to start a fire and was found by her adopted son, Earl. The funeral was held Monday morning from St. John's R. C. church, Honesdale.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. John R. Lippert, on Thursday, a daughter.

Mrs. Ellison of Prompton, spent Friday with Mrs. J. E. Pritchard.

dred and Hazel Avery, Helen Bodie, Lillian and Hilda Smith, Dorothy Sands, Tamar and Elizabeth Pritchard.

Mrs. James Hensy passed away on Friday at her home here. She had lived here many years, her husband being coachman for Col. Otis. She will be greatly missed by her children, who have been devoted in their attention to every want, and by her numerous friends. The funeral took place Monday morning from St. John's R. C. church.

Mrs. Cot, of Miners Mills, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. B. Faatz, and was joined by her husband who will spend several days here.

SIKO.

Siko, Feb. 26. O. M. Baker had the misfortune to have his team get in the Kimble pond just below Siko school house about nine o'clock last Tuesday morning. The team was being driven by Everett Pintler and was hauling ice upon the pond when it broke through the ice and went down with the load. Although the water was only about three feet deep at that point, much difficulty was experienced in getting them out. One horse was in the icy water for an hour.

After they were gotten out J. W. Ridd and Nathaniel Bolckcom did some sharp horse back riding to warm them up, and the horses were ready for work again in the afternoon.

On account of the copious rain and muddy roads the C. I. C. class meeting which was to have been on Saturday afternoon was indefinitely postponed.

A Martha Washington supper was held at the Presbyterian church, Rileyville, on Saturday evening, Feb. 22. Many from this place were disappointed in not being able to attend on account of the rainy evening.

A delightful social time and a delicious dinner was enjoyed by all who attended the surprise birthday dinner tendered Mrs. Elizabeth Hubbard of Dyberry on her eighty-third birthday, by her children. Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Mumford, assisted by her nieces, Mrs. Inez Chamberlain and Mrs. Eva Tracy, formerly of Helena, Montana, who are spending the winter at their home in Dyberry. The beautiful bouquet of carnations and smilax which adorned the dining table, gave a festive appearance to the occasion and was greatly admired by all. Those present were: Mrs. Laura Pullis, Mrs. Hattie Tracy, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Brown, Mrs. Laura Adams, Miss Alma Adams, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Mumford, Mrs. Eva Tracy, Mrs. Inez Chamberlain, Mrs. E. Hubbard, Duane Brown and Victor Nelson. She was the recipient of many cards and gifts.
